PREFACE

THE EDITOR and publisher takes pleasure in presenting God's people this edition of Volume II of THE STUDIES IN THE SCRIPTURES. The time prophecies set forth in this book are as striking as they are true. They have been a source of enlightenment, comfort and stimulation to God's people; and their remarkable fulfillment has greatly strengthened the faith, stimulated the hope and increased the love of the saints everywhere. They have been subjected to the hard test of time, events and the sharp attacks of the adversary delivered through deluded servants of his, among whom, alas! have been some formerly rejoicing in the teachings of this book. But they have emerged from the fiery crucible as pure gold and silver of Divine Truth. While, when written, they in the nature of the case could not forecast Epiphany conditions clearly, they were a wonderfully true forecast of Parousia conditions. Since the Author's ministry was divinely limited to the Parousia, it should not be expected that he should have given accurate descriptions of the Epiphany.

A few cases like the typist's mistake of substituting 1873 for 1874 in the Author's Foreword, several like mistakes in substituting 1915 for 1914 and the mistake of making the Jewish Harvest end in 70 instead of in 69 (a mistake that the Author in 1904 corrected (p. 245, par. 2), but did not correct in the various places of its occurrence, because prohibited by the condition of the plates) the Editor silently corrected. As in the case of Volume I, linotype, which considerations of economy made him use instead of the more compressible hand type of the earlier edition, forced him to make slight verbal condensations without affecting the sense, in order to keep the pages of uniform size with the earlier editions, a thing necessary, if a pocket edition with greatly reduced margins is to be published, and if confusion is to be prevented in index matters. The same thing is true of other slight inaccuracies, e.g., where the period from 29 to 70 A.D. is spoken of as 40 years, and a few cases of the kind that the Author corrected on pages 77, 78, etc., but left uncorrected elsewhere.

To give the reader the benefit of some chronological clarifications that the Author endorsed in 1914, but that to correct in the plates was practically impossible, the Editor gives as the first part of the Appendix a letter of his to the Author. This letter defends the Author's result against certain attacks. The second and third parts of the Appendix strongly corroborate the Author's chronological periods by pointing out facts that were fulfilled long after the Author's view of the situation in a general way forecast them. The Berean questions as Part IV of the Appendix will be helpful to the study of this book, whose prophetic veracity, being now established by the fulfilled facts, invites all the more to a careful proving of the things herein written. May the Lord graciously bless the book to its readers in its divinely intended mission!

Your brother and servant,

PAUL S. L. JOHNSON.

THE AUTHOR'S FOREWORD.

THE FIRST EDITION of this Volume was given to the public in 1889. Since then, one edition after another has gone forth in various languages, until now more than one million and a half copies are in the hands of the people. These figures are astonishing when we consider how few people today have any faith in the Bible as a Divine Revelation, and how few of those who do have faith in the Bible have an appreciation of prophecy and of chronology, especially of Bible chronology and the Bible's history of the world.

The author and the publishers have great cause for rejoicing in the evidence continually coming to hand that this Volume has proven very helpful to the people of God in every land in the study of the Bible—in collating the message of the Lord's Word under various headings and classifications assistful to the student. Especially have we heard of many being blessed in their study of the manner of the Second Advent—in the Scriptural proof set forth in this Volume that our Lord will never again come to this earth as a man, having fulfilled completely His mission as a human being when He by the grace of God tasted death for every man at Calvary. The texts brought to the attention of the reader, proving that now our Lord is the glorified One at the Father's right hand, and is soon to become King of the world, have been assistful to many, as their letters testify.

This Volume makes no claim to infallibility, and no claim of any direct inspiration from God in the interpretation of His Word. On the contrary, it does claim that the Divine Revelation is the Bible. Its endeavor has been to collate the Bible evidences and to offer suggestions in respect to their significance.

Dealing with subjects so difficult that they are rarely touched by others, it is not to be considered strange if some of the suggestions made in this Volume have not been fulfilled with absolute accuracy to the very letter. But the author, the publishers, and the thousands of readers of this Volume are not ashamed of its presentations, and are still handing it forth to all who have an interest in Bible study, as most interesting and most helpful in an understanding of the Lord's Word.

The Bible chronology herein presented shows that the six great thousand-year Days beginning with Adam are ended, and that the great Seventh Day, the thousand years of Christ's Reign, began in 1874. The events of these 42 years, which this volume claims as the beginning of the Millennium, we still find fully corroborating Bible prophecies, as herein set forth. During these 42 years, nearly all the inventions of our day have been accomplished. The sewing machine, one of the first, began to reach its perfection 42 years ago. Since then, we have all kinds of farming machinery and tools, and workshop, store, factory and home conveniences, in abundance and cheap, through human invention. These are shortening the hours of labor, and doing away with the sweat of face, which the Bible declares to be identified with the curse.

It is entirely safe to say that in these 42 years the world has increased its riches one thousand fold. And when we remember that behind the 42 years lies a total of six thousand years of human endeavor, it seems almost a miracle that the world should accomplish one thousand times more in the past 42 years than in the six thousand years preceding. Surely this well attests the claim of this Volume that we have entered the great Seventh Day, and that what we are already experiencing as a race are only the foregleams of the much greater blessings still to come, when the Sun of Righteousness shall arise with healing in His beams, and scatter all the darkness, ignorance, and superstition of the world!

This Volume sets forth, what its author has been preaching for over forty years, that the Times of the Gentiles chronologically ended in the fall of 1914. The expression, Times of the Gentiles, in Bible usage signifies the years, or period of time, in which the Gentile nations of the world were to be permitted to have control, following the taking away of the typical kingdom from natural Israel, and filling the hiatus between that event and the establishment of God's Kingdom in the hands of Messiah—"whose right it is"—Ezek. 21: 27.

We could not, of course, know in 1889, whether the date 1914, so clearly marked in the Bible as the end of the Gentile lease of power or permission to rule the world, would mean that they would be fully out of power at that time, or whether, their lease expiring, their eviction would begin. The latter we perceive to be the Lord's program; and promptly in August, 1914, the Gentile kingdoms referred to in the prophecy began the present great struggle, which, according to the Bible, will culminate in the complete overthrow of all human government, opening the way for the full establishment of the Kingdom of God's dear Son.

We are not able to see behind the veil; we are not able to know the things progressing under the direction of our glorious Lord and the members of His Church already glorified. Our thought is that somehow the Lord is taking a hand in the affairs of the world now as He did not do in times past. We do know that the great Time of Trouble, which has begun, very closely corresponds to the Divine declaration respecting the time and conditions of the establishment of Messiah's Kingdom. The Lord Himself informs us that, at the time He shall take to Himself His great power and reign, the nations will be mad and the Divine wrath will come. A little later on the time will come for the judging of the dead, and the giving of the reward to God's servants, small and great, leading on finally to the destruction of the incorrigible, who would exercise a corrupt influence upon the earth—Rev. 21: 8.

All over the world people knew of the expectations of Bible Students in respect to the year 1914; and when so stupendous a war as the present one broke loose, when the winds of strife began to blow with such fury and destruction, thousands remembered what they had heard and read respecting the end of the Gentile Times. Thousands today have come to fully appreciate the times in which we are living. The influence is very helpful and inspiring. A realization that we are in the Day of the Lord, and that very soon all of His saints will be gathered to Him by the resurrection change, has a stimulating and encouraging influence upon Bible students, separating them from the world and its fears and ambitions and fixing their eyes upon the Crown of Life, which the Lord has in reservation for them that love Him most.

The author acknowledges that in this book he presents the thought that the Lord's saints might expect to be with Him in glory at the ending of the Gentile Times. This was a natural mistake to fall into, but the Lord overruled it for the blessing of His people. The thought that the Church would all be gathered to glory before October, 1914, certainly did have a very stimulating and sanctifying effect upon thousands, all of whom accordingly can praise the Lord—even for the mistake. Many, indeed, can express themselves as being thankful to the Lord that the culmination of the Church's hopes was not reached at the time we expected; and that we, as the Lord's people, have further opportunities of perfecting holiness and of being participators with our Master in the further presentation of His Message to His people.

Our mistake was evidently not in respect to the ending of the Times of the Gentiles; we drew a false conclusion, however, not authorized by the Word of the Lord. We saw in the Bible certain parallels between the Jewish Age and the Gospel Age. We should have noted that these parallels follow the nominal systems to destruction in both cases, and do not indicate the time of the glorification of the New Creation. This explanation will help the reader as he studies "THE TIME IS AT HAND." We have no doubt that the great blessings which have come to many of us in the past will continue to go through the Volume to thousands of others. So with it go the prayers of the author,

CHARLES T. RUSSELL.

SPECIAL TIMES AND SEASONS DIVINELY APPOINTED.

THE TIMES AND SEASONS OF DIVINE APPOINTMENT. WHY NOT MORE PLAINLY STATED. IN DUE TIME REVEALED. EARNEST DESIRE TO KNOW THE TIMES AND SEASONS COMMENDABLE. MISTAKES OF ADVENTISTS. THE REAL OBJECT OF TIME PROPHECIES. OUR PRESENT POSITION. THE OBJECT OF SUCCEEDING CHAPTERS.

AS in The Plan of the Ages we endeavored to set forth the prominent outlines of the divine arrangement for human salvation from a purely Scriptural standpoint, so it is the purpose of this volume to show, on the same authority, that the various features of that plan have definitely appointed times and seasons for their accomplishment; that, so far as that plan has progressed, each succeeding feature of it has been accomplished exactly on time; and that the time is now at hand for its culmination in the blessing of all the families of the earth—Gen. 28: 14; Gal. 3: 16.

During the long centuries of the Gospel age, the Church, as instructed by her Lord, has prayed, Thy kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven. But, like drowsy children, because the time was long, many have almost forgotten the import of the words that now seem to die upon their lips. To all such whose hearts are still loyal to the Lord, we call in the words of the Apostle

Paul, "It is high time to awake out of sleep; for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed. The night is far spent, the [Millennial] day is at hand." Yea, it is even at the doors. The kingdom of heaven is now at hand, not in its mere embryonic or incipient stage, as at our Lord's first advent (Matt. 3: 2), but in the sense in which he declared it was yet to come (John 18: 36, 37), "in power and great glory."

Only those, however, who have made a careful study of the Plan of the Ages will be prepared to appreciate the teaching of this volume concerning the divinely appointed times and seasons for the development of the various features of that plan, and for its final consummation. It is hoped that none will undertake this study, therefore, before they have thoroughly comprehended the lessons of the preceding volume. Otherwise it will not be meat in due season to them. Truth is meat in season only when we are prepared to receive it. A child is not prepared to solve a mathematical problem until he has first been instructed in the use of figures and of language. So also with divine truth: it is built up step by step, and to gain an understanding of it we must ascend by the steps provided—carefully, of course, proving by the Scriptures every advance step we take, yet not fearful to take the steps as we thus find for them sure footing. Only those who have implicit faith in God, and to whom a "Thus saith the Lord" is the end of all doubt and controversy, can be led by the Spirit of God into advanced truth as it becomes due, led into things new, as well as confirmed in things old and proved true by the same authority.

Only such, God proposes so to lead. In the end of the age, which is the harvest time, much truth is due to be uncovered, which God did not make known in times past, even to his most faithful and devoted children. It was in the time of the end that the Prophet Habakkuk (2: 3) declared that the vision, concerning the glorious consummation of God's plan, should speak and not lie; and that to some of God's children it should speak so plainly that they would be able, as directed, to make it plain on tables; that through their instrumentality others might be enabled to read it clearly: and then Daniel also (12: 4, 9, 10) declared that knowledge should be increased, and that the wise, through faith, should understand the vision.

Our object here is not to prophesy out of the abundance of human imagination, nor in any sense to be wise above what is written in the sacred Scriptures. Therefore, discarding all human inventions, we keep close to the fountain of divine truth, endeavoring to read prophecy in the light of prophecy and its manifest fulfillment; and to make plain upon tables that which God said would be sealed up, and which therefore could not be understood before this time of the end, but of which he gave assurance that it should then be understood.

In this volume we offer a chain of testimony on the subject of God's appointed times and seasons, each link of which we consider Biblically strong, while the whole when viewed together, in the relationship that one part bears to another, gives evidence of a plan so broad and comprehensive, a design so deep, and a harmony so perfect, as to manifest to the studious and reverent inquirer that it is beyond the breadth and depth of human thought, and hence cannot be of human origin.

We find the end of the Gospel age, like the end of the Jewish age, is called a harvest (Matt. 9: 37; 13: 24, 30, 39); like that also, it is a period of forty years; and upon the harvests of the ages the rays of prophetic testimony are specially concentrated, particularly upon the harvest of this age, where all the light of the Jewish age, because of its typical character, converges in a glorious focus. In this light we may now distinctly see the stately steppings of our God, not only in the long vista of the ages past, but also in the present outworkings of his plan. And not only so, but according to his promise to show us things to come (John 16: 13), we see, with wonderful distinctness of vision, his wise policy for the blessing of all in the incoming Millennial age, even down to its glorious consummation in the restitution of all things. We find many great and wonderful events center in this harvest: in it occur the time of trouble, the day of Jehovah; the final and complete overthrow of Antichrist and the fall of Great Babylon; the beginning of returning favor to the Jew; the second advent of our Lord and the establishment of his kingdom; and the resurrection and reward of the saints.

We find in prophecy the beginning and the ending of this harvest period marked, as well as the events due to occur in it. To call attention to and trace the various lines of prophetic time to the events in which they culminate is, in substance, the object of this volume. To receive its testimony, the reader must have an ear to hear (Rev. 2: 7; Matt. 11: 15), and must expect meekly to cast away many preconceived opinions as fast as he comes to see their lack of harmony with God's Word. To such as are thus minded, and as pursue the lessons of this volume with patience and care, and in the order of their arrangement, we doubt not it will be a blessing. If its lessons are received into good and honest hearts, it will be a power to separate them from the world and to ripen them as wheat for the garner. To quicken and ripen and separate the saints, as wheat from tares, in this time of harvest, is the object for which, we apprehend, these prophecies now unfolding were designed by our Lord.

Those permitted to view God's chart of the ages, which so clearly maps out the orderly arrangement, the deep design and the wonderful scope of the divine plan as given in the preceding volume, should be anxious to discover whatever God is pleased to reveal concerning its times and seasons. Their interest in this subject should be many fold greater than that of any in the past ages who did not see the blessings in reservation for all. Faithful children of God long to know when the King of Glory shall come in, and the prince of darkness be bound; when the children of the light shall shine forth as the sun, and the darkness be scattered; when the saints shall be received into divine sonship, and the groaning creation released from the bondage of corruption; and when our heavenly Father's glorious character shall be fully revealed to an astonished world, causing all who love righteousness to bow their hearts in adoration and love and obedience.

To be devoid of such desires indicates a lack of interest in, and appreciation of, God's plans. The apostles, prophets and angels all desired and sought earnestly to know what time the spirit of God indicated through the prophets. And this interest on the part of his children is pleasing to God; for though he never heretofore gratified such desires to any considerable extent, because the due time had not yet come, he never once chided such interest. On the contrary, he called the inquiring Daniel greatly beloved, and answered his inquiry so far as was consistent with his plan.

Hence such inquiry should not be regarded as an improper prying into the secrets of God. God would have us manifest that interest in his plans which would "search the Scriptures," and "take heed to the sure word of prophecy," and thus be in that proper, waiting attitude which will quickly discern the truth as it becomes due.

belong unto God, but things revealed belong unto us and our children forever (Deut. 29: 29). Therefore, if we confine ourselves to the Word of God, and avoid idle speculation, we are on safe ground. If God's plan and times and seasons are not recorded in the Scriptures, none can find them there. God has surely had nothing recorded by his prophets and apostles which he desires to keep secret forever. In due time and order every recorded feature of the divine plan, and its time and season, is manifested to those watching; but the plan, together with the time features of it, was not due to be understood until the period designated The time of the end (Dan. 12: 9, 10). And let it be borne in mind that until such time as God purposes to reveal his secrets, neither learning nor piety can find them out. Although the prophecies have stood for centuries before the eyes of all, they could not be unlocked and their secrets read until the due time had come.

When some of the disciples inquired of our Lord about the time for the establishment of the Kingdom of God, before it was yet due to be revealed, he answered, "It is not for you to know the times or the seasons which the Father hath put in his own authority" (Acts 1: 7). And on another occasion, concerning the same subject, he said, "Of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels who are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father. Take ye heed, watch and pray; for ye know not when the time is. ... And what I say unto you, I say unto all, Watch"—Mark 13: 32, 33, 37.

These words of our Lord cannot be understood to mean that none but the Father will ever know of his times and seasons; hence it no more proves that we cannot know those times and seasons now, than that our Lord cannot know them now. The fact that our Father's entire plan, and his times and seasons, are now discernible, is proof that we are living in the time of the end of the present dominion of evil, and the dawn of the Millennial Day, when knowledge should be increased, and the wise should understand (Dan. 12: 4, 10). If prophecy was never designed to be understood, there could have been no reasonable object in giving it.

These expressions of the Master indicate that God is not executing the various parts of his plan in a random, haphazard manner, but that he has fixed and definite times and seasons for every feature of his great work. And his infinite power and wisdom guarantee that there can be no miscarriage or delay.

The words also impress the thought that up to that time the Father had revealed the times and seasons connected with his plans to no one, not even to our Lord Jesus. So far from warranting the general supposition, that our Lord rebuked investigation and interest in the times and seasons, and by these words forbade such examination, the very reverse is true. His words clearly show that though the times and seasons were not yet given to them to know, they would be very important some time, and would then be revealed to those watching. In view of the fact that they would be unsealed some time, and that they would be very important then, he urges them to take heed, and not to allow indifference to come over them, but to watch continually, that they might know when the due time should come.

Those who watched all down the age, though not seeing all they watched for, were nevertheless greatly blessed and kept separate from the world, by so doing; while those who will be living in the due time and shall obediently watch, shall know, shall see, shall understand, and not be in ignorance, in the midst of the wonderful events of the harvest of this age. He who at any time neglects to watch, loses a blessing upon which the Master laid great stress, and proves himself to be either blinded with prejudice by the god of this world, or overcharged with matters of this life and present interests, to the neglect of his vow of full consecration to the Lord, to seek chiefly the Kingdom and life to come.

Peter and Paul call attention to this subject of the times and seasons. Peter declares (2 Pet. 1: 16), that we are not following cunningly devised fables; that he saw in a figure the glory of the coming kingdom of Christ on the mount of transfiguration, when he beheld the glorious vision of Moses and Elijah and Jesus in glittering garments, Moses representing the ancient worthies (Heb. 11: 38-40), the earthly representatives of the heavenly Kingdom, and Elijah representing the overcomers of this Gospel age, the scene as a whole foreshadowing the glory to follow, after the sufferings for righteousness' sake shall have completed the election according to favor. Peter, while relating his vision, points to the prophetic testimony, saying, "We have a more sure word of prophecy, whereunto ye do well that ye take heed as unto a light that shineth in a dark place until the Day-dawn" (2 Pet. 1: 19). He knew that all the prophecies could not be fully understood by any then, and thus urged a watching attitude on the part of the saints, not watching the sky, but watching for the fulfillment of all that God had spoken by the holy prophets of the restitution, and the times of restitution, which form so large and important a part of their testimony. He assures us that prophecy will have freshly important truths for us, all the way along until Day-dawn.

Paul declares, "Of the times and seasons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you; for yourselves know perfectly that the Day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night [Quietly, stealthily, and after it has come, many will not for some time know that they are in it]. When they shall say, Peace and safety, then sudden destruction cometh upon them [sudden compared with the slow processes of the past six thousand years, as our day is called the fast day of steam and electricity; not sudden as lightning, but sudden] as travail upon a woman. But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief"—1 Thes. 5: 1-4.

The brethren all have the lamp, the sure word of prophecy called by Peter, a light in a dark place. While they keep the proper attitude of brethren, as faithful, meek and humble students of the Word, they will at no time be in darkness: they will have the truth supplied as meat in due season. Never have those living in full harmony with God been left in ignorance of necessary truth, to grope their way in the dark with the world. Abraham and Lot knew of the destruction of Sodom beforehand, God saying, "Shall I hide from Abraham that thing which I do?" (Gen. 18: 17). Noah knew of the flood in time to build the ark, and was informed of the very day that he should go into it. At the first advent, Simeon and Anna, and the wise men of the East, knew to expect Messiah. In fact, the expectation was general then (Luke 2: 25-38; Matt. 2: 2; Luke 3: 15). If God so dealt with the house of servants, shall he do less for the house of Sons? Our Lord and Head has said, "Henceforth I call you not servants, for the servant knoweth not what his Lord doeth; but I have called you friends, for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you." Jesus certainly shall know of the times and seasons in due time, since he is to accomplish the plan, and unless he has changed, he will make them known to those close to him and associated in his work—his friends, his saints.

Reason, then, teaches us that so surely as it is written, "The Lord will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets" (Amos 3: 7), and that most of what he revealed unto them was not for themselves, but for us, the Gospel Church (1 Pet. 1: 12), so surely will the faithful not be left in darkness, unable to discern it, when the day of the Lord has come. It will not come upon them as a thief and a snare, unawares; for they will be watching, and will have the promised light then due upon the subject.

Paul states why he makes the assertion that brethren will know of the times and seasons when due, and will not be in darkness, saying (1 Thes. 5: 5), Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day. Such are begotten of the truth, and are to be developed by the truth more and more unto the perfect day, to which they belong—James 1: 18; John 17: 17, 19.

Note how the pronouns ye and you, and they and them, of this and other Scriptures, distinguish the classes referred to, the saints from the world. The knowledge which the saints will have in the day of the Lord is contrasted with the ignorance, on the part of the world, of the significance and tendency of transpiring events, "Ye have no need that I write unto you." "When they shall say, Peace and safety, then sudden destruction cometh upon them ... and they shall not escape. But ye, brethren, are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief. Ye are all children of the light." "Take heed," says our Lord, "to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting, and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares; for as a snare it shall come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth. Watch ye, therefore [watch yourselves and also the word of prophecy], and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man"— Luke 21: 24-36.

It follows, then, that if a child of God, living in the day of the Lord, remain in darkness or ignorance as to the fact, he must be either surfeited with the things of this life and intoxicated with the spirit of the world, or else overcharged with the cares of this life, and in either case indifferently neglecting to watch with his lamp trimmed and burning and with oil in his vessel, i.e., with the Word of God in heart and mind, and with the spirit of truth in himself.

Though much connected with the times and seasons, as well as with the details of the plan, had been foretold by the prophets, they confessed their ignorance of the import of the prophecies to which they gave expression (Dan. 12: 8; Ezek. 20: 49; Matt. 13: 17; 1 Pet. 1: 10-12). Stated in dark and symbolic language, and linked with events then future, to understand them then was impossible. Though recorded aforesaid, and made to bear witness to the divine foreknowledge and arrangement, they were for the learning of those living in the time of their fulfillment, not for those who uttered them (Rom. 15: 4). They awaited the unfolding of various connected features of the divine plan and human history, which, by God's arrangement, should unlock them, and enrich the patient, searching children of God with meat in due season for an hour of trial and need in the evil day, the day of trouble with which this age closes, and in the midst of which also the new era and dispensation dawns.

A modern device, which serves well to illustrate the divine arrangement of time prophecy, is what is termed a Combination Time-Lock, used in some of the largest banks. Like other combination locks, the key or handle remains in the lock constantly. Certain peculiar movements of the handle, known only to one aware of the arrangement, are needful to open it, while the slightest deviation from the proper movements only complicates the matter and makes it the more difficult to open. The Combination Time-Lock adds the peculiar feature, that by a clock arrangement inside the bank vaults, the doors when closed at night are so locked that they cannot be opened by any one until a fixed hour the next morning; and then, only in response to the use of the right combination upon which the lock has been set.

Our Heavenly Father has closed up and sealed many features of his plan during the night with his great Time-Lock, which was so set as to prevent their being opened until the time appointed, in the morning of the great day of restitution. And then Jehovah's Anointed, "he that hath the key" and understands the combination upon which it has been set, "openeth, and no man shutteth" (Rev. 3: 7). He opens to us by giving us the necessary information as to how the key of prophecy is to be operated by those desiring to find the treasures of wisdom. And we may unlock the treasures of divine wisdom now, because the morning hour has come, though it is early and not yet light to the world. But only by carefully heeding the instructions, and applying the key to the combination set by the Designer, will its treasures open to us.

In fact this illustration fits the plan of God in all its parts: Each truth and each prophecy is but a part of the one grand combination, which may be opened now because it is morning, because the bolts of the great Time-Lock are withdrawn. And this grand combination, once opened, discloses fully and grandly the boundless treasures of divine wisdom, justice, love and power. He who opens will indeed know God as never before.

Let us examine the Scriptures with a reverent spirit, that we may learn what God is pleased to show us with reference to his times and seasons. Since he has recently made the grand outlines of his plan so clear, we may reasonably expect that his time is due to lead us into a knowledge of its time features. The times and seasons were wisely hidden in the past, and the saints were thus saved from discouragement, because the time was long; but as the plan nears its glorious consummation, it is the privilege of the saints to know it, that they may lift up their heads and rejoice, knowing that their deliverance draweth nigh (Luke 21: 28). The revealing of the time, in the time of the end, will be as profitable and stimulating to the saints as its revealing before would have been unprofitable and discouraging.

Evidently God is a God of order. Everything that he does is in accordance with a definitely pre-arranged plan; and his appointed times and seasons are no insignificant or unimportant part of that plan. Notice that Jesus was born on time, "In the fulness of time God sent his only begotten Son" (Gal. 4: 4). Not before, nor after, but just when the time was full. Our Lord's first preaching was on the subject of time, "He came preaching, and saying, The time is fulfilled. ... Repent and believe the good tidings" (Mark 1: 15). "In due time Christ died" (Rom. 5: 6). "He rose again the third day [at the appointed time] according to the Scriptures" (1 Cor. 15: 4). During his ministry his enemies frequently sought to take him, but it is stated that they could not, "because his hour was not yet come"—John 7: 30.

The time-prophecies were not given to satisfy mere curiosity, but to enable the student of the Word to recognize the foretold events when due. For instance: Although prophecy marked the time and manner of the first advent, it was not understood until Christ had come; and then it helped those who carefully studied the Scriptures to recognize the man Jesus as the Christ, sent of God according to appointment and prophecy. Just so prophecies marking the time and manner of the second advent are due to be understood at about the time of that event, to aid us in recognizing his day when it has come, and its order of events and the duties of the hour. One cannot read the Old Testament Scriptures thoughtfully without noticing the prominence given to dates, and the exactness with which some are marked, even to a day, though quite frequently they are attached to what may seem to be very insignificant events. The close student will find that these various dates and chronological references are links in a wonderful chain of evidence which points out with great precision particularly two of the most notable and important events in the history of the world, the first and second advents of the world's Redeemer and Lord, and the important matters associated therewith.

The fact that the majority of Christians are indifferent to these things is no reason why those who love his appearing, and desire to be found approved of him, should drop into a similar condition of lukewarmness.

It should be borne in mind fleshly Israel, except the friends of God, stumbled and knew not the time of their visitation (Luke 19: 44), and that the prophet has foretold the stumbling of both the houses of Israel, the nominal Jewish house, and the nominal Christian house (Isa. 8: 14). Only a remnant in the close or harvest of each dispensation is prepared to receive and appreciate the truths due, and therefore to enter into the special privileges and blessings of the dawning dispensation. It remains for each individual Christian in the closing period of this age to see to it that he is one of the remnant, and not one of the lukewarm, indifferent mass of the nominal Christian Church, which will surely stumble, as foretold by the Prophet, by the Lord and by the Apostles, and as foreshadowed by the course of fleshly Israel, which was declared to be its shadow or type.

But while time-prophecy will be of great advantage in its due time, showing various features of God's plan pertaining to the harvest, etc., it is also true a knowledge of the manner of our Lord's coming and appearing is necessary. To this very careful attention in its appropriate place is requested. And back of all this knowledge must lie holiness and humility, which must pave the way for its reception by enabling the child of God to remove prejudice from his heart and to search diligently to know what has been revealed. So it was at the first advent: the earnest, consecrated, meek ones alone discerned the time and manner. The worldly and overcharged ones, the full ones, will not discern the prophecies or the signs of the times fulfilling them, until the harvest is past and the summer of special favor is ended.

In the end or harvest of the Jewish age, the truly humble and earnest Israelites indeed were in a condition of waiting that differed widely from that of the worldly-minded and self-righteous about them; so that not only were they readier to accept God's plan as he had arranged it, but they were readier to hear and examine the truth when they came in contact with it. And our Lord, while dismissing the self-satisfied, fault-finding quibbles of the Pharisees with dark or evasive answers, took time and care to make truth clear to the humble, earnest seekers (Matt. 13: 10-17; 16: 1-4; Mark 7: 1-23; Luke 18: 18-30; John 1: 45-51; Luke 24: 13-32 and 33-49; John 20: 24-28; 21: 1-12). The proud and self-satisfied, and all who followed them, stumbled (Matt. 15: 14), while the humble and truth-hungry inquired earnestly for the truth (Matt. 13: 36; Mark 4: 10). And the Lord expounded the dark sayings to such, and said, "Unto you it is given to know the mystery of the Kingdom of God, but to them that are without [not Israelites indeed], all these things are done in parables, that seeing they may see and not perceive, and hearing they may hear and not understand."

So, too, it is at the end of this age. Truth here, as there, separates the earnest and humble, and leads them forward into the knowledge now due to such, and strengthens and enlightens them, that they may not stumble with the mass of nominal Christians; while the lukewarm and self-satisfied reject the truths here due, because blinded by their own improper condition of heart. Hence they will be rejected by the Lord as unworthy of becoming his bride—Eph. 4: 1; 1 Cor. 9: 27.

It is a grave error into which many fall, to suppose a knowledge of God's doings and plans is of little importance, the graces of Christian character are all God requires, and that these are better conserved by ignorance. How differently the Scriptures present the matter! They counsel not only to cultivate the graces of the Christian character, but to preserve constantly the condition of heart that will enable us to discern the truth, especially the truth of the Lord's presence when due, and when dispensational changes take place. A knowledge of dispensational truth is as important in the end of this age as in the end of the Jewish age. Those who did not discern the truth then due did not receive the favors then due. So in the end of this age: Those who cannot discern the truth now due, blinded by unbelief and worldliness, cannot receive special favors now due. They are not overcomers, and hence not fit to be the bride of Christ, and to enter into the glorious inheritance of the saints as joint-heirs with him. Truth, in this age, under adverse conditions for its reception, becomes a test of our faithfulness to God, and hence as a sickle separates the fit from the unfit, the wheat from the tares.

Oidium attaches to the study of prophetic time through past misapplications of it by Second Adventists and others, and the consequent failures to realize the events expected to occur at set times. But we see that even this is a part of God's plan to obscure the subject to all but the class for whom it was intended, by permitting contempt and ridicule to attach to it, hindering the worldly-wise and prudent from grasping it (Matt. 11: 25). This, we doubt not, was as much a part of the divine plan as sending Jesus into Nazareth, a despised place, "that he might be called a Nazarene" (Matt. 2: 23), though he was born in the honorable town of Bethlehem. As the worldly-wise and prudent of that day said, Can any good thing come out of Nazareth? so today, when prophetic time or anything relating to Jesus' second advent is mentioned, many cry Adventist, as if to say, Can any good thing come out of Adventism? though they admit that many prophecies containing time are not yet fulfilled, and that the second coming of the Lord is the most prominent topic of Scripture.

We have great sympathy for the First Adventists, the Jews and the Second Adventists, though only a few of either realized the truths they so nearly apprehended, yet failed to grasp, blinded by false expectations. Our Adventist friends have failed to recognize both the manner and the object of the Lord's return as taught in the Scriptures; consequently they have not been expecting to see him as he is, but as he was. They consider the object of his coming one which will fill the hearts of all except the saints with dismay and terror; that his object is to gather the elect, destroy all others of mankind, and burn up the world. Having such ideas, they used time prophecy as a whip to scourge and drive the world to God. But the world coolly looked on, and said that these were unreasonable enthusiasts, and, if there is a God, he is more reasonable and just than that. The scorn of the world grew more and more intense, as time after time they foretold a wreck of matter and a crash of worlds, and time after time their predictions failed, until now the mention of prophetic time is received generally with an incredulous smile, or with open contempt, even by Christians who well know that prophecy and chronology constitute a large proportion of God's revelation.

But blessed is he "Who bears unmoved the world's dark frown,
Nor heeds its scornful smile;
Whom seas of trouble cannot drown,
Nor Satan's arts beguile."

God provided time-prophecies for no such purpose, nor will he attempt to convert the world in any such way; for he seeketh such to worship him as worship in spirit and in truth (John 4: 23), and not such as are frightened into his service. If he designs to terrorize men into obedience, he could have devised some more successful method than the proclamation of time, as our Adventist friends have proved. Prophetic time was given, not to alarm the world, nor for the world in any sense, but to strengthen, comfort, encourage and guide the Church in the troublous times in the end of the age. Therefore it is written, None of the wicked shall understand, but the wise only. To these this becomes meat in due season, and it, with other meat, strengthens those who use it, so that they may be able to stand in the evil day, the day of trouble with which this age closes. It will enable them to understand the events transpiring around them, so that they will not be consumed by fear and dread, nor swallowed up by the projects and false theories, science falsely so called, with which this day abounds. And, withal, they may be in the devouring fire [trouble], witnesses for God and his plan, and teachers of the people—pointers to the outcome of Jehovah's plan, lifting up a standard for the people—Isa. 62: 10.

This is the object of time prophecy, and how indispensable, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished, at this time. Without these prophetic time-proofs, we might see the events of this Day of the Lord, and know not of it, or of our duties and privileges in it. Let none of the truly consecrated under-value the prophetic time-evidences that were designed to guide our words and deeds in the early Dawn of the Millennial Day, before sunrise, while the world and the nominal church are asleep, ignorant and heedless of the dispensational changes now occurring. These prophetic time-proofs were largely God's means of drawing the attention of the writer more fully and carefully to other features of God's plan. Attention given to these must result in lasting profit to the student, not only by informing him of present truth, but also by giving force and reality to all Scriptural truths, by furnishing proof that all God's plans are working together in time, as well as in kind, to the development of his glorious purposes.

The failure of the predictions of Adventists, who attempted to fix a time for the burning of the world, etc., has been more in regard to the character of the events expected than in the time. Like the Jews, they erred by looking for the wrong thing at the right time. This was the secondary cause of their failure to apprehend the truth, but the primary cause of it was the fact that it was not time for a clearer unfolding. Yet it was time for the stirring up of the saints to look for the Lord's appearing, for a going forth to meet the Bridegroom, and a disappointment prior to his coming, all of which was indicated in our Lord's parable of the Ten Virgins, as will be shown at length hereafter. As shown in the preceding volume, the fire that is to devour the earth in the Day of the Lord is symbolic, not literal. In succeeding chapters it will be shown the applications of some time-prophecies that Adventists have discarded as failures were not failures, but correct; for they mark the symbolic fire of this time, already getting under way.

The Advent people, laboring under the difficulty of expecting a literal burning of the earth, attempted to force all prophetic periods to one common day of termination, a twenty-four hour day at that. Thus they did violence to some prophecies to fit and end them with others. But the clearer view of the divine plan reveals the harmony of the various time-prophecies, and there is no necessity for twisting or doing violence to any, to fit it with the others. As in succeeding chapters we institute an examination of the leading prophecies, we do not form a theory and then endeavor to bend all the prophetic periods to it, but we carefully trace each period to its termination, and then weave together the theory or plan thus indicated by the great Revealer of secrets. It will be found that the order and harmony of God's plan are just as manifest in its times and seasons as in the glorious features of that plan traced in the preceding volume, and mapped out on the Chart of the Ages. And when the great clock of the ages strikes the hours indicated on the prophetic dial, the events foretold are as sure to follow as that God foretold them.

STUDY II.

BIBLE CHRONOLOGY.

CHRONOLOGY NECESSARY TO AN UNDERSTANDING OF PROPHECY. INDISPENSABLE DATA FURNISHED IN THE BIBLE. FROM THE CREATION OF ADAM TO A.D. 1873 WAS SIX THOUSAND YEARS. A STATEMENT OF BIBLE CHRONOLOGY IN GREAT PERIODS. ITS EXAMINATION IN DETAIL. FROM CREATION TO THE DAY THE FLOOD WAS DRIED UP. TO THE ABRAHAMIC COVENANT. TO THE GIVING OF THE LAW. TO THE DIVISION OF CANAAN AMONG THE TRIBES. THE PERIOD OF THE JUDGES. THE PERIOD OF THE KINGS. THE PERIOD OF THE DESOLATION. TO A.D. 1873. WHEREIN THIS CHRONOLOGY DIFFERS FROM THAT OF BISHOP USHER, NOTED IN OUR ENGLISH BIBLES. THE TRUE DATE OF OUR LORD'S BIRTH.

IN this chapter we present the Bible evidence which indicates that six thousand years from the creation of Adam were complete with A.D. 1872; and hence that, since 1872 A.D., we are chronologically entered upon the seventh thousand or the Millennium, the forepart of which, the Day of the Lord, the day of trouble, is to witness the breaking into pieces of the kingdoms of this world and the establishment of the Kingdom of God under the whole heavens.

Chronology is necessary, too, as a basis for the examination of the prophetic periods. We must ascertain first of all where we are on the stream of time; and to do this, we must have reliable dates for the calculation; hence we take up the subject of chronology first in order. And a complete chronology of human history must of necessity begin with the creation of man.

The length of time since the creation of man is variously estimated. Among those who accept the Bible record, there can be but little difference of opinion; but among those who reject it, the differences are enormous, varying all the way from ten thousand to hundreds of thousands of years. These suppositions are based upon facts which afford but slight ground for such extravagant and reckless conclusions. For instance, the finding of flint arrow-heads in the peat bogs of Switzerland and Ireland, at a considerable depth below the surface, is taken as a proof that their level was once the surface, and that the peat mosses gradually grew up around and above them; and the time necessary for such a growth is calculated from the present rate of growth per century, which is very slight. If their premises were true, of course it would prove that man had lived hundreds of thousands of years ago. But other geologists will show, and with good reason, that these peat bogs were once so soft that a flint arrow-head might easily sink to a great depth gradually, during a few centuries.

Another instance we quote: "In making soundings in the slimy soil of the Nile valley two baked bricks were discovered, one at a depth of twenty, the other of twenty-four yards. If we estimate the thickness of the annual deposit formed by the river at eight inches a century, we must assign to the first of these bricks an age of 12,000 years and to the second that of 14,000. By means of analogous calculations, Burmeister [a celebrated geologist] supposes seventy-two thousand years to have elapsed since the first appearance of man upon the soil of Egypt; and Draper [another noted geologist] attributes to the European man who witnessed the last glacial epoch an antiquity of more than 250,000 years."*

Of course "if we estimate" just as these great men do, we should reach the same great conclusions. But some of us are unscientific enough to inquire, whether it is not more than probable that the slime deposits of the Nile River have been very irregular, as of other rivers, which sometimes shift their beds and wash away their banks wonderfully in a single freshet. Again, we remember the Flood of Noah's day, not only particularly mentioned in the Bible, but preserved in the oldest traditions of the heathen nations, and we wonder how much slime and debris that caused, over and above the eight inches a century. We wonder, too, why it has not occurred to these great minds, as it naturally does to some not too great, that two bricks thrown into that "slimy soil," at a time when it was covered with water and very soft, would sink quite a distance by their own weight, being so much more dense than the slimy soil. As for the difference in depth of the two bricks, it would seem to an unscientific mind much more reasonable to suppose that the one fell into the slime edge-wise or end-wise, while the other, falling flat, would sink more slowly, than to suppose that men living two thousand years apart made two bricks exactly alike.

It is not many years since the skeleton of a man was found in a former bed of the Mississippi river, and some geologists began to calculate how many thousands of years might be indicated by the many feet of silt, slime, etc., covering the skeleton, and fancied they had a very valuable sample of prehistoric man. But finding later, several feet below the skeleton, parts of a flat boat, such as was in use on the Mississippi less than fifty years ago, it completely upset the calculations, and relieved mankind of another proof that the world is hundreds of thousands of years older than the Bible teaches.

Leaving the discordant and wholly unreliable guessing of some geologists on this subject of chronology, we appeal to human history for information. And what do we find? The history of the oldest of the Gentile nations can be traced back clearly and distinctly less than three thousand years. Back of that all is dark, uncertain, mythical, fabulous, and untrustworthy tradition. Roman history does not extend so far back, as it is only twenty-seven hundred years since Rome was founded, and then its first centuries are wrapped in uncertain tradition. Three thousand years back in the Babylonian, Syrian, and Egyptian histories brings us to a period where their records are fragmentary and involved in great obscurity. In the history of China, it brings us to the Tchou dynasty, where the events of Chinese history begin to be more trustworthy. In Greece, noted for its scholarship in the past three thousand years, with whom above all nations we might expect to find accurate history, what do we find? We find its dates accurate for the last twenty-six hundred years, but no farther back. Back of that, we come to what is known as the fabulous, mythical or prehistoric age of Greece. The only reasonable and connected account of the first three thousand years of man on the earth is found in the Bible; and this fact is surely in harmony with its claim to divine origin, direction and preservation.

As with history, so with dates: the world has, aside from the Bible, no means of tracing its chronology farther back than B.C. 776. On this subject we quote Prof. Fisher, of Yale College. He says: "An exact method of establishing dates was slowly reached. The invention of eras was indispensable to this end. The earliest definite time for the dating of events was established in Babylon, the era of Nabonassar, 747 B.C. The Greeks (from about 300 B.C.) dated events from the first recorded victory at the Olympic games, 776 B.C. These games occurred every fourth year. Each Olympiad was thus a period of four years. The Romans, though not for some centuries after the founding of Rome, dated from that event; i.e., from 753 B.C."

In further evidence that the many so-called histories of the remote past so abound with vagaries and mythical traditions as to make them valueless as to chronological data, and wholly unworthy of consideration, we quote as follows from the American Cyclopaedia, under the caption, Chronology:

"The history of ancient nations, unless we make an exception in the case of the Hebrews, goes back into mythical periods of thousands or millions of years; and even after the records begin to assume a historical aspect, the discrepancies are very great ... The Assyrian, Babylonian and Egyptian inscriptions are in extinct languages and in characters long obsolete ... Greek and Roman dates are ... authenticated to the first Olympiad, B.C. 776, and the establishment of the Consulate, B.C. 510, previous to which they are ... legendary. Herodotus is valuable only as to events of his own time, about 450 B.C. and those of a century or two earlier.

Clinton in his work on Grecian Chronology (283) says, "The history contained in the Hebrew Scriptures presents a ... contrast to the early accounts of the Greeks. In the latter we trace with difficulty a few obscure facts preserved to us by the poets, who transmitted, with all the embellishments of poetry and fable, what they had received from oral tradition. In the annals of the Hebrew nation, we have authentic narratives written by contemporaries under the guidance of inspiration. What they have delivered to us comes accordingly under a double sanction. They were aided by divine inspiration, in recording facts upon which, as mere human witnesses, their evidence would be valid."

The Bible, our God-provided history of the first three thousand years, is the only work in the world, which beginning with Adam, the first man mentioned in history, monument or inscription, whose name, the time of his creation and death are recorded, and from whom his descendants can be traced by name and age in successive links for nearly four thousand years, furnishes us a clear and connected history down to a period where secular history is well authenticated. As we shall see, the Bible record extends to the first year of Cyrus, B.C. 536, a well established and generally accepted date. There the thread of Bible chronology is dropped, at a point where secular history is reliable. God has thus provided for his children a clear and connected record down to the present time. The Bible by its prophecies even supplements history, down to the consummation of the restitution of all things, in the end of the seventh millennium, whence the new era of eternal blessedness will begin to date. The Bible is therefore the only record in the world which furnishes a view of human history as a whole. It carries us from the lost paradise of Genesis to the restored paradise of Revelation, tracing the pathway of humanity into eternity. Taken together, the history and prophecy of the Bible afford a panoramic view of the whole course of events from the creation and fall of man to his reconciliation and restitution. The Bible, therefore, is the chart of all history. Without it, as has been truly said, history would be "like rivers flowing from unknown sources to unknown seas;" but under its guidance we may trace these rivers to their springs, yea, and see their glorious ending in the ocean of eternity.

In the Bible alone, therefore, we may expect to find a record which will order aright the inharmonious periods and chronological irregularities which the annals of human history at first sight present, into harmony with each other and with the periods of nature.

In starting with the question, How long is it since man's creation? We should and do feel confident that he who gave the prophecies, and said that in the time of the end they should be understood, has provided in his Word the data necessary to enable us accurately to locate those prophecies. However, any who expect to find these matters so plainly stated as to be convincing to the mere surface reader, or the insincere skeptic, will be disappointed. God's times and seasons are given in such a way as to be convincing, at this time, only to those who, by acquaintance with God, are able to recognize his characteristic methods. The evidence is given "that the man of God may be thoroughly furnished" (2 Tim. 3: 17). These well know that in all the paths by which their Father leads they must walk by faith and not by sight. To all who are prepared to walk thus, we expect to be able to point out, at every step, solid statements of God's Word, a sure foundation for reasonable faith.

We will not here discuss the merits of the Septuagint and Hebrew of the Old Testament Scriptures, their difference in chronological data, etc., but will satisfy ourselves, and we trust the reader, with the statement that the former was a translation by Egyptians, while the latter is the original Hebrew record; which facts, taken in connection with the almost superstitious veneration with which the Hebrews guarded every jot and tittle of those sacred writings, is strong evidence of the reliability of the Hebrew original. Its acceptance by scholars is quite general, and in this volume we follow its dates, etc.

Here we furnish the evidence that from the creation of Adam to A.D. 1873 was six thousand years. And though the Bible contains no direct statement that the seventh thousand will be the epoch of Christ's reign, the great Sabbath Day of restitution to the world, yet the venerable tradition is not without a reasonable foundation. The law given to Israel, the typical people, appointing that six days of labor and weariness should be followed by one of refreshment and rest from their own works, seems fitly to illustrate the six thousand years in which the whole creation labors and groans under the bondage of sin and death (Rom. 8: 22) in a vain endeavor to extricate itself, and the grand Millennial Day in which the weary and heavy laden may come to Christ Jesus, the shepherd and bishop of their souls, and through him find rest, refreshment and restitution—in which, through the merits of his precious blood, they may find repentance and remission of sins. On the typical seventh day he inquired of the impotent man, "Wilt thou be made whole?" and in answer to his faith and obedience gave him strength to take up his bed and walk (John 5: 6-9; also Matt. 12: 10, 13; John 7: 23; Luke 13: 11-16; 14: 1-5). So, during the antitypical Sabbath, the Millennium, it will be declared to all the world that whosoever will may have life and health eternal if he will take the steps of faith and obedience.

We must not overlook the fact already noted (Vol. 1, Chap. VIII), that the term day is indefinite, and signifies merely a period of time, whether of long or of short duration. The Apostle Peter intimated that the seventh thousand-year period of the world's history would be the seventh day in God's reckoning, saying, "Beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day. ... The day of the Lord will come," etc.—2 Pet. 3: 8, 10.

If, then, the seventh thousand-year period of earth's history be an epoch specially noted as the period of Christ's reign, we shall, by showing that it began in 1873, be proving that we are already in it. This calls to mind what we have already noted in the preceding volume, that the Scriptures indicate that the dawn of the Millennium, or Day of the Lord, will be dark and stormy, and full of trouble upon the world and upon the nominal church, though its earliest dawning light will be full of comfort and cheer to the saints, who draw their comfort and peace from the hope set before them in the gospel, which, as an anchor, enters beyond the time of trouble, and fastens in the precious promises of the Millennial sunrise and glory:— they see, beyond the time of trouble, the glorious reign and blessings promised.

The general condition of the world today, and the rapid development since 1873 of Socialism, Nihilism and Communism, whose avowed object is the overturning of the powers that be, and the redistribution of the wealth of the world, are certainly not out of harmony with what we should expect, however much, in some respects, these things may be deprecated by those who love law and order and peace. Only those who see that the coming anarchy and trouble are God's agencies for the establishment of a yet more complete law and order, and a more lasting peace, will be relieved from overwhelming fear as they pass through it.

Nor is this pointing out of the seventh epoch, or Millennium, the only value of chronology; for while we shall present several lines of prophecy entirely independent of chronology, it is the measure by which several lines of prophecy are established. The perfect agreement between these two classes of prophetic teaching, some dependent on, and some independent of, chronology, is very strong proof, not only of the correctness of those applications, but also of the correctness of the chronology which shows this harmony; on the same principle that a key which will unlock a treasure-casket difficult to open is evidently the true key. The chronology given below harmonizes the various prophetic statements relating to Christ's Kingdom and its establishment, by showing their relative order and time. Chronology is the stem or handle by which all the prophetic time-proofs, as notches or wards of the key, are held together and operated.

A CONDENSED STATEMENT OF CHRONOLOGY
TO THE YEAR A.M. 6000.

The following condensed statement of chronological periods may properly be termed Bible chronology, because the Bible record alone is followed down to the first year of Cyrus, B.C. 536, a date well authenticated and generally accepted by scholars. Here the thread of Bible chronology ends, a little beyond the period where secular history begins to be reliable. This, in itself, is a marked evidence of divine direction and oversight, in helping us only where we are unable to help ourselves.

As we consider particularly each of these periods, let the reader figure it out for himself, and see how firm a foundation for our faith is laid in God's Word. Two breaks in the historic narrative of the Old Testament we shall find, yet when we discover that in the New Testament God has provided bridges to span these two chasms, it should increase our confidence that God so arranged the record as to hide his times and seasons, until his due time for revealing them had come, just as he has done with other truths already noticed.

We will now examine the foregoing periods separately, in the order as named above, down to the reign of Cyrus. Have your Bible at hand and verify every quotation, that you may receive this as God's Word, not as man's.

This, too, is very simple and exact. But the next period is not so easily traced; for the direct line of chronology is broken, until after the exodus of Israel from Egypt. Hence we would be quite unable to proceed, were it not that Paul and Stephen, as the mouthpieces of the Spirit, furnish the connecting link.

THE PERIOD FROM THE COVENANT WITH ABRAHAM TO THE GIVING OF THE LAW.

Paul declares that the length of this period was four hundred and thirty years (Gal. 3: 17). The covenant included the promise of the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession, and though several times re-affirmed, to Abraham, to Isaac and to Jacob, it was always the same covenant (Gen. 12: 7, 8; 13: 14-18; 26: 3, 4; 35: 9-12; 46: 2-4; 50: 24). As shown by a comparison of Gen. 12: 1-5, 7 and Acts 7: 2-5, the covenant was made (according to previous promise) as soon as Abraham had fully complied with the conditions on which he was to receive it, i.e., as soon as he had entered Canaan, which he did immediately after the decease of his father, who died in Haran, on the way to Canaan. Having the date of the covenant, just after Terah's death, thus established by Stephen's statement, and having Paul's statement, that the Law was four hundred and thirty years after the covenant, the break in the Old Testament chronology is thus bridged by the New. But let us read the account carefully, and mark the particularity with which the bridge is constructed:

"Now the Lord had [previously, before he left Mesopotamia, or Ur of the Chaldees] said unto Abraham, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house [brethren, etc.], unto a land that I will show thee; and [if you do so] I will make of thee a great nation," etc. (Gen. 12: 1, 2; Acts 7: 2). This indicates that God had proposed the covenant to Abraham before Terah, his father, died, and before he came to dwell in Haran or Charran. But there was a stipulation which demanded Abraham's faith and obedience before the covenant should be actually made. This stipulation was that he must manifest faith in the promise that such a covenant would be made with him, by leaving his native country and kindred and going to the land to which he was directed. This Abraham did, and as his wife, his nephew Lot and his aged father shared his faith and desired to share his fortunes with him, they were permitted to do so, and the four started for the land of promise. His father Terah died on the way, in Haran, after which Abraham passed over into Canaan, that there he might secure and bind the covenant. As Stephen declared to Israel: "When his father was dead, he removed him into this land wherein ye now dwell." "So Abraham departed [from Haran] as the Lord had spoken unto him" (Acts 7: 4; Gen. 12: 4). And the covenant was made just after he entered the land (Gen. 12: 5-7). Thus we have the date of the covenant, and the beginning of the four hundred and thirty years, fixed as immediately following Terah's death, and the chain of chronology complete to the giving of the Law. The first feature of the Law was the Passover, which was instituted the same day that Israel left Egypt—Exod. 12: 41-43, 47, 50, 51.

In harmony with this we read: "Now the sojourning of the children of Israel who dwelt in Egypt was four hundred and thirty years; and it came to pass at the end of the four hundred and thirty years, even the self-same day it came to pass, that all the hosts of the Lord went out from the land of Egypt"—Exod. 12: 40-42, 51.

Some may suppose that the statements of Moses and Paul (Exod. 12: 40-42 and Gal. 3: 17) are not in harmony, the one affirming that the sojourning of Israel was four hundred and thirty years, and the other, that from the covenant with Abraham to the giving of the Law was four hundred and thirty years, reasoning that if only four hundred and thirty years elapsed between Abraham's coming into Canaan and the giving of the Law, the sojourn of the children of Israel in Egypt must have been much less. But it should be observed that the statement is not that Israel sojourned in Egypt four hundred and thirty years, but that the whole length of the sojourning of that people who for some time lived in Egypt lasted four hundred and thirty years: "Now the sojourning of the children of Israel who dwelt in Egypt was four hundred and thirty years." The sojourning referred to began when Abraham first came into Canaan (Heb. 11: 8, 9). Israel sojourned in Abraham and in Isaac and in Jacob, even as Levi paid tithes to Melchizedec, while yet in the loins of his father—Heb. 7: 9, 10.

The covenant with Abraham took effect from the time that, leaving Haran or Charran, he set foot in Canaan, the land of promise. From that time, he and all Israel in him, yet unborn, became heirs of the things promised, and sojourners, or pilgrims, waiting on God for the fulfillment of the promise. This sojourning had lasted four hundred and thirty years, to a day, when Israel left Egypt, and received that first feature of the Law, the institution of the Passover. The statements of Moses and Paul, therefore, refer to precisely the same period, thus giving most positive evidence that from the covenant with Abraham to the giving of the Law was four hundred and thirty years. Paul gave special emphasis to the fact that the Passover must be regarded as the beginning of the Law, which Moses also shows (Exod. 12: 42, 43, 47, 50), and Moses gave special emphasis to the exactness of the period, to a day.

Thus we have our third period established. When we mark the Lord's particularity to a day, in furnishing this link in the chain of chronology, it gives us confidence, especially when we consider that such exactness was probably of no special interest to the Church of the past, and was given for no other than the present use.

PERIOD FROM THE EXODUS TO THE DIVISION OF CANAAN AMONG THE TRIBES.

Israel's forty years, or day of temptation in the wilderness (Deut. 8: 2; Psa. 95: 8-10; Heb. 3: 8, 9), was followed by six years of war in Canaan, and dividing the land among the tribes. One year, one month and five days elapsed from their leaving Egypt to their leaving Sinai for Paran (Num. 33: 3; 10: 11-13). Afterward the spies were sent from Kadesh-barnea in the wilderness of Paran (Num. 13: 3-26; 32: 8-13). One of these, Caleb, when applying for his portion at the division of the land (Joshua 11: 23; 10: 42), said, "Forty years old was I when Moses the servant of the Lord sent me from Kadesh-barnea to espy out the land, and I brought him word again. ... And now, behold, the Lord hath kept me alive, as he said, these forty and five years, even since the Lord spake this word ... while Israel wandered in the wilderness; and now, lo, I am this day fourscore and five years old" (Josh. 14: 7, 10). Thus it will be seen that it was forty-five years from the spying of the land to its division among the tribes, as stated in Joshua, and a little over a year from the exodus to the sending of the spies, making forty-six years and a fraction* from the exodus to the division of the land. As the first forty years of this period were passed in the wilderness, as shown by many Scriptures, notably Acts 7: 36 and Heb. 3: 9, the remaining six to the division of the land were spent in Canaan, conquering and taking possession of it.

*We take account of only the full years, more accurate account being impossible. Sometimes the years are fractionally long; and some are short, as in the case of Zedekiah's reign. Zedekiah is said to have reigned eleven years (2 Chro. 36: 11; Jer. 52: 1); yet, from vs. 3 to 7 of the latter chapter, it is clear that his actual reign was ten years four months and nine days. We believe these fractional parts of years counterbalance themselves; and that the Lord has overruled and arranged the matter is our confidence, supported by the results deducible from it, and the accuracy to a day, even in large periods, already noted. As illustrating God's care and particularity in this matter, see Gen. 7: 11; 7: 13; Exod. 12: 40, 41.

THE PERIOD OF THE JUDGES.

We come now to the most difficult portion of chronology, from the division of the land to the anointing of Saul as king. It is usually termed the period of the Judges, though Judges did not fill the office continuously. The record given in the books of Judges and 1 Samuel gives nineteen periods, approximating a total of four hundred and fifty years; but they are disconnected, broken, lapped and tangled so much that we can arrive at no definite conclusion from them, and should be obliged to conclude as others have done, that nothing positive could be known on the subject, were it not that the New Testament supplies the lack. Paul states that after God divided their land to them by lot, "He gave unto them Judges about [during] the space of four hundred and fifty years, until Samuel the Prophet. Afterward they desired a king, and God gave unto them Saul"—Acts 13: 19-21.

The Greek word rendered about in the A.V. is hos, and has the significance of during, or while. The same writer uses the word in three other places where the A.V. translates it while, Acts 1: 10; 10: 17; Luke 24: 32. This passage would be better translated, "He gave unto them Judges during the space of four hundred and fifty years." The Syriac reads thus: "And for four hundred and fifty years he gave them Judges, until Samuel the Prophet," the last of the Judges.

The statement of the length of this period of the Judges, by the Apostle, we accept as a specially designed solution of the problem. In only two instances, the four hundred and thirty years from the Covenant to the Law, and this period of the Judges, is there any reasonable uncertainty about the Old Testament chronology, and both are clearly stated in the New. Can we suppose that this merely happened so? It is more reasonable to suppose that God hid the matter, by leaving the Old Testament record incomplete, and later supplied the lack in the New Testament, so that in due time, when attention should be called to it, those having sufficient interest to compare the accounts might find the missing links supplied in a way to teach dependence upon the Great Time-Keeper.

THE PERIOD OF THE KINGS.

Saul's reign was in or during the space of forty years following the last Judge, until David was anointed king, as shown above; and following him, the periods of the kings in the line of David are easily traced in Chronicles, thus:

THE SEVENTY YEARS OF DESOLATION.

This brings us to the period of the desolation of the land, which lasted seventy years, and was ended by the restoration of its people from Babylon, in the first year of Cyrus, B.C. 536 (2 Chr. 36: 20, 23), a date well established in secular history, and beyond which the line of Bible chronology does not extend.

PERIOD FROM THE RESTORATION TO A.D. 1873.

The period from the time of the restoration of the Jews from Babylon, at the close of the seventy years desolation of their land, in the first year of Cyrus, down to the date known as A.D. 1, is not covered by Bible history. But, as before stated, it is well established by secular history as a period of 536 years. Ptolemy, a learned Greek-Egyptian, a geometer and astronomer, has well established these figures. They are generally accepted by scholars, and known as Ptolemy's Canon.

Thus we have found a clear and connected line of chronology from creation to the beginning of the Christian era, in all a period of four thousand one hundred and twenty-eight (4128) years, which, together with eighteen hundred and seventy-two years of the Christian era, make six thousand years from creation to the year 1873.

THIS AND USHER'S CHRONOLOGY COMPARED.

It will be interesting to some to know wherein the above chronology differs from that inserted in the margin of the A.V., known as Usher's Chronology. The difference between the two, down to the time of the seventy years of desolation, is one hundred and twenty-four years. This difference is made up of four periods of 18, 4, 2 and 100 years—as follows:

Usher dates the seventy years desolation eighteen years earlier than shown above, i.e., before the dethronement of Zedekiah, Judah's last king, because the king of Babylon took many of the people captive at that time* (2 Chr. 36: 9, 10, 17; 2 Kings 24: 8-16). He evidently makes the not uncommon mistake of regarding those seventy years as the period of captivity, whereas the Lord expressly declares them to be seventy years of desolation of the land, that the land should lie desolate, without an inhabitant. Such was not the case prior to Zedekiah's dethronement (2 Kings 24: 14). But the desolation which followed Zedekiah's overthrow was complete; for, though some of the poor of the land were left to be vine-dressers and husbandmen (2 Kings 25: 12), shortly even these—all people, both small and great, fled to Egypt for fear of the Chaldees (V. 26). There can be no doubt here: and therefore in reckoning the time to the desolation of the land, all periods up to the close of Zedekiah's reign should be counted in, as we have done.

The four years difference is in the reign of Jehoram. Usher gives it as a reign of four years, while the Bible says it was eight years—2 Chr. 21: 5; 2 Kings 8: 17.

Of the two years difference, one year is found in the term of the reign of Ahaz, which Usher gives as fifteen, while the Bible says it was sixteen years (2 Chr. 28: 1; 2 Kings 16: 2). And the other is in the term of Jehoash, which Usher reckons as thirty-nine, while the Bible gives it as forty years—2 Kings 12: 1; 2 Chr. 24: 1.

These differences can be accounted for by supposing that Usher followed, or attempted to follow, Josephus, a Jewish historian whose dates are now generally recognized as reckless and faulty. We rely on the Bible alone, believing that God is his own interpreter.

Aside from these twenty-four years difference in the period of the Kings, there is another variance between the above Bible chronology and that of Usher, namely, one hundred years in the period of the Judges. Here Usher is misled by the evident error of 1 Kings 6: 1, which says that the fourth year of Solomon's reign was the four-hundred-and-eightieth year from the coming out of Egypt. It evidently should read the five-hundred-and-eightieth year, and was possibly an error in transcribing; for if to Solomon's four years we add David's forty, and Saul's space of forty, and the forty-six years from leaving Egypt to the division of the land, we have one hundred and thirty years, which deducted from four hundred and eighty would leave only three hundred and fifty years for the period of the Judges, instead of the four hundred and fifty years mentioned in the Book of Judges, and by Paul, as heretofore shown. The Hebrew character daleth (4) very much resembles the character hay (5), and it is supposed that in this way the error has occurred, possibly the mistake of a transcriber. 1 Kings 6:1, then, should read five hundred and eighty, and thus be in perfect harmony with the other statements.

Thus the Word of God corrects the few slight errors which have crept into it by any means.* And remember that those breaks occur in the period bridged effectually by the inspired testimony of the New Testament.

So, then, whereas Usher dates A.D. 1 as the year 4005 from the creation of Adam, it really was, as we have shown, the year 4129, according to the Bible record, thus

*A discrepancy will be noted in comparing 2 Chr. 36: 9 with 2 Kings 24: 8, the one giving eighteen and the other, evidently incorrect, giving eight years as the age of Jehoiachin, who reigned three months, did evil in the sight of the Lord, and was punished by captivity, etc. Such a mistake could easily occur, but God has so guarded his Word that the few errors of copyists are manifest, and the harmony of his Word gives ample foundation for faith.

showing the year 1872 A.D. to be the year of the world 6000, and 1873 A.D. the commencement of the seventh thousand-year period, the seventh millennium, or thousand-year day of earth's history.

Thus chronology as gathered from the Bible alone, from creation down to well authenticated secular history, is clear and strong, bearing evidence, too, of the peculiar methods of divine providence in its record, in its concealing and in its gradual unfolding in due time. And this, together with the reliable dates of the Christian era and the several centuries before it at hand, enables us to locate ourselves accurately on the stream of time. And we begin hopefully to lift up our heads and rejoice, as we realize that we are actually sweeping into the glorious age of the seventh millennium—even though we recognize that its beginning is to be dark and full of trouble, as foretold by the prophets, and that the storm-clouds are already gathering and growing darker.

THE DATE OF OUR LORD'S BIRTH.

In the sixth century the Church began to reckon time from the birth of our Lord, and fixed the date A.D. as it now stands; viz., 536 years after the first year of Cyrus, king of Persia.* Whether they placed it correctly or not does not affect the chronology as just given, which shows that the six thousand years from the creation of Adam ended with A.D. 1872; because it is eighteen hundred and seventy-two years since the year designated A.D., and the first year of Cyrus was five hundred and thirty-six years before that year (A.D.), whether it was the year of our Lord's birth or not.

*The year A.D. was fixed upon as early as the sixth century by Dionysius Exiguus, and other scholars of that period, though it did not come into general use until two centuries later.

We cannot, perhaps, explain this better than by the time-worn illustration of a line with a star upon it thus:

B.C. _____*_____ A.D. Let the line represent the six thousand years of earth's history from the creation of Adam to 1873 A.D.; and let the star represent the turning point between B.C. and A.D. To move that point either way would not alter the length of the entire period, though it would alter the names of the years. To move the A.D. point backward one year would make the B.C. period one year less, and the A.D. period one year more, but the sum of the B.C. and A.D. years would still be the same; for the amount taken from the one is always an addition to the other. Nevertheless, let us briefly examine the date of our Lord's birth, as it will be found useful in our subsequent studies.

It has become customary among scholars to concede our commonly accepted A.D. is incorrect to the amount of four years, that our Lord was born four years previous to the year designated A.D., i.e., in the year B.C. 4. And this theory has been followed by the publishers of the A.V. We cannot agree that B.C. 4 was the true date of our Lord's birth. On the contrary, we find that he was born only one year and three months before our common era, A.D., in October of B.C. 2.

The general reason with most of those who claim that A.D. should have been placed four years earlier correctly to mark the Savior's birth, is a desire to harmonize it with certain statements of the Jewish historian Josephus, relative to the length of the reign of Herod the Great. According to one of his statements, it would appear that Herod died three years before the year reckoned A.D. If this were true, it would certainly prove that our Lord was born in the year B.C. 4; for it was this Herod, that issued the decree for the slaying of the babes of Bethlehem, from whom the infant Jesus was delivered (Matt. 2: 14-16). But is this statement of Josephus reliable? Is it true that Herod died four years before the year A.D.? No. Josephus alone is not sufficient authority for such a decision, as he is known and admitted to be inaccurate in his record of dates.

But this notion has prevailed: the date B.C. 4 has been generally accepted, and historical events and dates have been somewhat bent to fit and support this theory. Among other supposed proofs that B.C. 4 was the proper date, was an eclipse of the moon said by Josephus to have occurred a short time before the death of Herod. All that is known of that eclipse is as follows: Herod had placed a large golden eagle over the gate of the Temple. Two notable Jews, named Matthias and Judas, persuaded some young men to pull it down. They did so, were arrested and executed. To make the matter clear, Josephus relates that there was at that time another Matthias, a high-priest, who was not concerned in the sedition. He then adds: "But Herod deprived this Matthias of his high-priesthood, and burnt the other Matthias who had raised the sedition, with his companions, alive, and that very night there was an eclipse of the moon." This is recorded as one of the last prominent acts of Herod, and is given a date which might correspond with B.C. 4 by Josephus, who marks the date by the eclipse mentioned.

Since at times as many as four eclipses of the moon occur in one year, evidently except under very peculiar circumstances the record of such an occurrence proves nothing. Where the time of the night, the time of the year and the amount of obscuration are all given, as has been done in several instances, the record is of great value in fixing dates; but in the case under consideration, there is nothing of the kind; hence nothing is proved by the record, so far as chronology is concerned. Josephus does mention a fast, as having been kept before the event, but what fast, or how long before, is not stated.

As it happens, there was only one eclipse of the moon in B.C. 4, while in B.C. 1 there were three. The eclipse of B.C. 4 was only partial, six digits, or only one-half of the moon being obscured, while all three in B.C. 1 were total eclipses, and of course for a longer time, causing the event to be much more noticeable. Hence if the eclipse theory has any weight it certainly is not in favor of the earlier date, B.C. 4.

Unfortunately, the time of Herod's death is not given by a reliable historian. Josephus gives some important periods in his history and the dates of some events, but these dates are not trustworthy. Some of them would teach that Herod died B.C. 4, but others cannot be reconciled with that date. For instance, his death is said to have been at the age of seventy. He was made governor of Galilee B.C. 47, at which time Josephus says he was twenty-five years of age (Ant. 149: 2). This would date his birth B.C. 72 (47 plus 25). His death at seventy would then be B.C. 2 instead of B.C. 4.

In this connection it is well to note the conflict of opinion among learned men, relative to the exact date of Herod's death, that thus it may be apparent that there is no well founded reason for accepting B.C. 4 as the only date in harmony with Matt. 2: 14-16. Faussetts' Bible Encyclopaedia gives Herod's age when made governor at about twenty years. This would make his death, at seventy, A.D. 2. Chambers' Cyclopaedia and Smith's Bible Dictionary give his age at that time as fifteen years, which would place his death A.D. 7. Appleton's Cyclopaedia, Chronology, says: "Josephus also gives dates, but he is altogether too careless to be taken into account."

We now proceed to offer the Bible evidence relating to this subject, which more nearly agrees with the common era, and shows our Lord's birth occurred only one year and three months prior to A.D. 1. It is as follows:

Our Lord's ministry lasted three and a half years. The sixty-nine symbolic weeks of years (Dan. 9: 24-27) reached to his baptism and anointing as Messiah, and there the last or seventieth week (seven years) of Israel's favor began. He was cut off [in death] in the middle of that seventieth week—three and a half years from the beginning of his ministry. He was crucified, we know, at the time of the Passover, about April 1, whatever the year. The three and a half years of his ministry, which ended in April, must consequently have begun about October, whatever the year. And October of some year must have been the true month of his birth, because he delayed not to begin his ministry as soon as he was thirty, and could not, according to the Law (under which he was born and which he obeyed), begin before he was thirty. As we read, "Now when Jesus began to be about thirty years of age he cometh," etc.

John the Baptist was six months older than our Lord (Luke 1: 26, 36), hence he was of age (thirty years, according to the Law, Num. 4: 3; Luke 3: 23, etc.) and began to preach six months before our Lord became of age and began his ministry. The date of the beginning of John's ministry is clearly stated to have been the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar, the third emperor of Rome (Luke 3: 1). This is a clearly fixed date of which there can be no reasonable doubt. Tiberius became emperor at the death of Augustus Caesar, in the year of Rome 767, which was the year A.D. 14.

But those misled by the inaccurate statements of Josephus relative to Herod, and who place the birth of Jesus at B.C. 4, in order to harmonize with him, run across a difficulty in this clearly stated date given by Luke, and endeavor to make it also harmonize with their B.C. 4 theory. To accomplish this end they make the claim that Tiberius began to exercise authority some three or four years before Augustus died, and before he was fully constituted emperor. They claim that possibly his rule might have been reckoned from that date.

But such suppositions will be found baseless, by any who will investigate the matter on the pages of history. It is true that Tiberius was exalted to a very important position by Augustus, but it was not four years before Augustus' death, as their theory would demand, but ten years before, in A.D. 4. But the power then conferred upon him was only such as had been enjoyed by others before his day. It was in no sense of the word imperial power, and in no sense of the word can his "reign" be said to have begun there: he was only the heir-apparent. Even in the most exaggerated use of language, his "reign" could not be said to have commenced before Augustus' death and his own investiture in office at the hands of the Roman Senate, A.D. 14.

History says, "The Emperor, whose declining age needed an associate, adopted Tiberius A.D. 4, renewing his tribunian power."—TIBERIUS, Rees' Cyclopaedia.

"He [Augustus] determined accordingly to devolve upon him [Tiberius] a share in the government. ... This formal investiture placed him on the same footing as that enjoyed by the veteran Agrippa during his later years, and there can be no doubt that it was universally regarded as an introduction to the first place in the empire. ... The programme for the succession was significantly shadowed out: Tiberius had been ordered to assume his place at the head of the Senate, the people, and the army." The adoption, which took place at the same time, is dated June 27, A. U. C. 757, A.D. 4—Merivale's History of the Romans, Vol. IV., 220, 221.

Thus there is conclusive proof that the first year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar was not three or four years before Augustus died; and that the honors referred to as conferred during Augustus' reign were conferred ten, and not four, years before Augustus' death, and then were in no sense imperial honors.

We may, therefore, consider the date of Luke 3: 1 not merely the only one furnished in the New Testament, but an unequivocal one. There can be no doubt about it in the minds of any who have investigated it. Tiberius began to reign in A.D. 14. The fifteenth year of his reign, would therefore be the year A.D. 29, in which year, Luke states (3: 1-3), John began his ministry. Since our Lord's thirtieth birthday and the beginning of his ministry were in October, and since John's birthday and the beginning of his ministry were just six months earlier, it follows that John began his ministry in the spring, about April, just as soon as he was of age; for God's plans are always carried out on exact time. So, then, John was thirty years old in A.D. 29, about April first, consequently he was born B.C. 2*, about April first. And Jesus' birth, six months later, must have been B.C. 2, about October first.

Again, there is clear, strong evidence that Jesus was crucified on Friday, April 3rd, A.D. 33. The fact that his crucifixion occurred at the close of the fourteenth day of the month Nisan, and that this date rarely falls on Friday, but did so in the year A.D. 33, substantiates that date so thoroughly that even Usher, who adopted B.C. 4 as the date of Jesus' birth, was forced to admit that his crucifixion was A.D. 33. Compare Usher's dates in the margin of the common version Bible at Luke 2: 21 and Matt. 2: 1 with those at Matthew 27 and Luke 23. The date of the crucifixion being A.D. 33, it follows that if Jesus had been born B.C. 4, he would have been 36 years old when he died; and his ministry from his thirtieth to his thirty-sixth year would have been six years. But it is clear that our Lord's ministry was three and a half years only. And this generally conceded fact is proved by Daniel's prophecy concerning Messiah's cutting off in the middle of the seventieth week of Israel's favor.

Thus, it is again proven that Jesus' birth was about one year and three months before our common era, A.D. 1; for, his ministry ending when he was thirty-three and a half years old, April 3, 33, the date of his birth may be readily found by measuring backward to a date thirty-three and a half years prior to April 3, 33. Thirty-two years and three months before April 33 would be January 3, A.D. 1, and one year and three months further back would bring us to October 3, B.C. 2, as the date of our Lord's birth at Bethlehem. The difference between lunar time, used by the Jews, and solar time, now in common use, would be a few days, so that we could not be certain that the exact day might not be in September about the 27th, but October 1, B.C. 2, is about correct. Nine months back of that date would bring us to about Christmas time, B.C. 3, as the date at which our Lord laid aside the glory which he had with the Father before the world was made and the taking of or changing to human nature began. It seems probable that this was the origin of the celebration of December 25th as Christmas Day. Some writers on Church history claim, even, that Christmas Day was originally celebrated as the date of the annunciation by Gabriel to the virgin Mary (Luke 1: 26). Certain it is that a midwinter date does not well agree with the declaration of Scripture, that at the time of our Lord's birth the shepherds were in the fields with their flocks.

[See Note 1 in the Appendix.]

"Lift up your heads, desponding pilgrims;
Give to the winds your needless fears;
He who has died on Calvary's mountain
Soon is to reign a thousand years.

"A thousand years! earth's coming glory—
'Tis the glad day so long foretold:
'Tis the bright morn of Zion's glory,
Prophets foresaw in times of old.

"Tell the whole world these blessed tidings;
Speak of the time of rest that nears;
Tell the oppressed of every nation,
Jubilee lasts a thousand years.

"What if the clouds do for a moment
Hide the blue sky where morn appears?
Soon the glad sun of promise given Rises to shine a thousand years."

STUDY III.

THE FULFILMENT OF TIME-PROPHECY AT THE FIRST ADVENT OF CHRIST.

Dan. 9: 23-27.

THE SEVENTY WEEKS OF DANIEL'S PROPHECY. EVENTS FORETOLD TO TRANSPIRE WITHIN THAT TIME. THE TIME OF MESSIAH'S ADVENT INDICATED, AND A PRINCIPLE ESTABLISHED BY THE MANNER IN WHICH IT IS INDICATED. A KEY TO OTHER TIME-PROPHECIES. THE TIME OF MESSIAH'S CRUCIFIXION INDICATED. THE SPECIAL FAVOR TO ISRAEL AS A NATION CUT SHORT IN RIGHTEOUSNESS, BUT CONTINUED INDIVIDUALLY. ANOINTING THE MOST HOLY. TROUBLE Poured UPON THE DESOLATE ONE.

"UNDERSTAND the matter, and consider the vision. Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most holy. Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem, unto the Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks [7 and 60 and 2 = 69 weeks]: the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times.

"And after threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off, but not for himself. (And the people of the prince that shall come [the Roman prince—Titus' army] shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined.) And he [Messiah] shall confirm the covenant with many for one week [the seventieth, or last week of the covenant of favor]. And in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, and for [or because of] the overspreading of abominations, he [Messiah] shall make it desolate—even until the consummation [or completion] and that [which is] determined [in God's plan] shall be poured upon the desolate" [people—represented by Jerusalem]—Dan. 9: 23-27.

While this prophecy marks the beginning of the harvest of the Jewish age and our Lord's presence there as the chief reaper, there are several prophecies which much more clearly mark the beginning of the harvest of the Gospel age, in which our Lord is, at his second advent, to be the chief reaper. The fulfillment of this prophecy illustrates prophetic fulfillments in general, and establishes a point marked in another prophecy, yet to be shown.

While many prophecies combine to fix and confirm the date of the second coming of Christ, this one alone marked the date of the first advent. If its fulfillment is clearly established, it will aid us in calculating and judging of those relating to the second advent. For this reason we here give place to this fulfilled prophecy, as well as because some of the dates established in this will be needful to be understood in connection with prophecies relating to the second advent, considered farther along.

Daniel had been shown many visions, as recorded in chapters 2, 4, 7 and 8 of his prophecy, all of which showed great prosperity and exaltation to heathen or gentile kingdoms; but his special interest was in Israel. He had not been informed concerning Israel's future; but he knew, from Jeremiah's prophecy (Jer. 29: 10; 2 Chr. 36: 20-23), that the desolation of Judea would continue seventy years; and knowing that period to be nearly complete (Dan. 9: 2), he prayed earnestly for the return of God's favor to Israel (vs. 17-19), and the foregoing was God's answer to him through an angel.

The marked off (cut off, or determined) period of Israel's history here shown is seventy weeks from a given starting point, from the going forth of a decree "to restore and to build Jerusalem" (Mark! not the Temple). During the period great things were to be accomplished: The city would be rebuilt under unfavorable circumstances (Neh. 4), in troublous times; sin would be finished by a reconciliation made for iniquity; and righteousness (justification) would be established—not like that accomplished year by year with the blood of bulls and goats, but the true and everlasting righteousness, brought about by the sacrifice of Christ. Daniel was also informed that he who would introduce the better sacrifice would thereby cause the typical sacrifices to cease.

In this period, Messiah, the long-looked-for Savior of Israel, would come, and seven weeks and threescore and two weeks, or sixty-nine weeks, are stated as the measure of the time to Messiah's presence. And after that he would be cut off, but not for himself. There would therefore remain, after Messiah's coming, one week, the last, the seventieth of this promised favor; and in the midst or middle of that week it was foretold that he would cause the typical sacrifices to cease, by making his soul an offering for sin—Isa. 53: 10-12.

These seventy weeks, or four hundred and ninety days, represented four hundred and ninety years, each symbolic day representing a year. Being so fulfilled in this, the only time-prophecy directly relating to the first advent, it furnishes a key to some other prophecies that will hereafter be shown to have been thus hidden in symbolic numbers, a day for a year, until their due time had come for solution. This prophecy was so worded that Daniel and other Jews might, if they chose, think it incredible, and in time forget it; or it might be remembered by those who waited for the consolation of Israel, and who might infer the time to be symbolic, as in the case of Ezekiel (4: 6). Certain it is that faithful ones knew to expect Messiah; and it is even written that all men were in expectation of him (Luke 3: 15), even if they were not all able to receive him in the way he came.

It should be noticed that the sixty-nine symbolic weeks, or four hundred and eighty-three years, reach unto Messiah the Prince, and not to the birth of Jesus in Bethlehem. The Hebrew word Messiah, corresponding to the Greek word Christ, means Anointed, and is a title rather than a name. Jesus was not the Anointed, the Messiah, the Christ, until after his baptism. Compare Acts 10: 37, 38 and Matt. 3: 16. He was anointed with the holy Spirit immediately on coming out of the water. This was when he had attained manhood's estate, which was at thirty years according to the Law, under which he was born, and to which he and every Jew was subject until he ended its dominion by fulfilling its conditions, nailing it to his cross. Therefore the sixty-nine weeks of this prophecy reach to his baptism and anointing, from which time, and not before, he was the Messiah, the Christ, the Anointed. Hence the sixty-nine weeks, or four hundred and eighty-three years, ended in the autumn of A.D. 29. And there that portion of the prophecy was fulfilled which says: "From the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem (Dan. 9: 25), unto Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks and three-score and two [sixty-nine] weeks." Beginning there, we find the seventieth week fulfilled like the rest, a year for a day.

Most writers on this subject have commenced to count this period from the seventh year of Artaxerxes, when a commission was given Ezra (Ezra 7: 7-14), supposed to be the enforcement of the decree of Cyrus (Ezra 1: 3;

5: 13; 6: 1-12). But it should be noted that Cyrus' order was to build the house of the Lord, the Temple and its court wall. But there was another decree granted to Nehemiah in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem, which at that time were still unrepaired (Neh. 2: 3-8; 6:15; 7: 1). And it is from this decree to restore and to build Jerusalem that this prophecy of Daniel should be dated. The entire account harmonizes with this, there being but one seeming objection, in a prophecy concerning it by Isaiah, which said of Cyrus, not only, "He shall let go my captives," but also, "He shall build my city," (Isa. 45: 13). This apparent objection we answer thus: The word here translated city is ir, and signifies a walled place. We understand the court walls of the Temple to be referred to here; and with this the facts above referred to agree. The same word ir is rendered court in 2 Kings 20: 4.

The date of Nehemiah's commission is ordinarily stated to be B.C. 445. But Dr. Dale's work on chronology (449 and 531) and Dr. Priestlie's treatise on the "Harmony of the Evangelists" (24-38) show this common view to be nine years short, which would give B.C. 454 as the true date of Nehemiah's commission; and with this date Daniel's prediction (9: 25), concerning the decree to restore and to build Jerusalem, agrees.

Since sixty-nine weeks (7 and 62), or four hundred and eighty-three years, reach unto Messiah the Prince, therefore from this period of sixty-nine symbolic weeks, or four hundred and eighty-three (483) years, we deduct four hundred and fifty-four (454) years B.C. as the true date of the decree to restore and to build Jerusalem; and the remainder, 29 A.D., should be the year in which the Anointed (Messiah) would be manifested. This is in exact accord with what we have already shown: that Jesus was baptized by John and received the anointing of the Spirit about October 3, 29, at which time he was thirty years of age, according to the true date of his birth as shown in the preceding chapter.

Our Lord's ministry covered three and a half years, ending with his crucifixion, at the time of the Passover, in the spring of A.D. 33. In this he exactly fulfilled the prophecy concerning the remaining or last week (seven years) of promised favor, which says: "After (7 and 62) sixty-nine weeks shall Messiah be cut off [Douay translation, "be slain"] but not for himself, "in the midst of the week [remaining, the 70th] he shall cause the sacrifice and oblation to cease.*"

The sacrifices which were offered according to the Law there ceased; not that animals, incense, etc., were not offered thereafter by the priests, for they continued to be offered year by year, but that they were not accepted by Jehovah, and were in no sense sacrifices for sin. The true sacrifice having come, our Lord Jesus having "put away sin by the sacrifice of himself" (Heb. 9: 26), Jehovah could no longer recognize other offerings as sacrifices, nor any necessity for them.

There, at the cross, Messiah, who had been sacrificing himself for three and a half years, finished the work (John 19: 30) and thus made an end of sin, made full and complete reconciliation toward God for the iniquity of men, thus bringing to all mankind an everlasting justification from sin, instead of the typical yearly justification, accomplished for the typical people, Israel. The death of Messiah was also the seal, the guarantee of the fulfillment, of all the visions and prophecies of coming blessings, and

*This expression, "not for himself," is variously rendered in other translations, several of which are before us; but in our opinion this, of the A.V., is the clearest and best rendering.

"times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3: 21). Those promises, both the Abrahamic Covenant and the New Covenant, were secured, made sure, with his own precious blood (Luke 22: 20; 1 Cor. 11: 25), that speaks better things for us than the blood of bulls and goats, even everlasting justification and putting away of sin, to all those who receive him. And in the remainder or latter half of this seventieth or last week of Jewish favor, the three and a half years, beginning with Pentecost, his followers, the most holy of that nation, were anointed with the holy spirit of God, as Jesus had been at the end of the sixty-ninth week.

Thus were fulfilled the statements of v. 24 of this prophecy: Seventy weeks are determined [set apart] upon thy people, and upon thy holy city (a) to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness; (b) and to seal up the vision and prophecy; (c) and to anoint the most holy. The prophecy did not show that this work would be deferred until the last week, when Messiah would be present; and doubtless they understood it to imply great moral reform on their part which would prepare them for Messiah, and the anointing under him of their nation as the most holy people, to bless the world in general. They had not learned by centuries of experience that they were powerless to put away sin and make reconciliation for iniquity, and that it would require a perfect sacrifice to accomplish this great work of blotting out sin and justifying the condemned.

On the other hand, Daniel's prophecy, while showing that Messiah would be cut off [die] in the midst of the last week, did not show that the mass of his people would be unholy and therefore cast off, as they were, in the midst of that week (Matt. 23: 38). Another prophet had said, He shall finish the work and cut it short in righteousness [justly]; and all was finished in the half-week (three and a half years) of Jesus' ministry, except the anointing of the most holy.

But what of the balance of the seventieth week, the three and a half years of it which extended beyond the cross? Did Jehovah promise to set aside seventy weeks of favor upon Israel, and really give them but sixty-nine and a half? At first glance it has this appearance, especially when we recall that it was just five days before his death in the midst of the week that Jesus wept over their city and gave them up, saying, Your house is left unto you desolate. But not so: Jehovah knew the end from the beginning; and when he promised seventy weeks, he meant it. Hence we must look for favor upon that people for three and a half years after the crucifixion, notwithstanding they were then left desolate nationally.

That the Israelites as a nation were not fit to be the recipients of the chief or spiritual favor (nor of the earthly favor either) was demonstrated by their rejection of Messiah, as God had foreseen and foretold; hence it was profitless to them to continue their national testing beyond the midst of their seventieth week, and it was cut short there, when they were left desolate, rejected from favor. During the remaining portion (three and a half years) of their period, the favor was increased, though confined to the remnant, the most holy, the purest or fittest, whom alone it could benefit (Isa. 10: 22, 23; Rom. 9: 28). The increase of favor consisted in the fact that it gave to that remnant three and a half years of exclusive attention and ministrations, under the increased advantages of the spirit dispensation, which, beginning with the disciples at Pentecost, reached probably all the ripe wheat of that nation, during that period of special favor. See Acts 2: 41 and 4: 4 for the results of the first few days.

It was for this reason that, though Jesus had tasted death for all, and the Gospel was to be proclaimed to all, yet his instructions to his disciples were, that they begin at Jerusalem. Nor were they to leave that special work, or offer the favor of the new dispensation to any others, until the three and a half years of promised favor to Israel were fulfilled, until God specially sent it to the Gentiles as well as to the Jews—Acts 10.

The exact date of the conversion of Cornelius, chronologers can only guess at; and hence it is variously estimated as having occurred from 37 to 40; but in view of this marked prophecy that we are now considering, we doubt not that it was in the autumn of 36; for there the seventy weeks, or four hundred and ninety years, of favor upon Israel ended. Since their exclusive favor ended there, most appropriately should it be marked by sending the gospel to the Gentiles. Israelites were not deprived of the gospel after that, but were treated the same as the Gentiles, though prejudice no doubt placed the remainder in a less favorable position. The most holy being already chosen out, the gospel was no longer confined to them exclusively, but was open to every creature having an ear to hear.

After the seventy weeks came the distress and trouble mentioned in the latter clauses of vs. 26 and 27. The Roman prince came, and did destroy the city and the Temple, and, like a flood, he left behind him terrible waste and destruction. And Messiah, whom they rejected, has permitted various evils to befall that people since, and will continue to permit them until the consummation, until they shall have had enough, until he shall say, "Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her that her appointed time is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned."

(Isa. 40: 2). Meantime that that is determined shall be poured upon that desolate one (or cast off people) till her cup be full of sorrow—until that day when they shall say, "Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." That day of Israel's deliverance is now dawning, thank God; and though their desolation and distress are not yet at an end, each hour hastens the time when their prejudice-blinded minds shall see out of obscurity him whom they have pierced, and when they shall mourn for him as one mourneth for his only son—Zech. 12: 10.

Since many, in reading the passage here examined, have fallen into great confusion and error through a failure to understand rightly the arrangement of the Prophet's words, confounding Messiah the Prince with the Roman prince, etc., we suggest a careful study of the passage as arranged at the beginning of this chapter, noting the parenthesis and the explanatory remarks in brackets.

STUDY IV.

THE TIMES OF THE GENTILES.

WHAT ARE GENTILE TIMES? THEIR BEGINNING; THEIR LENGTH; THEIR END A.D. 1914. ATTENDANT EVENTS. EVENTS TO FOLLOW. LITERAL AND SYMBOLIC TIME. A REMARKABLE TYPE. PRESENT INDICATIONS. GOD'S KINGDOM TO OVERTHROW GENTILE RULE. THEREFORE ORGANIZED BEFORE IT ENDS. BEFORE A.D. 1914. WHY OPPOSED BY GENTILE KINGDOMS. HOW AND WHY ALL WILL FINALLY ACCEPT IT JOYFULLY. "THE DESIRE OF ALL NATIONS SHALL COME."

[Since the topic considered in this chapter is very closely related to that of chapter xiii, of Vol. I., the reader will be greatly assisted by a review of that chapter before commencing this.]

"JERUSALEM shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled"—Luke 21: 24.

The term Times of the Gentiles was applied by our Lord to that interval of earth's history between the removal of the typical Kingdom of God, the Kingdom of Israel (Ezek. 21: 25-27), and the introduction and establishment of its antitype, the true Kingdom of God, when Christ comes to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe in that day.*

During this interval, the dominion of earth was to be exercised by Gentile governments; and Israel, both fleshly and spiritual, have been and are to be subject to these powers until their time is expired. While God does not approve of nor commend these governments, he recognizes their dominion. In other words, he has for wise ends permitted their dominion for an appointed time.

The dominion of earth was originally given to Adam, to subdue and possess and rule it in righteousness (Gen.

*[Strictly speaking, The Times of the Gentiles are the period during which God leased earth's dominion to the non-Jewish nations.]

1: 28). Adam failed, and the dominion forfeited by sin was taken from him. Angels were next permitted to have control; but instead of lifting up the fallen race, some of them kept not their first estate, but fell into transgression. After the flood, God declared to Abraham his purpose to bring the needed help for the sinful, dying race through his posterity, by raising up from among them a deliverer, ruler and teacher, saying, In thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed.

This was the earliest suggestion of a national, universal dominion over earth. And this suggestion, coming from God, implied a special fitness, a peculiar superiority of this ruler over and above all others, and that it would be to the advantage of all mankind to be subject to such a ruler. That this promise to Abraham filled the hearts and minds of his posterity, Israel, and was well known by their relatives, the Moabites and Edomites, there can be no doubt. That such a national hope would become known to other nations is probable; and, if known, we cannot doubt that pride would beget in them the desire to be the chief nation, and to have universal dominion, as being in every way as able and as fit to rule, and teach, and thus bless the nations, as any of Abraham's posterity.

Israel's hope of attaining universal dominion, not by the choice of the nations to have it so, but by God's choice and power manifested in their favor, seems to have spread to other nations also. At all events, we find that these Gentile kings and peoples accepted their dominions as favors from the gods whom they worshiped. And the same thought still clings to every petty ruler and prince, and to the more powerful kings and emperors. No matter how weak mentally or physically, and no matter how vicious and unfit to rule themselves or others, they possess to an almost insane degree the idea that God specially chose them and their families to rule over and bless (?) all the earth. This theory, accepted by the masses of the people, is blazoned forth on medals, coins and papers of state in the words, King—— by the grace of God.

Thus, while Israel was waiting and hoping for the promised dominion of earth, and often supposed they were just within reach of its realization, particularly under kings David and Solomon, the desire for universal empire became general among other nations. And when God was about to remove the crown from Israel until the true seed of promise should come to take the dominion, he determined to let the Gentile kingdoms take control and try the experiment of ruling the world, that thus the world might also learn the futility of its own efforts at self-government while in its present sinful condition. As he had given the dominion forfeited by Adam to the angels, to demonstrate their inability to rule and bless the world, so he now delivered that dominion over to the Gentiles, to let them try their various methods, unaided by him. These various experiments God permits, as so many valuable and necessary lessons, filling the intervening time until the Lord's Anointed, whose right it is, shall come and take the dominion and accomplish all his purposes.

Since Israel after the flesh was typical of spiritual Israel, the Gospel Church, which is also called in this higher sense "a royal priesthood and holy nation" (1 Pet. 2: 9), and which in due time is to rule and bless all nations, so their kingdom was typical in some respects of the Kingdom of Christ. Consequently, when God's time came to turn over the dominion of earth to Gentiles, it was appropriate that he should first remove the typical crown from Israel, and that the typical kingdom should no longer be recognized. This he did, declaring that they had proven themselves unfit for exaltation to universal dominion, having become corrupt, vain and idolatrous, in proportion as they had attained national distinction. This was in the days of King Zedekiah; and the divine decree was expressed in the words of the prophet: "Thus saith the Lord God, remove the diadem and take off the crown: this shall not be the same: exalt him that is low and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn it; and it shall be no more until he come whose right it is, and I will give it him"—Ez. 21: 24-27.

This overturning of the crown, or dominion, has been accomplished. It was first turned over to Babylon, then to Medo-Persia, then to Grecia, and then to Rome. The character of these empires, as recorded on the pages of history, we have found to agree perfectly with the prophetic descriptions, as portrayed in Nebuchadnezzar's vision of the great image and in Daniel's vision of the four beasts. This overturned condition of Israel's dominion was to continue until Christ, the rightful heir to the throne of Israel and all the earth, who purchased it with his own precious blood, would come and take control. His, as we have seen, will be the fifth universal empire of earth, the Kingdom of God under the whole heavens. But unlike the preceding four dominions which were permitted for an appointed time, and therefore recognized, though not approvingly, this one will be approved and established by God, as his representative in the earth. It will be God's Kingdom, the Kingdom of Jehovah's Anointed. It will be established gradually, during a great time of trouble with which the Gospel age will close, and in the midst of which present dominions shall be utterly consumed, passing away amid great confusion.

In this chapter we present the Bible evidence proving that the full end of the times of the Gentiles, i.e., the full end of their lease of dominion, will be reached in A.D.

1914; and that that date will see the disintegration of the rule of imperfect men. And be it observed, that if this is shown to be a fact firmly established by the Scriptures, it will prove:

Firstly, That at that date the Kingdom of God, for which our Lord taught us to pray, saying, Thy Kingdom come, will begin to assume control, and that it will then shortly be set up, firmly established, in the earth, on the ruins of present institutions.

Secondly, That he whose right it is thus to take the dominion will then be present as earth's new Ruler; and not only so, but that he will be present for a considerable period before that date; because the overthrow of these Gentile governments is directly caused by his dashing them to pieces as a potter's vessel (Psa. 2: 9; Rev. 2: 27), and establishing in their stead his own government.

Thirdly, That some time before the end of the overthrow the last member of the divinely recognized Church of Christ, the "royal priesthood," "the body of Christ," will be glorified with the Head; because every member is to reign with Christ, being a joint-heir with him of the Kingdom, and it cannot be fully "set up" without every member.

Fourthly, That from that time forward Jerusalem shall no longer be trodden down of the Gentiles, but shall arise from the dust of divine disfavor, to honor; because the Times of the Gentiles will be fulfilled or completed.

Fifthly, That by that date, or sooner, Israel's blindness will begin to be turned away; because their "blindness in part" was to continue only "until the fullness of the Gentiles be come in" (Rom. 11: 25), or, in other words, until the full number from among the Gentiles, who are to be members of the body or bride of Christ, would be probationarily selected.

Sixthly, That the great "time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation," will reach its culmination in world-wide anarchy; and then men will learn to be still, and to know that Jehovah is God and that he will be exalted in the earth (Ps. 46: 10). The condition of things spoken of in symbolic language as raging waves of the sea, melting earth, falling mountains and burning heavens will then pass away, and the "new heavens and new earth" with their peaceful blessings will begin to be recognized by trouble-tossed humanity. But the Lord's Anointed and his rightful and righteous authority will first be recognized by a company of God's children while passing through the great tribulation—the class represented by m and t on the Chart of the Ages, Vol. 1, 235 to 239; afterward, just at its close, by fleshly Israel; and ultimately by mankind in general.

Seventhly, It will prove that before that date God's Kingdom, organized in power, will be in the earth and then smite and crush the Gentile image (Dan. 2: 34)—and fully consume the power of these kings. Its own power and dominion will be established as fast as by its varied influences and agencies it crushes and scatters the powers that be, civil and ecclesiastical, iron and clay.

THE BEGINNING OF GENTILE TIMES, 606 B.C.

Our Lord's words, "until the *times of the Gentiles be fulfilled," imply that the times of the Gentiles must have a definitely appointed limit; because an unlimited, indefinite period could not be said to be fulfilled. So, then, Gentile rule had a beginning, will last for a fixed time, and will end at the time appointed.

*The Greek word here rendered times is kairos, which means a fixed time. The same word is translated times in the following passages: Mark 1: 15; 1 Tim. 6: 15; Rev. 12: 14; Acts 3: 19; 17: 26, The word seasons in Acts 1: 7 is from this Greek word.

The beginning of these Gentile Times is clearly located by the Scriptures. Hence, if they furnish us the length also of the fixed period, or lease of Gentile dominion, we can know positively just when it will terminate. The Bible does furnish this fixed period, which must be fulfilled; but it was furnished in such a way that it could not be understood when written, nor until the lapse of time and the events of history had shed their light upon it; and even then, only by those who were watching and who were not overcharged by the cares of the world.

The Bible evidence is clear and strong that the "Times of the Gentiles" is a period of 2520 years from the year B.C. 606 to and including A.D. 1914. This lease of universal dominion to Gentile governments, as we have already seen, began with Nebuchadnezzar—not when his reign began, but when the typical kingdom of the Lord passed away, and the dominion of the whole world was left in the hands of the Gentiles. The date for the beginning of the Gentile Times is, therefore, definitely marked as at the time of the removal of the crown of God's typical kingdom, from Zedekiah, their last king.

According to the words of the prophet (Ezek. 21: 25-27), the crown was taken from Zedekiah; and Jerusalem was besieged by Nebuchadnezzar and laid in ruins, and so remained for seventy years, until the restoration in the first year of Cyrus (2 Chr. 36: 21-23). Though Jerusalem was then rebuilt, and the captives returned, Israel has never had another king from that to the present day. Though restored to their land and to personal liberty by Cyrus, they, as a nation, were subject successively to the Persians, Grecians and Romans. Under the yoke of the latter they were living when our Lord's first advent occurred, Pilate and Herod being deputies of Caesar.

With these facts before us, we readily find the date for the beginning of the Gentile Times; for the first year of the reign of Cyrus is a very clearly fixed date, both secular and religious histories with marked unanimity agreeing with Ptolemy's Canon, which places it B.C. 536. And if B.C. 536 was the year in which the seventy years of Jerusalem's desolation ended and the restoration of the Jews began, it follows that their kingdom was overthrown just seventy years before B.C. 536, i.e., 536 plus 70, or B.C. 606. This gives us the date of the beginning of the Times of the Gentiles, B.C. 606.

Recognizing God's lease of power to these worldly or Gentile governments, we know, not only that they will fail, and be overthrown, and be succeeded by the Kingdom of Christ when their times expire, but also that God will not take the dominion from them, to give it to his Anointed, until that lease expires, "until the Times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Consequently, we are guarded right here against the idea into which Papacy has led the world, that the Kingdom of God was set up at Pentecost, and more fully established when, as it is claimed, the Roman empire was converted to Christianity (to Papacy), and it attained both temporal and spiritual empire in the world. We see from this prophecy of the Times of the Gentiles that this claim made by the church of Rome, and more or less endorsed by Protestants, is false. We see that those nations which both Papacy and Protestantism designate Christian Nations, and whose dominions they call Christendom, Christ's Kingdom, are not such. They are kingdoms of this world, and until their times are fulfilled Christ's Kingdom cannot take the control, though it will be organizing and preparing to do so in the few years which close the Gentile Times, while these kingdoms will be trembling and disintegrating into anarchy.

During the Gospel age, the Kingdom of Christ has existed only in its incipient stage, in its humiliation, without power or privilege of reigning, without the crown, possessing only the scepter of promise: unrecognized by the world, and subject to the powers that be, the Gentile kingdoms. The heirs of the heavenly kingdom must so continue, until the time appointed for them to reign together with Christ. During the time of trouble, closing this age, they will be exalted to power, but their reign of righteousness over the world could not precede A.D. 1914, when the Times of the Gentiles have expired. Therefore it is the duty of the Church to await patiently the appointed time for its triumph and glorious reign; to keep separate from the kingdoms of this world as strangers, pilgrims and foreigners; and, as heirs of the Kingdom to come, to let their hopes and ambitions center in it. Christians should recognize the character of these kingdoms, and, while they keep separate from them, should render to them due respect and obedience, because God has permitted them to rule. Paul teaches, Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers; for there is no power but of God—Rom. 13: 1.

Nor can fleshly Israel come into their long promised inheritance until that time, though preparatory steps will previously be taken; for God will not fully establish either the earthly or the spiritual phase of his Kingdom until this lease to the Gentiles expires.

The crown, dominion, was removed from God's people (both the spiritual and the fleshly seed) until the Times of the Gentiles shall end, at the glorious presence of Messiah, who will be not only King of the Jews, but King over all the earth, in that day. Some may think that this removal of the crown from Israel was a violation of the promise, The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor a law-giver from between his feet, until Shiloh come (Gen. 49: 10). Note, however, a distinction between the crown and the scepter; for, though the crown passed away in the days of Zedekiah, the scepter, as we shall see, did not depart until six hundred and thirty-nine years afterward, when our Lord Jesus, of the tribe of Judah and seed of David according to the flesh, being approved of God, became the heir of the long-promised scepter of earth.

God's promise to Abraham, renewed to Isaac and to Jacob, was that from their posterity should come the great deliverer who should not only bless and exalt their family in the world, but who should bless all the families of the earth. It looked for a time as though Moses, the great Law-giver and deliverer, was the one promised; but he prophetically declared to the people, "A Prophet like unto me shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren," thus indicating that he was but a type of him that was to come; and Moses died. Next, the promise, "The scepter shall not depart from Judah," narrowed down the expectation to that tribe. And all the other tribes in a measure clung to Judah in proportion as they had faith in God's promises, expecting a blessing in conjunction with Judah, in due time.

When King David arose from the promised tribe, his victories led to expectations of an extended kingdom, whose influence would spread and embrace the world, and subject all nations to the Law. And when Solomon's world-renowned wisdom and greatness were at their height, it surely looked as though the crown of universal dominion was almost within their grasp. The Lord's promise to David, that of the fruit of his loins he would raise up one to sit on his throne forever, had narrowed down the promise in the tribe of Judah to one family, and that family already on the throne of Israel. And when the Temple of Solomon was erected, and its hundreds of singers and priests were an imposing spectacle; when Solomon's fame for wisdom and riches was world-wide; when kings sent him presents and desired his favor; and when the queen of Sheba came with gifts to see this most renowned and wonderful king the world had yet known, no wonder the Jewish bosom swelled with hope and pride as the long expected moment for the exaltation of the seed of Abraham, and the blessing of all nations through them, seemed at hand.

Sore was their disappointment when, after Solomon's death, the kingdom was torn, and finally utterly overturned, and the people who had expected to rule and bless all nations as God's holy nation were carried captives to Babylon. "By the rivers of Babylon there we sat down, yea, we wept when we remembered Zion"—Psa. 137: 1.

But though the crown was removed, i.e., though the power to govern even themselves was taken from them, the right to rule, the scepter, conveyed originally in God's promise, was not removed. Though universal dominion was given to Nebuchadnezzar and his successors, as illustrated in the great image, and by the four great beasts, yet it was to continue only a limited period. The original promise to Israel must be fulfilled—the crown was removed, but the scepter remained until Shiloh came. This was even pointed out in the decree against Zedekiah: Take off the crown—I will overturn it, till he come whose right it is, and I will give it unto him.

While the covenant made with Abraham promised the ruling and blessing of the world through his seed, the covenant of the Law made with Israel, Abraham's children, limited and restricted that Abrahamic Covenant, so that only such as would fully and perfectly obey the Law could claim, or had any right to hope for, a share in the ruling and blessing promised in the Abrahamic Covenant. Seeing this fact led to the formation of the sect of the Pharisees, who claimed to fulfill every particular of the Law blamelessly, and trusted in themselves that they were righteous and despised others, calling others publicans and sinners and themselves the children of Abraham, heirs of the promised dominion which was to bless the world.

The clear, forcible teaching of our Lord Jesus was in part directed against the errors of the Pharisees, who supposed that their careful performance of some of the outward ceremonies of the Law was a full compliance with its letter and spirit. Our Lord taught what all Christians now know, that the Law, when seen in its fullness, is so majestically perfect, and man so fallen and imperfect, and so beset with temptations from without as well as by weakness from within, that none of them could possibly keep that Law perfectly nor claim the Abrahamic blessing. Our Lord's censures of Pharisaism must not therefore be understood as objections to their endeavor to keep the Law; nor did he blame them for failing to keep the Law, which no imperfect man can do. But he did blame them for hypocrisy, in deceiving themselves and others with a claimed perfection and holiness, which they as well as others could see was merely a cleansing of the outside, while their hearts were still impure and unconsecrated. He censured them for having a mere form of godliness, and a lip service, while their hearts were far from God. So, then, as our Lord and Paul declare, none of them did or could keep the Law perfectly (John 7: 19; Rom. 3: 20), though they might have come much nearer to a perfect observance of its requirements than they did.

Our Lord not only declared in words the full import of the Law to be, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy mind, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and thy neighbor as thyself," but he illustrated this in his full surrender of himself to the will and plan of God, in his avoidance of any plan and ambition of his own, and of all self-seeking, a most hearty doing of the will of God with all his heart, mind, soul and strength, and loving his neighbor as himself; all this even unto death.

Thus by fulfilling its conditions—by obeying the Law perfectly, as none of the imperfect human family could do—our Lord Jesus became heir of all the blessings promised in that Law Covenant made with Israel at Mount Sinai; and thus also he was proved to be the seed of Abraham to whom the Abrahamic promise now applied. Our Lord thus secured to himself the sceptre (the promised right or authority of earth's dominion) which for centuries had been promised should be merited by and given to some one in the tribe of Judah and family of David. The great prize, for which Israel had been hoping and striving and longing for centuries, was won at last by the Lion (the strong one) of the tribe of Judah. Shiloh, the great Peace-maker, had come: he who not only made peace between God and man by the blood of his cross, when he redeemed mankind from the condemnation of death justly upon all, but he who also, when he takes his great power and reigns King of kings and Lord of lords, will overthrow all wrong and evil, and establish peace upon a sure basis of holiness. He is the Prince of Peace.

When the scepter (the right) under the covenant passed to our Lord, that Law Covenant ended; for how could God continue to offer to others, on any conditions, the prize which had been won by Shiloh? Hence the Apostle declares, "Christ made an end of the Law [covenant], nailing it to his cross"—Col. 2: 14.

Thus the Prince of Peace secured for his subjects both forgiveness of sins and restitution, and established an everlasting kingdom on the basis of righteousness, such as could in no other way have been brought about. Thus was fulfilled the prediction, The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor a law-giver from between his feet [loins], until Shiloh come. Then it did depart from Judah, being given to the Lion [the strong one, the highly exalted spiritual creature, the Lord of glory] from the tribe of Judah, who now holds this scepter [title to authority] as King of kings and Lord of lords.

Even after the seventy years captivity in Babylon, when some returned and built again the Temple and the walls of the city, it was such as had respect to the promise of God, and who "waited for the consolation of Israel." These gathered about the tribe of Judah, remembering God's promise that the Lawgiver, the Deliverer, the great Shiloh or peace-maker, should come in that tribe. But alas! when the peaceful one who made peace and reconciliation for iniquity by the blood of his cross came, they despised and rejected him, expecting not a great High Priest, but a great general.

Shiloh having received the scepter and "all power" at his resurrection, because of his obedience unto death, will indeed bless Israel first, but not fleshly Israel, for they are not all true Israelites who are called such according to the flesh (Rom. 9: 6). Shiloh, the heir, is seeking and finding children of Abraham according to the spirit, such as share the Abrahamic disposition of faith and obedience, both from his natural posterity and from among the Gentiles, to be a people for his name (Acts 15: 14). And after this [after the gathering of his elect Church is accomplished—in the harvest or end of the Gospel age, at the close of the Gentile Times] he will turn again his favor and will build again the ruins of Israel, and finally of all the families of the earth, upon a better basis than has ever entered into the heart of man to conceive. He who now holds the scepter, whose right it is to rule, will at the expiration of the Gentile Times receive the crown also; "and unto him shall the gathering of the people be" (Gen. 49: 10). The scepter, or title to "all power in heaven and in earth," was given unto him at his resurrection, but he awaits the Father's appointed time, the limit of the Gentile Times, before he will take his great power and begin his glorious reign—Rev. 11: 17, 18.

Now bear in mind the date already found for the beginning of these Gentile Times, B.C. 606, while we proceed to examine the evidence proving their length to be 2520 years, ending A.D. 1914.

We must not expect to find this information put in so many words. Had it been so stated, it would have been known before due time. It is given in such a way as to conceal it until the time of the end—Dan. 12: 4, 10.

Our Lord's words, Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the Times of the Gentiles be fulfilled, not only suggest a limit and definite period of Gentile domination, but they also suggest the thought that though spiritual as well as fleshly Israel has been subject to these Gentile powers, yet these times are somehow connected with and measured upon the earthly city, Jerusalem, and the fleshly house of Israel. And the thought occurs, Can it be that God foretold concerning Israel's history something which will give us the exact measure of these times to which our Lord refers? It is even so.

In Leviticus we find recorded blessings and cursings of a temporal character. If Israel would obey God faithfully, they would be blessed above other nations; if not, certain evils would befall them. The conclusion is stated thus: "And I will walk among you and be your God, and ye shall be my people ... but if ye will not hearken unto me, and will not do all these commandments ... I will set my face against you, and ye shall be slain before your enemies; they that hate you shall reign over you." "And ye shall sow your seed in vain; for your enemies shall eat it." "And if ye will not yet for all this hearken unto me, then I will punish you seven times more [further] for your sins"—Lev. 26: 17, 18, 24, 28.

This threat of seven times of punishment is mentioned three times. The various punishments mentioned before the seven times refer to the several captivities to the Assyrians, Moabites, Midianites, Philistines, etc., during all of which God's care continued over them. His dealings were to them "line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little"; yet he kept hold of them, and when they repented and cried unto him, he heard them and answered, and delivered them from their enemies (Judges 3: 9, 15). But these chastisements having failed, he applied the threatened seven times: the crown was permanently removed, and Israel and the whole world, was subject to the beastly powers for seven times. Thus it befell them according to God's warning, "If ye will not yet for all this [previous chastisements] hearken unto me, then I will punish you seven times."

The connection in which the seven times (more or additional) are threatened indicates that they include a final and conclusive punishment upon that people after the other chastisements had repeatedly failed to reform them permanently. The punishment of these seven times will have the designed effect of thoroughly humbling them before the Lord, and thus preparing them to receive his blessings. These seven times therefore refer to the length of time during which the Gentiles should rule over them. This period of seven times our Lord undoubtedly meant when speaking of the Times of the Gentiles.

The time when the lesser captivities and chastisements gave place to this final national chastisement of seven times was, as already shown, when their last king Zedekiah was removed, since which there has been a period of chastisement, the predicted seven times or 2520 years.

In the Bible a time is used in the sense of a year, whether the year be literal or symbolic; but at the time of the utterance of any prophecy, it could not be known whether the time referred to was literal or symbolic. The prophets searched diligently, but in vain, to learn what time, or manner of time (literal or symbolic), the Spirit did signify (1 Pet. 1: 11). A symbolic year as used in prophecy is reckoned on the basis of a lunar year, twelve months of thirty days each, or three hundred and sixty days, each day representing a year. Consequently, a time or year, if symbolic, signifies three hundred and sixty symbolic days, and seven times represent twenty-five hundred and twenty ($7 \times 360 = 2520$) symbolic days, or 2520 literal years.

The question here presenting itself is, Were these seven times literal or symbolic? Did they refer to seven years, or twenty-five hundred and twenty years? We answer, they were symbolic times, 2520 years. They cannot be understood as seven literal years; for Israel had many captivities of longer duration, e.g., they served the king of Mesopotamia eight years (Judg. 3: 8), the king of Moab eighteen years (Judg. 3: 14), King Jabin twenty years (Judg. 4: 2, 3), the Philistines one period of forty years and another of eighteen years (Judg. 10: 7, 8; 13: 1), besides their seventy years in Babylon. All these periods being far longer than seven times or years literal, yet the seven times being mentioned as the last, greatest and final punishment, proves that symbolic, not literal time is meant, though the Hebrew word translated seven times in Lev. 26: 18, 21, 24, 28, is the same word so translated in Dan. 4: 16, 23, 25, 32, except that in Daniel the word iddan is added, whereas in Leviticus it is left to be understood. And, peculiarly, too, it is repeated four times in each case. In Nebuchadnezzar's case they were literal years, but, as we shall yet see, both Nebuchadnezzar and his seven times were typical.

The seven times of Nebuchadnezzar's degradation (Dan. 4: 16, 23-26) proved to be seven literal years, when actually so fulfilled; and so the humiliation of Israel and the world under the "powers that be" has proved to be seven symbolic times, twenty-five hundred and twenty literal years. This period now lacks but twenty-six years of being fulfilled, and agencies are at work on every hand pointing to a termination of Gentile dominion, and the bringing in of everlasting righteousness and all the blessings of the New Covenant to Israel and to all the groaning creation.

THE END OF ISRAEL'S SEVEN TIMES.

This long period (seven times, 2520 years) of Israel's punishment is the period of Gentile dominion, the Times of the Gentiles. Since, as we have already shown, the Gentile Times began B.C. 606, and were to continue twenty-five hundred and twenty years, they will end A.D. 1914 (2520—606=1914). Then the blessings recorded in the same chapter (Lev. 26: 44, 45) will be fulfilled. God will remember and fulfill to Israel the covenant made with their fathers—Rom. 11: 25-27.

This may be shown more clearly to some thus:

Israel's seven times of chastisement =	2520 years.
They began when the lease of power was given to the Gentiles, which, as we have shown, was 606 B.C. Consequently, in
A.D. 1,	606 "
of their period had passed, and the	——— remainder would indicate the A.D. date,	1914

In proof that a day for a year is Bible usage in symbolic prophecy, we cite the following instances thus fulfilled:— (a) The spies were caused to wander forty days searching Canaan, typical of Israel's forty years wandering in the wilderness (Num. 14: 33, 34). (b) When God would announce to Israel by Ezekiel a period of adversity, he had the prophet symbolize it, declaring, I have appointed thee each day for a year (Ezek. 4: 1-8). (c) In that notable and already fulfilled prophecy of Daniel 9: 24-27, examined in the preceding chapter, in which the time to the anointing of our Lord is shown, and also the seven years of favor to Israel thereafter, in the midst of which Messiah was cut off, symbolic time is used: Each day of the seventy symbolic weeks represented a year, and was so fulfilled. (d) Again, in Dan. 7: 25 and 12: 7, the period of Papacy's triumph is given as three and a half times, and this we know (and will show in this volume) was fulfilled in twelve hundred and sixty years ($360 \times 3\frac{1}{2} = 1260$). The same period is mentioned in the book of Revelation: In chapter 12: 14 it is called three and a half times ($360 \times 3\frac{1}{2} = 1260$); in chapter 13: 5 it is termed forty-two months ($30 \times 42 = 1260$); and in chapter 12: 6 it is called twelve hundred and sixty days. The fulfillment of these prophecies will be examined hereafter. Suffice it now to note that the use by the Spirit of the word time, elsewhere, agrees with the present use of that term, that in symbolic prophecy a time is a symbolic year of three hundred and sixty years; and the fact that three and a half times, applied as a measure to the triumph of the apostate Church, has been fulfilled in twelve hundred and sixty years, establishes the principle upon which the seven times of Gentile dominion are reckoned ($360 \times 7 = 2520$) and proves their end to be in 1914; for if three and a half times are 1260 days (years), seven times will be a period just twice as long, 2520 years.

Had Israel's seven times been fulfilled in literal time (seven years), the blessing guaranteed to them by God's unconditional covenant with their fathers would have followed (Lev. 26: 45; Rom. 11: 28). But this was not the case. They have never yet enjoyed those promised blessings; that covenant will not be fulfilled, says Paul (Rom. 11: 25, 26), until the elect Gospel Church, the body of Christ, has been perfected as their deliverer, through whom the covenant will be put into operation. "This shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days [the seven times of punishment], saith the Lord: I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts, and will be their God and they shall be my people. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord; for they shall all know me from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord; for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more." "In those days [the days of favor following the seven times of punishment] they shall say no more, The fathers have eaten a sour grape and the children's teeth are set on edge. But every one [who dies] shall die for his own iniquity; every man that eateth the sour grape, his teeth shall be set on edge"—Jer. 31: 29, 30, 33, 34; Heb. 10: 16, 17.

The restoration after the seventy years in Babylon was not a release from Gentile rule; for they were a tributary people ever after that. That restoration served merely to keep together a people to whom Messiah should be presented. It was while Gentile rule was already holding Israel in subjection, and in view of that fact, that our Lord declared that they would continue to be trodden down until the Times of the Gentiles expired, or were fulfilled. The world is witness to the fact that Israel's punishment under the dominion of the Gentiles has been continuous since B.C. 606, that it still continues, and that there is no reason to expect their national re-organization sooner than A.D. 1914, the limit of their seven times, 2520 years. But as this long period of their national chastisement draws near its close, we can see marked indications that the barren fig tree is about to put forth, showing that the winter time of evil is closing, and the Millennial summer approaching, which will fully restore them to their promised inheritance and national independence. The fact that there are now great preparations and expectations relative to the return of Israel to their own land is of itself strong circumstantial evidence corroborative of this Scripture teaching. As to the significance of such an event, see Vol. 1, pages 286-298.

ANOTHER LINE OF TESTIMONY.

Another view of the Gentile Times is presented in Dan. 4. Here man's original dominion over the whole earth, its removal, and the certainty of its restitution, to begin after the end of the Gentile Times, is forcibly illustrated in a dream given to Nebuchadnezzar, its interpretation by Daniel, and its fulfillment upon Nebuchadnezzar.

In his dream, Nebuchadnezzar "saw, and behold a tree ... the height thereof was great. The tree grew and was strong, and the height thereof reached unto heaven, and the sight thereof to the end of all the earth; the leaves thereof were fair, and the fruit thereof much, and in it was meat for all: and the beasts of the field had shadow under it, and the fowls of the heaven dwelt in the boughs thereof, and all flesh was fed of it. And, behold, a watcher and a holy one came down from heaven. He cried aloud and said thus, Hew down the tree and cut off his branches; shake off his leaves and scatter his fruit; let the beasts get away from under it, and the fowls from his branches.

Nevertheless, leave the stump of his roots in the earth, even with a band of iron and brass, in the tender grass of the field; and let it be wet with the dew of heaven, and let his portion be with the beasts in the grass of the earth. Let his heart be changed from man's and let a beast's heart be given unto him; and let seven times pass over him. This matter is by the decree of the watchers, and the demand by the word of the holy ones, ... that the living may know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will, and setteth up over it the basest of men."

This tree, in its glory and beauty, represented the first dominion of earth given to the human race in its representative and head, Adam, to whom God said, "Be fruitful, and multiply, and fill the earth, and subdue it; and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth" (Gen. 1: 28). The original glory of man and the power vested in him were indeed sublime, and were over the whole earth, to bless, and feed, and protect and shelter every living thing. But when sin entered, the command came to hew down the tree, and the glory and beauty and power of mankind were taken away; and the lower creation no more found shelter and blessing under his influence. Death hewed down the tree, scattered his fruit and foliage, and left the lower creation without its lord and benefactor.

So far as man was concerned, all power to recover the lost dominion was hopelessly gone. But it was not so from God's standpoint. The dominion sprang out of his plan, and was his gift; and though he had commanded it to be hewn down, yet the root, God's purpose and plan of a restitution, continued, though bound with strong fetters so that it should not sprout until the appointed time.

As in the dream the figure changes from the stump of a tree to a man degraded and brought to the companionship and likeness of beasts, with reason dethroned and all his glory departed, so we see man, the fallen, degraded lord of earth: his glory and dominion have departed. Ever since the sentence passed, the race has been having its portion with the beasts, and the human heart has become beastly and degraded. How striking the picture, when we consider the present and past half-civilized and savage condition of the great mass of the human race, and that even the small minority who aspire to overcome the downward tendency succeed only to a limited degree, and with great struggling and constant effort. The race must remain in its degradation, under the dominion of evil, until the lesson has been learned, that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will. And while men are in this degraded condition God permits some of the basest characters among them to rule over them, that their present bitter experience may prove in the future to be of lasting benefit.

True to Daniel's interpretation, we are told that "All this came upon the king, Nebuchadnezzar," and that in this insane, degraded, beastly condition he wandered among the beasts until seven times (seven literal years in his case) passed over him. Daniel's interpretation of the dream relates only to its fulfillment upon Nebuchadnezzar; but the fact that the dream, the interpretation and the fulfillment are all so carefully related here is evidence of an object in its narration. And its remarkable fitness as an illustration of the divine purpose in subjecting the whole race to the dominion of evil for its punishment and correction, that in due time God might restore and establish it in righteousness and everlasting life, warrants us in accepting it as an intended type.

The dream in its fulfillment upon Nebuchadnezzar is specially noteworthy when we remember that he was made the representative head of human dominion (Dan. 2: 38), and, as lord of earth, was addressed by the prophet in almost the same words which God at the first addressed to Adam, "The God of heaven hath given thee a kingdom, power, and strength, and glory. And wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field and the fowl of heaven hath he given into thy hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all" (Dan. 2: 37-38; Gen. 1: 28). Afterward, because of sin, Nebuchadnezzar received the seven times of punishment, after which his reason began to return, and his restitution to dominion was accomplished. He was re-established in his kingdom, and majesty was added to him after he had learned the needed lesson to which he referred in the following language:

"At the end of the days I, Nebuchadnezzar, lifted up mine eyes unto heaven, and mine understanding returned unto me, and I blessed the Most High, and I praised and honored him that liveth forever, whose dominion is an everlasting dominion, and his kingdom is from generation to generation. And all the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing; and he doeth according to his will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth; and none can stay his hand or say unto him, What doest thou? At the same time my reason returned unto me; and, ... mine honor and brightness returned ... and I was established in my kingdom, and excellent majesty was added unto me. Now I, Nebuchadnezzar, praise and extol and honor the King of heaven, all whose works are truth, and his ways judgment: and those that walk in pride he is able to abase."

The degradation of Nebuchadnezzar was typical of human degradation under beastly governments during seven symbolic times or years, a year for a day, 2520 years, from his day onward. And be it observed that this corresponds exactly with the seven times foretold upon Israel, which, as we have just seen, end A.D. 1914. For it was under this Nebuchadnezzar that Israel was carried away captive to Babylon, when the crown of God's kingdom was removed, and the seven times began.

It is in harmony with this that God, in representing the Gentile governments, portrayed them to Daniel as wild beasts, while God's kingdom at their close is represented as given to one like unto a son of man.

Unless it was thus to foreshadow the degradation and the duration of Gentile Times, we know of no reason for the recording of this scrap of the history of a heathen king. That his seven years of degradation fitly illustrated human debasement, is a fact; that God has promised a restitution of earth's dominion after humanity has learned certain great lessons, is also a fact; and that the seven symbolic Gentile Times (2520 years) end at the exact point when mankind will have learned its own degradation and present inability to rule the world to advantage, and will be ready for God's kingdom and dominion, is a third fact. And the fitness of the illustration forces the conviction that Nebuchadnezzar's seven years, while literally fulfilled on him personally, had a yet greater and broader significance as a figure of the seven symbolic times of Gentile dominion, which he represented.

The exact date of Nebuchadnezzar's degradation is not stated, and is of no consequence, because the period of his degradation typified the entire period of Gentile dominion, which began when the crown of the typical kingdom of God was removed from Zedekiah. It was beastly from its very start, and its times are numbered: its boundaries are set by Jehovah, and cannot be passed.

How refreshing the prospect brought to view after these seven times! Neither Israel nor the world of mankind represented by that people will longer be trodden down, oppressed and misruled by beastly Gentile powers. The Kingdom of God and his Christ will then be established in the earth, and Israel and all the world will be blessed under his rightful and righteous authority. Then the root of promise and hope planted first in Eden (Gen. 3: 15), and borne across the flood and transplanted with Israel (Gen. 12: 1-3), will sprout and bloom again.

It began to sprout at our Lord's first advent, but the appointed season had not arrived for it to bloom and bring forth its blessed fruitage in the restitution of all things. But after the Gentile Times the sure signs of spring will not be lacking, and rich will be the summer fruitage and glorious the autumnal harvest to be reaped and enjoyed in the eternal ages of glory to follow. Then the original lord of earth, with reason restored, will be re-instated, with added excellence and glory, as in the type, and will praise and extol and honor the King of heaven.

Already we begin to see reason returning to mankind: men are awakening to some sense of their degradation, and are on the lookout to improve their condition. They are thinking, planning and scheming for a better condition than that to which they have been submitting under beastly powers. But before they come to recognize God and his dominion over all, they will experience one more fit of madness, from which struggle they will awake weak, helpless, but with reason so far restored as to recognize and bow to the authority of him who comes to re-establish the lost, first dominion, on the basis of experience and knowledge of both good and evil.

True, it is expecting much to claim, as we do, that within the next twenty-six years all present governments will begin to be overthrown; but we are living in a peculiar time, the Day of Jehovah, in which matters culminate quickly; and it is written, "A short work will the Lord make upon the earth" (Vol. 1, chap. xv). For the past eleven years these things have been preached and published substantially as set forth above; and in that brief time the development of influences and agencies for the undermining and overthrow of the strongest empires of earth has been wonderful. In that time Communism, Socialism and Nihilism sprang into vigorous existence, and already are causing great uneasiness among the rulers and high ones of earth, whose hearts are failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth; for the present powers are being shaken, and ultimately shall pass away with a great tumult.

In view of this strong Bible evidence concerning the Times of the Gentiles, we consider it an established truth that the overthrow of the kingdoms of this world begins in 1914, preparatory to the establishment of the Kingdom of God. Then the prayer of the Church, ever since her Lord took his departure, "Thy Kingdom come," will be answered; and under that wise and just administration, the whole earth will be filled with the glory of the Lord, with knowledge, and righteousness, and peace (Psa. 72: 19; Isa. 6: 3; Hab. 2: 14); and the will of God shall be done on earth, as it is done in heaven.

Daniel's statement, that God's Kingdom will be set up, not after the kingdoms of earth are dissolved, but in their days, while they still exist and have power, and that it is God's Kingdom which shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms (Dan. 2: 44), is worthy of our special consideration. So it was with each of these beastly governments: it existed before it acquired universal dominion. Babylon existed long before it conquered Jerusalem and obtained the dominion (Dan. 2: 37, 38); Medo-Persia existed before it conquered Babylon; and so with all kingdoms: they must first have existed and have received superior power before they could conquer others. So, too, with God's Kingdom: it has existed in an embryo form for eighteen centuries; but it, with the world at large, was made subject to the powers that be, ordained of God. Until their seven times shall end, the Kingdom of God cannot come into universal dominion. However, like the others, it must obtain power adequate to the overthrow of these kingdoms before breaking them in pieces.

So, in this Day of Jehovah, the Day of Trouble, our Lord takes his great power (hitherto dormant) and reigns, and this it is that will cause the trouble, though the world will not so recognize it for some time. That the saints shall share in this work of breaking to pieces present kingdoms, there is no doubt. It is written, "This honor have all his saints, to execute the judgments written, to bind their kings with chains, and their nobles with fetters of iron," of strength (Ps. 149: 8, 9). "He that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations, and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers"—Rev. 2: 26, 27; Ps. 2: 8, 9.

Our examination, in the preceding volume, of the difference in character between the Kingdom of God and the beastly kingdoms of earth, prepares us to see also a difference in modes of warfare. The methods of conquest and breaking will be widely different from any which have ever before overthrown nations. He who now takes his great power to reign is shown in symbol (Rev. 19: 15) as the one whose sword went forth out of his mouth, "that with it he should smite the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron." That sword is the truth (Eph. 6: 17); and the living saints and many of the world are now being used as the Lord's soldiers in overthrowing errors and evils. But let no one hastily infer a peaceable conversion of the nations to be here symbolized; for many Scriptures (Rev. 11: 17, 18; Dan. 12: 1; 2 Thes. 2: 8; Ps. 149 and 47) teach the very opposite.

Be not surprised, then, when in subsequent chapters we present proofs that the setting up of the Kingdom of God is already begun, that it is pointed out in prophecy as due to begin the exercise of power in A.D. 1878, and that the "battle of the great day of God Almighty" (Rev. 16: 14), will begin in A.D. 1914, and that it will end in the complete overthrow of earth's present rulership. The gathering of the armies is plainly visible from the standpoint of God's Word.

If our vision be unobstructed by prejudice, when we get the telescope of God's Word rightly adjusted we may see with clearness the character of many of the events due to take place in the "Day of the Lord"—that we are in the very midst of those events, and that "the Great Day of His Wrath is come."

The sword of truth, already sharpened, is to smite every evil system and custom—civil, social and ecclesiastical. Nay, more, we can see that the smiting is commenced: freedom of thought, and human rights, civil and religious, long lost sight of under kings and emperors, popes, synods, councils, traditions and creeds, are being appreciated and asserted as never before. The internal conflict is already fomenting: it will ere long break forth as a consuming fire, and human systems, and errors, which for centuries have fettered truth and oppressed the groaning creation, must melt before it. Yes, truth—and widespread and increasing knowledge of it—is the sword which is perplexing and wounding the heads over many countries (Ps.

110: 6). Yet in this trouble what a blessing is disguised: It will prepare mankind for a fuller appreciation of righteousness and truth, under the reign of the King of Righteousness.

As men shall eventually come to realize that justice is laid to the line and righteousness to the plummet (Isa. 28: 17), they will also learn that the strict rules of justice alone can secure the blessings which all desire. And, thoroughly disheartened with their own ways and the miserable fruitage of selfishness, they will welcome and gladly submit to the righteous authority which takes the control; and thus, as it is written, "The desire of all nations shall come"—the Kingdom of God, under the absolute and unlimited control of Jehovah's Anointed.

"We are living, we are dwelling,
 In a grand and awful time.
 In an age on ages telling,
 To be living is sublime.
 Hark! the rumbling in the nations,
 Iron crumbling with the clay:
 Hark! what soundeth? 'Tis creation
 Groaning for a better day.

"Scoffers scorning, Heaven beholding,
 Thou hast but an hour to fight.
 See prophetic truth unfolding!
 Watch! and keep thy garments white.
 Oh, let all the soul within you
 For the truth's sake go abroad!
 Strike! let every nerve and sinew
 Tell on ages—tell for God!"

STUDY V.

THE MANNER OF OUR LORD'S RETURN AND APPEARING.

HARMONY OF THE MANNER OF OUR LORD'S SECOND ADVENT WITH OTHER FEATURES OF THE DIVINE PLAN. HOW AND WHEN THE CHURCH SHALL SEE HIM. HOW AND WHEN THE GLORY OF THE LORD SHALL BE SO REVEALED THAT ALL FLESH SHALL SEE IT TOGETHER. STATEMENTS APPARENTLY CONFLICTING SHOWN TO BE HARMONIOUS. HE COMES AS A THIEF, NOT WITH OUTWARD SHOW; AND YET WITH A SHOUT, WITH VOICES, AND WITH THE SOUND OF THE GREAT TRUMPET. HE SHALL BE REVEALED IN FLAMING FIRE, TAKING VENGEANCE; AND YET, HE SHALL SO COME, IN LIKE MANNER AS HE WENT AWAY. IMPORTANCE OF PROPHETIC TIME IN THIS CONNECTION SHOWN. HARMONY OF PRESENT INDICATIONS.

THE VIEW just had, of the near end of Gentile Times, and the assurance that the consummation of the Church's hope partly precedes this end, only whets the appetite of those now waiting for the consolation of Israel. Such will be hungering for the information our Father may have supplied through the prophets, touching the harvest, the end, or closing period of this age, the separating of wheat from tares among the living members of the nominal Church, and the time of the change of the overcomers, to be with and like their Lord and Head.

In order to appreciate the reasonableness of the prophetic teaching on these deeply interesting subjects, it is absolutely necessary that we have clear views both of the object of our Lord's second coming, and of the manner in which he will be revealed. That the object of his coming is to reconcile whosoever will, of the world, to God, by a process of ruling, and teaching, and disciplining, called judging and blessing, we trust all present readers have been convinced in the reading of Volume 1. The manner of the Lord's coming and appearing, therefore, is of paramount importance, before proceeding in our study of the time of the harvest, etc. The student must hold clearly in mind the object while studying the manner of our Lord's return; and both of these, when he comes to study the time. This is needful as an offset to the false views, pre-occupying many minds, based upon false ideas of the object and the manner of our Lord's coming.

Grasp and hold in mind as firmly as possible the fact already demonstrated, that God's plan is one harmonious whole, which is being wrought out through Christ; and that the work of the second advent stands related to the work of the first as effect to cause, i.e., that the great work of Restitution at the second advent follows the work of Redemption accomplished at the first advent as a logical sequence according to the divine plan. Therefore the Lord's return is the dawn of hope for the world, the time for the bestowment of the favors secured by the redemption—the Gospel Age being merely an intervening parenthesis, during which the bride of Christ is selected, to be associated with her Lord in the great work of restitution which he comes to accomplish.

Since the Church of Christ, which has been developing during the Gospel age, is to be associated with her Lord in the great restitution work of the Millennial age, the first work of Christ at the second advent must be the gathering of his elect Church, to which reference is made by the Prophet (Ps. 50: 5), saying, Gather my saints together unto me, those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice. This gathering or harvesting time is in the lapping period of the two ages. As will be shown, it is a period of forty years, which both ends the Gospel age and introduces the Millennial age (Vol. 1, 219-221; 234-237; and Chart of the Ages). This harvest period not only accomplishes the separation of wheat from tares in the nominal Gospel church, and the gathering and glorification of the wheat class, but it is also to accomplish the burning (destruction) of the tares (as tares, or imitation wheat, not as individuals: the fire is symbolic as well as the tares), and the gathering and destruction of the corrupt fruitage of the Vine of the earth (human ambition, greed and selfishness), which has been growing and ripening for centuries in the kingdoms of this world and in the civil and social organizations among men.

Although, when treating of the object of our Lord's return, we showed that it would be a personal coming, let us again guard the student against confusion of thought in considering the two apparently conflicting expressions of our Lord, Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world (aionos, age), and, I go to prepare a place for you ... and will come again and receive you (Matt. 28: 20; John 14: 2, 3). The following incident will serve as an illustration of the harmony of the two promises: One friend said to another as they were about to part, Remember, I will be with you through all your journey. How? Certainly not in person; for there they took trains to go in opposite directions to distant points. The idea was that in love, and thought, and care one for another, they would not be separated. In a similar yet fuller sense, the Lord has always been with his Church, his divine power enabling him to oversee, direct and assist them, from first to last. But we are now considering, not our Lord's presence with us in this figurative sense, but the manner of his second personal presence and appearing, when he shall come to be glorified in his saints and to be admired in all them that believe in that day.

The Scriptures teach that Christ comes again to reign; that he must reign until he has put down all enemies, all opponents, all things in the way of the great restitution which he comes to accomplish, the last to be overthrown being death (1 Cor. 15: 25, 26); and that he will reign for a thousand years. It is therefore only as should be expected, that we find a much larger space in prophecy devoted to the second advent and its thousand years of triumphant reign and overthrow of evil than to the thirty-four years of the first advent for redemption. And as we have found that prophecy touches the important points of those thirty-four years, from Bethlehem and Nazareth to the gall and vinegar, the parted raiment, the cross, the tomb and the resurrection, so we find prophecy likewise touches various points of the thousand years of the second presence, particularly their beginning and ending.

The second presence of our Lord will cover a much longer period of time than the first. The mission of his first advent was finished in less than thirty-four years, while it will require a thousand years to accomplish the appointed work of his second presence. And thus it may be seen at a glance that, while the work of the first advent was no less important than that of the second advent, yea, though it was so important that the work of the second advent could never have been possible without it, yet it was not so varied, and hence required less description than the work of the second advent.

In studying the second advent we must not, any more than at the first advent, expect all prophecies to mark one particularly eventful moment of our Lord's arrival and to call the attention of all to the fact of his presence. Such is not God's usual method: such was not the case at the first advent. Messiah's first advent was not marked by any sudden or surprising demonstration, out of the usual order of things, but it was manifested and proven by the gradual fulfillment of prophecy showing to thoughtful observers that the events which should be expected were being accomplished on time. And thus it will be at his second advent. It is of less importance that we discover the moment of his arrival than that we discern the fact of his presence when he has arrived, even as at the first advent it was important to be able to recognize his presence, and the sooner the better, but much less important to know the date of his birth. In considering the second advent, the act of coming and the moment of arrival are too frequently the thought, whereas it should be thought of as a period of presence, as was the first advent. The precise moment at which that presence would begin would then seem less important, and his object and work during the period of his presence would receive the greater consideration.

We must bear in mind, also, that our Lord is no longer a human being; that as a human being he gave himself a ransom for men, having become a man for that very purpose (1 Tim. 2: 6; Heb. 10: 4, 5; 1 Cor. 15: 21, 22). He is now highly exalted, to the divine nature. Therefore Paul said, "Though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now, henceforth, know we him [so] no more" (2 Cor. 5: 16). He was raised from the dead a life-giving spirit being (1 Cor. 15: 45), and not a man, of the earth earthy. He is no longer human in any sense or degree; for we must not forget what we have learned (Vol. 1, Chap. 10) that natures are separate and distinct. Since he is no longer in any sense or degree a human being, we must not expect him to come again as a human being, as at the first advent. His second coming is to be in a different manner, as well as for a different purpose.

Noting the fact that our Lord's change from human to divine nature at his resurrection was even a greater change than the one which occurred some thirty-four years previously, when he laid aside the glory of spiritual being and

"was made flesh," we may with great profit consider very minutely his every action during the forty days after his resurrection before he went to the Father; because it is the resurrected Jesus of those forty days who is to come again, and not the man Christ Jesus who gave himself as our ransom, in death. He who was put to death a flesh being was also in his resurrection quickened [made alive] a spirit being—1 Pet. 3: 18.*

At his second advent he comes not to be subject to the powers that be, to pay tribute to Caesar and to suffer humiliation, injustice and violence; but to reign, exercising all power in heaven and in earth. He does not come in the body of his humiliation, a human body, which he took for the suffering of death, inferior to his former glorious body (Heb. 2: 9); but in his glorious spiritual body, which is the express image of the Father's person (Heb. 1: 3); for, because of his obedience even unto death, he is now highly exalted to the divine nature and likeness, and given a name above every name—the Father's name only excepted (Phil. 2: 9; 1 Cor. 15: 27). The Apostle shows that it doth not yet appear to our human understanding what he is now like; hence we know not what we shall be like when made like him, but we may rejoice in

*In this passage, the words in the and by the are arbitrarily rendered, and are misleading. The Greek reads simply, Put to death to flesh, quickened to spirit. Jesus was put to death a fleshly or human being, but was raised from the dead a spirit. And since the Church is to be changed in order that she may be like him, evidently the change which occurred in the Head was of a kind similar to that described as in reservation for the overcomers, who shall be changed from human to spiritual nature, and made like him: partakers of the divine nature. The following description of the change of the saints is applicable also to their Lord. It is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness, it is raised in power; it is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body.

the assurance that we shall one day be with him, and like him, and see him as he is (1 John 3: 2), not as he was at his first advent in humiliation, when he had laid aside his former glory and for our sakes had become poor, that we through his poverty might be made rich.

If we consider the wisdom and prudence of our Lord's methods of manifesting his presence to his disciples after his resurrection, as well as previously, it may help us to remember that the same wisdom will be displayed in his methods of revealing himself at his second advent, both to the Church and to the world, methods not necessarily similar, but in each case well suited to his object, which never is to alarm men, but to convince their cool, calm judgments of the great truths to be impressed upon them. Our Lord's first advent was not a startling, exciting or alarming event. How quietly and unobtrusively he came! So much so that only those who had faith and humility were enabled to see in the infant of humble birth, in the man of sorrows, in the friend of the humble and poor, and in the crucified one, the long-looked-for Messiah.

After his resurrection the manifestation of his presence would in the nature of the case be a more astounding fact, particularly when his changed nature is taken into consideration. Yet the fact of his resurrection, together with the fact of his changed nature, had to be manifested, not to all the world at that time, but to chosen witnesses who would give credible testimony of the fact to succeeding generations. Had the world been made acquainted with the fact then, the testimony coming down to our day would probably have been much less trustworthy, being colored and warped by men's ideas and mixed with their traditions, so that the truth might appear almost or quite incredible. But God entrusted it only to chosen, faithful and worthy witnesses. As we notice the account, let each mark how perfectly the object was accomplished, and how clear, positive and convincing was the proof of Christ's resurrection and change offered to them. Mark the carefulness with which he guarded against alarming or unduly exciting them while making manifest and emphasizing these great truths. And be assured that the same wisdom, prudence and skill will be displayed in his methods of making known the fact of his glorious presence at his second advent. The cool, calm judgment will be convinced in every case, though the world in general will need to be brought by severe discipline to the proper attitude to receive the testimony, while those whose hearts are right will have the blessed intelligence sooner. All the proofs of his resurrection and change to spiritual nature were not given his disciples at once, but as they were able to bear them and in the manner apt to make the deepest impression.

During the three and a half years of our Lord's ministry, his disciples had sacrificed friends, reputation, business, etc., to devote time and energy to herald Messiah's presence and the establishment of his kingdom. But they had necessarily crude ideas as to the manner and time of their Master's exaltation, and of their promised exaltation with him. Nor was full knowledge then necessary: it was quite sufficient that they should faithfully take each step as it became due; hence the Master taught them little by little as they were able to receive it. And near the close of his ministry he said, "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now. Howbeit, when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth ... and show you things to come, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you"—John 16: 12, 13; 14: 26.

Who can tell their great disappointment, though so far as possible they had been armed against it, when they saw him suddenly taken from them and ignominiously crucified as a felon, him whose kingdom and glory they had been expecting and declaring, and which five days before his crucifixion had seemed to them so near a realization (John 12: 1, 12-19). Though they knew him to be falsely accused and wrongfully crucified, this did not alter the fact that their long cherished national hopes of a Jewish king, who would restore their nation to influence and power, together with their own individual hopes, ambitions and aircastles of important offices and honors in the kingdom, were suddenly demolished by the unfavorable turn that matters had taken in the crucifixion of their king.

Well did the Master know how desolate and aimless and perplexed they would feel; for thus it was written by the Prophet, "I will smite the Shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered" (Zech. 13: 7; Mark 14: 27). And during the forty days between his resurrection and ascension, it was therefore his chief concern to gather them again, and to re-establish their faith in him as the long-looked-for Messiah, by proving to them the fact of his resurrection, and that since his resurrection, though retaining the same individuality, he was no longer human, but an exalted spirit being, having "all power in heaven and in earth"—Matt. 28: 18.

He broke the news of his resurrection gradually, first, through the women (Mary Magdalene, and Joanna, Mary the mother of James and Salome, and others with them, Mark 16: 1; Luke 24: 1, 10), who came early to the sepulcher to anoint his dead body with sweet spices. While they wondered who would roll away the stone from the door of the sepulcher, behold, there was an earthquake, and when they came they found the stone rolled away, and an angel of the Lord sat upon it, who addressed them, saying, "Fear not, for I know that ye seek Jesus which was crucified. He is not here; for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay. And go quickly and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and behold, he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him"—Matt. 28: 5-7.

It seems that Mary Magdalene separated from the other women and ran to tell Peter and John (John 20: 1, 2), while the others went to tell the rest of the disciples, and that after she had left them Jesus appeared to the other women on the way, saying (Matt. 28: 9, 10), "All hail." And they came and held him by the feet and worshiped him. Then said Jesus unto them, "Be not afraid: go tell my brethren that they go into Galilee [their home], and there shall they see me." And with fear and joy they ran to tell the other disciples. In mingled feelings of surprise, perplexity, joy, fear, and general bewilderment, they scarcely knew how to report their strange and wonderful experience. When Mary met Peter and John she said sadly, "They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulcher, and we know not where they have laid him" (John 20: 2). The other women told how at the sepulcher they had seen a vision of angels who said he was alive (Luke 24: 22, 23), and then how they afterward met the Lord in the way—Matt. 28: 8, 10.

The majority of the disciples evidently regarded their story merely as superstitious excitement, but Peter and John said, We will go and see for ourselves; and Mary returned to the sepulcher with them. All that Peter and John saw was that the body was gone, that the grave clothes were carefully folded and laid by, and that the stone was rolled away from the door. So in perplexity they turned away, though Mary still remained there weeping. As she wept she stooped down and looked into the sepulcher and saw two angels, who said, Woman, why weepest thou?" She answered, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him. And as she turned about she saw Jesus standing, but did not know him. He inquired, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? And she, supposing him to be the gardener, answered, Sir, if thou hast borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away. Then, in the old familiar tone which she quickly recognized, the Lord said, Mary!

That was enough to establish her faith in the statement of the angel, that he had risen, which until now had seemed like a dream or an idle tale; and in her joy she exclaimed, Master! Her first impulse was to embrace him, and to tarry in his presence. But Jesus gently informed her that there was a very important mission for her to perform now, in bearing witness to the fact of his resurrection, and that she should be in haste to carry the message and establish the faith of the other disciples, still in perplexity and uncertainty, saying, "Touch [Greek, haptomai, embrace] me not [do not tarry for further demonstration of your affection now]; for I am not yet ascended to my Father [I will be with you for a short time yet]: but go to my brethren and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father, and to my God, and your God" (John 20: 17). Through the other women also he had sent them word that he would meet them in Galilee.

Next, he overtook two sad and perplexed disciples as they walked from Jerusalem to Emmaus, and inquired the cause of their sadness and despondency (Luke 24: 13-35). And one of them answered: "Art thou only a stranger in Jerusalem, and hast not known the things which are come to pass there in these days? And he said unto them, What things? And they said unto him, Concerning Jesus of Nazareth, which was a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people: and how the chief priests and our rulers delivered him to be condemned to death, and have crucified him. But we trusted that it had been he which should have redeemed Israel: and besides all this, today is the third day since these things were done. [Here they were probably calling to mind John 2: 19, 21, 22]. Yea, and certain women also of our company made us astonished, which were early at the sepulcher. And when they found not his body, they came saying that they had also seen a vision of angels, which said he was alive. And certain of them which were with us went to the sepulcher, and found it even so as the women had said; but him they saw not." No wonder they were perplexed; how strange it all seemed! how peculiar and thrilling had been the events of the past few days!

Then the stranger preached a stirring sermon from the prophecies, showing them that the very things which had so disheartened them were the things which the prophets had foretold concerning the Messiah: that before he could rule and bless and lift up Israel and all the world, he must first redeem them with his own life from the curse of death, which came upon all through Adam, and that afterward, raised to life and glory by Jehovah, their Master would fulfill all that was written by the prophets concerning his future glory and honor, as truly as he had fulfilled those prophecies which foretold his sufferings and death. A wonderful preacher! and a wonderful sermon was that! It started new ideas and opened new expectations and hopes. As they drew near the village they constrained him to tarry with them, as it was toward evening and the day was far spent. He went in to tarry with them; and as he sat at meat with them, he took bread and brake and gave it to them. Then their eyes were opened; and he vanished out of their sight.

Not until that moment did they recognize him, though they had walked, and talked and sat at meat together. He was known to them not by face, but in the simple act of blessing and breaking bread in the old familiar way, thus assuring their faith in what they had heard, that he had risen, and would see them again.

Then the two surprised and overjoyed disciples arose that hour and returned to Jerusalem, saying to each other, Did not our hearts burn within us while he talked with us by the way, and while he opened to us the Scriptures? Arriving in Jerusalem they found the others rejoicing also, saying, The Lord is risen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon. And they told what things were done in the way, and how he was known of them in breaking of bread. Probably they were nearly all there that evening, homes, business and everything else forgotten, Mary Magdalene with her tears of joy, saying, I knew him the moment he called my name, I could not credit the angel's assurance of his resurrection until then; and the other women telling their wonderful experience of the morning, and how they had met him in the way. Then Simon had his story to tell; and now here were two other witnesses from Emmaus. What an eventful day! No wonder they desired to meet on the first day of every week after that, to talk the matter over and to call to mind all the circumstances connected with the Lord's resurrection, and to have their hearts burn again and again.

While the excited and overjoyed company were thus met and relating to each other their several experiences, the Lord Jesus himself suddenly stood in their midst (Luke 24: 36-49) and said, Peace be unto you! From where had he come? All such meetings were held secretly with closed doors, for fear of the Jews (John 20: 19, 26), but here was a sudden appearance without a visible approach; and they were terrified, and supposed they had seen a spirit. Then he comforted them, told them to calm their fears, and showed them his hands and his feet, saying, It is I, myself; handle me and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have. And while they yet believed not for joy, and wondered, he said unto them, Have ye here any meat? and they gave him a piece of a broiled fish, and he took it and did eat before them. Then he opened their understanding, their mental eyes, and expounded the Scriptures to them, showing from the law and the prophets that these things had come to pass exactly as foretold. But Thomas was absent (John 20: 24); and when the other disciples told him that they had seen the Lord, he would not believe it, but said, Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe.

Eight days passed without further manifestations, and they had time calmly to think and talk over the experiences of that wonderful day, when, the disciples being again assembled as before, Jesus stood in their midst, just as on the first evening, saying, Peace be unto you (John 20: 26). This time Thomas was present, and the Lord addressed him, saying, Thomas, reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side; and be not faithless, but believing. He thus showed that he knew what Thomas had said without being told, and he gave that proof of his resurrection which Thomas had said would satisfy him; and with joy Thomas answered, My Lord and my God!

After this, there must have been quite a long interval before there was any further manifestation of the Lord's presence, and the disciples who were Galileans began to think of home and the future; and remembering the Lord's message by the women, that he would go before them into Galilee, they went thither. Probably on their way, the Lord met them, as Matthew relates, in a mountain. They were perplexed; they no longer felt the same familiarity they once had toward him; he seemed so changed since his crucifixion from what he used to be—he appeared and disappeared in such peculiar times and places; he no longer seemed like the man Christ Jesus; so Matthew says they worshiped him; but some doubted. After a few words with them the Lord "vanished" from their sight, and left them to wonder what next would happen. For some time after their return to Galilee nothing unusual occurred, and there was no further indication of the Lord's presence. Doubtless they met together and talked over the situation, and wondered why he did not appear to them more frequently.

As they waited, the days and the weeks seemed long. They had long ago given up the ordinary pursuits of life, to follow the Lord from place to place, learning of him, and preaching to others, "The Kingdom of heaven is at hand" (Matt. 10: 5-7). They did not wish to go back to the old pursuits; and yet, how should they proceed with the Lord's work? They comprehended the situation clearly enough to know that they could no longer preach as formerly the kingdom at hand; for all the people knew that their Master and King had been crucified, and none but themselves knew of his resurrection. While all of the eleven were thus perplexed and anxious, waiting for something, they knew not what, Peter said, Well, it will not do to remain idle: I will go back to my old fishing business; and six of the others said, We will do the same: we will go with you (John 21: 3). And probably the rest also returned to their old employments.

Who can doubt that the Lord was invisibly present with them many times as they talked together, overruling and directing the course of circumstances, etc., for their highest good? If they should have great success and become swallowed up by interest in business, they would soon be unfit for the higher service; yet if they should have no success, it would seem like forcing them; so the Lord adopted a plan which taught them a lesson such as he often teaches his followers, the success or failure of their efforts, in any direction, he can control if he please.

The firm of fishermen reorganized, got together their boats, nets, etc., and went out for their first catch. But they toiled all night and caught no fish, and began to feel disheartened. In the morning a stranger on shore calls to them to know of their success. Poor success! We have caught nothing, they answer. Try again, said the stranger. Now cast your net on the other side of the boat. No use, stranger, we have tried both sides all night long, and if there were fish on one side, there would be on the other. But we will try again and let you see. They did so, and got an immense haul. How strange! said some; but the quick and impressible John got the correct idea, and said, Brethren, the Lord only could do this. Don't you remember the feeding of the multitudes, etc.? That must be the Lord on shore, and this is another way that he has chosen to manifest himself to us. Don't you remember that it was just so when the Lord first called us? Then, too, we had toiled all night and caught nothing until he called to us, saying, "Let down your nets for a draught" (Luke 5: 4-11). Yes, surely that is the Lord, though, since his resurrection, we cannot recognize him by his appearance. He now appears in a variety of forms; but we know each time that it is he by some peculiar circumstance like this calling to mind some incident of our past acquaintance with him.

When they got to shore they found that Jesus had bread as well as fish, and they learned the lesson, that under his direction and care and in his service they would not be left to starve (Luke 12: 29, 30). They did not ask him if he were the Lord; for on this as on other occasions, the eyes of their understanding being opened, they knew him, not by physical sight, but by the miracle. Then followed the instructions of that delightful hour, re-assuring Peter of his continued acceptance despite his denial of the Lord, for which he repented and wept. He learned afresh of his Master's love, and of his continued privilege of feeding the sheep and the lambs. We seem to hear the Lord say, You need not go back to the fishing business, Peter: I called you once to be a fisher of men, and, knowing your heart to be still loyal and zealous, I renew your commission as a fisher of men.

"Eating together with them, he commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, which, saith he, ye have heard of me. For John truly baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days hence" (Acts 1: 6, margin). So they came to Jerusalem as instructed, and here forty days after his resurrection he met with them for the last time and talked with them. They summoned courage this time to question him about the kingdom he had promised them, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore the kingdom to Israel? This thought of the kingdom was the one uppermost in the mind of every Jew. Israel, they understood, was to be chief among the nations under Messiah, and they knew not of the long Times of the Gentiles, and they saw not yet that the chief blessing had been taken from fleshly Israel (Matt. 21: 43; Rom. 11: 7), and that they themselves were to be members of spiritual Israel, the royal priesthood and holy nation, through whom, as the body of Christ, the blessing of the world would come. They as yet understood none of these things. How could they? They had not yet received the holy Spirit of adoption as sons, but were still under condemnation; because, though the ransom-sacrifice had been made by the Redeemer, it had not yet been formally presented on our behalf in the Most Holy, even Heaven itself (John 7: 39). Hence our Lord did not attempt an explanatory answer to their question, but said, "It is not for you [now] to know the times and seasons which the Father hath put in his own power. *But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Spirit is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth"—Acts 1: 7, 8.

Then the Lord, who was walking with them, when they reached the Mount of Olives, lifted his hands and blessed them, and he was parted from them and went upward; and a cloud received him out of their sight (Luke 24: 48-52; Acts 1: 6-15). They began to see something more of God's plan now. The Lord who came down from heaven had returned to the Father, as he had told them before he died, had gone to prepare a place for them and would come again and receive them, had gone afar to receive the promised kingdom, and to return (Luke 19: 12); and meantime they were to be his witnesses in all the earth to call and make ready a people to receive him when he would come to be glorified in his saints, and to reign King of kings and Lord of lords. They saw their new mission, of proclaiming

*This power to know and to understand times and seasons, and all things pertaining to a proper witnessing, applies to the whole Church from first to last; and under the guidance and power of the holy Spirit, meat in due season concerning every feature of the plan is provided, in order that we may be his witnesses, to the end of this age—John 16: 12, 13.

to every creature a coming king from heaven, with all power in heaven and in earth, to be a much more important work than that of the preceding years, when they heralded the man Christ Jesus, and followed him who was despised and rejected of men. Their risen Lord was changed indeed, not only in his personal appearance, appearing sometimes in one way and place, and again in a different way and place, manifesting his all power, but he was changed in nature also. No longer did he appeal to the Jews, nor show himself to them; for since his resurrection none saw him in any sense except his friends and followers. His words, Yet a little while, and the world seeth me no more, were thus verified.

Thus was the faith of the apostles and of the early Church established in the Lord's resurrection. Their doubts were scattered, and their hearts rejoiced; and they returned to Jerusalem and continued in prayer and study of the Scriptures, waiting for the sonship promised by the Father, and their endowment with spiritual understanding, and with special miraculous powers, to enable them to convince true Israelites, and to establish the Gospel Church, at the day of Pentecost—Acts 1: 14; 2: 1.

Though our Lord at his second advent will not manifest his presence in the same way as he did during those forty days after his resurrection, yet we have his assurance the brethren shall not be in darkness. Nay, more: we shall have an aid which they could not and did not have to help them during those forty days, power from on high, to guide us into the understanding of every truth due to be understood, and, even as promised, to show us things to come. Hence in due season we shall have full understanding of the manner, time and attendant circumstances of his appearing, which, if carefully watched for and marked, will be no less convincing than were the evidences of our Lord's resurrection furnished to the early Church, although of a different kind.

That our Lord at his second advent could assume the human form, and thus appear to men, as he did to his disciples after his resurrection, there can be no question; not only because he thus appeared during those forty days, but because spirit beings have in the past manifested the power to appear as men in flesh and in various forms. But such a manifestation would be out of harmony with the general tenor of God's plan, as well as out of harmony with the Scriptural indications given, relative to the manner of his manifestation, as we shall see. Instead, it is the Lord's plan that his spiritual kingdom shall communicate, operate, and manifest its presence and power through human, earthly agencies. Just as the prince of this world, Satan, though unseen by men, exercises a wide influence in the world through those subject to, possessed of, and controlled by his spirit, so the new Prince of Peace, the Lord, will chiefly operate in, and manifest his presence and power through, human beings, subject to, and possessed of, and controlled by his spirit.

Seeing with the natural eye and hearing with the natural ear are not all there is of seeing and hearing. No man hath seen God at any time thus, yet all God's children have seen him, and known him, and held communion with him (John 1: 18; 5: 37; 14: 7). We hear God's call, our high calling, we hear the voice of our Shepherd, and are constantly looking unto Jesus, and see the prize, the crown of life which he promises, not by natural sight and hearing, but by our understanding. Far more precious is the sight we have of our Lord as the spiritual, highly exalted King of glory, our Redeemer as well as our King, by the eyes of our understanding and faith, than the sight afforded to the natural eye before Pentecost.

There was a necessity for our Lord's appearing in the manner he did to his disciples, after his resurrection, that will not exist at his second advent. His object then will be better served in another way. In fact, to appear so at his second advent would be detrimental to the purpose to be accomplished. His object in appearing to his disciples after his resurrection was to convince them that he who was dead is alive forever, that they might go forth as witnesses to the fact of his resurrection (Luke 24: 48), and that their testimony might be a sure foundation for the faith of coming generations. Since no man can come to God acceptably, to receive the holy Spirit of adoption, without faith in Christ, it became necessary, not only for the sake of the disciples then, but for all since, that the evidences of his resurrection and change should be such as natural men could grasp and appreciate. After they had been partakers of the holy Spirit and understood spiritual things (See 1 Cor. 2: 12-16), they could have believed the angels at the sepulcher, that he had risen from the dead condition, even if they had seen the fleshly body of the man Christ Jesus still lying in the tomb; but not so before—the body must be away to make faith in his resurrection possible to them. After the holy Spirit enabled them to discern spiritual things, they could have believed the testimony of the prophets that he must die, and would rise from the dead, and that he would be highly exalted as King of glory, without its being needful for him to appear as a man, and assume various bodies of flesh as a garment, so that they could handle and see him ascend. But all this was needful for them and for all natural men. By faith, we come to God by him and receive forgiveness and the Spirit of sonship, to understand spiritual things.

Even while removing the natural obstacles to faith, by assuming human form, etc., our Lord convinced the disciples, and made them witnesses to others, not by their natural sight and touch, but by reasoning with them out of the Bible: "Then opened he their understanding, that they might understand the Scriptures, and said unto them, Thus it is written, and thus it behooved Christ to suffer and to rise from the dead the third day, and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem. And ye are witnesses of these things" (Luke 24: 45-48). Peter also states this object clearly, saying, "Him God raised up the third day, and permitted him to become manifest—NOT TO ALL THE PEOPLE, but to those witnesses previously chosen of God, to us, who did eat and drink with him after he arose from the dead. And he commanded us to proclaim to the people that this [the resurrected Jesus] is he who has been appointed by God the judge of the living and the dead"—Acts 10: 40-42—Diaglott.

With our Lord, after his resurrection, it was simply a question of expediency as to which way of appearing to his disciples would best accomplish his object, of making known his resurrection and change of nature. Had he appeared as a flame of fire, as the angel appeared to Moses in the burning bush (Exod. 3: 2), he might indeed have conversed with them, but the evidence thus given would have been far from being as convincing as the method he did adopt, both to the apostles and to the world at large to whom they witnessed.

If he had appeared in the glory of the spirit form, as the angel did to Daniel (Dan. 10: 5-8), the glory would have been greater than the witnesses could have borne. They would probably have been so alarmed as to be unable to receive instructions from him. To none except Paul did the Lord ever thus show himself; and Paul was so overcome by that glimpse of his glory that he fell to the ground and was blinded by its brightness, which was above that of the sun at noonday.

In our examination of the method of manifestation adopted by our Lord during those forty days, we saw that he "permitted" himself to become manifest even to the chosen witnesses only a few times, and then but briefly. The entire time that he was manifest to them, had it all been crowded into one day instead of being at intervals during the forty days, would probably have been less than twelve hours, or one eightieth of that entire time. This being true, it is evident that he was present with them unseen about seventy-nine eightieths of that period of forty days. And when they did have manifestations, they were not (except once, repeated to St. Thomas) in a form exactly like the one they had known so intimately for three years, and had seen but a few days before. It is not once intimated that they knew him by the features of his face, nor even that he was recognized by the same appearance as in other manifestations.

Mary supposed him to be "the gardener." To the two on their way to Emmaus he was "a stranger." He was also a stranger to the fishermen on the sea of Galilee, and to the eleven in the upper room. On every occasion he was recognized by his actions, his words, or the familiar tones of his voice.

When Thomas declared that only the proof which addressed his natural sight and touch would be acceptable to him, the Lord, though granting the demand, gently reproved him, saying, Because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed; blessed are those who believe, not having seen (John 20: 27-29). The stronger evidence was that which was not addressed to sight, and more blessed are those who hold themselves in readiness to receive the truth through whatsoever proofs God is pleased to show it.

He thus showed them, not only that he now had the power to appear in a variety of ways and forms, but also that no one of those bodies which they saw was his spiritual, glorious body, though the facts of his resurrection and presence were thus manifested to them. The different forms, and the long intervals of invisible presence with no outward manifestation, made evident the fact that though their Lord and teacher was alive and not yet ascended to the Father, he was a spirit being, really invisible to human sight, but with ability to manifest his presence and power in a variety of ways at pleasure.*

The creating of the body and clothing in which he appeared to them, in the very room in which they were gathered, was proof unquestionable Christ was no longer human, though he assured his disciples that the body which they saw, and which Thomas handled, was a veritable flesh and bone body, and not a vision or appearance.† As

*The event recorded by Luke (4: 30) should not be regarded as parallel to his appearing and vanishing after his resurrection. That was not a disappearance in the sense of becoming invisible to the people. It was an adroit, prompt movement, by which he eluded the murderous design of his enemies. Before they had executed their plans for his death he turned and passed through their midst, no man daring or able to molest him, for his hour had not yet come.

†Let no one hastily suppose that we are here following Spiritism, Swedenborgianism or any other ism. We are following and logically connecting the apostolic account. The vast difference between the Bible teaching and that counterfeit of it promulgated by Satan, known as Spiritualism, we discern and shall examine in a succeeding volume. Suffice it here to point out that Spiritism affects to communicate between dead and living men, while the Bible condemns this (Isa. 8: 19), teaching that such communications as were true have been made only by spirit beings, such as angels, and by our Lord; and not by our Lord while he was the man Christ Jesus, nor while he was dead, but after his resurrection change, when he had become a life-giving or "quickenning spirit" being.

a human being he could not come into the room without opening the door, but as a spirit he could, and there he instantly created and assumed such a body of flesh and such clothing as he saw fit for the purpose.

Nor can we for a moment admit the suggestion offered by some, that our Lord opened the doors without being observed; for the record is plain and clear that he came and stood in their midst while the doors were shut—probably very carefully barred and bolted too—"for fear of the Jews"—John 20: 19, 26.

The lesson of his changed nature was still further emphasized by his manner of leaving their sight: "He vanished out of their sight." The human body of flesh and bones, etc., and its clothing, which appeared suddenly while the doors were shut, did not go out of the door, but simply disappeared or dissolved into the same elements from which he had created them a few moments before. He vanished out of their sight, and was no longer seen of them when the flesh and bones and clothing in which he had manifested himself were dissolved, though doubtless he was still with them—invisibly present; and so also much of the time during those forty days.

On special occasions, for special instruction, God has granted similar power to other spirit beings, angels, enabling them to appear as men, in bodies of flesh and bones which ate and talked to those they instructed, just as our Lord did—Gen. 18; Judg. 6: 11-22; 13: 3-20; and Vol. 1, 178 to 184.

The power manifested by our Lord and the angels to create and dissolve the clothing in which they appeared, was just as superhuman as the creating and dissolving of their assumed human bodies; and the bodies were no more their glorious spiritual bodies than were the clothes they wore. It will be remembered that the seamless robe and other clothing which our Redeemer wore before his crucifixion had been divided among the Roman soldiers, and that the grave clothes were left folded away in the sepulcher (John 19: 23, 24; 20: 5-7), so that the clothing in which he appeared on the occasions mentioned must have been specially created, and probably was the most appropriate for each occasion. For instance, when he appeared as a gardener to Mary, it was probably in such apparel as a gardener would wear.

That the bodies in which our Lord appeared were real human bodies, and not mere delusions, he gave them to understand when he ate before them, and invited them to handle him and see that the body was real flesh and bones, saying, Why are ye troubled? ... Behold my hands and my feet ... handle me and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have.

Some Christians draw absurd conclusions from this expression of our Lord as to the verity of his assumed flesh and bone body. They regard the assumed body as his spirit body, and declare that a spirit body is flesh and bones, and like a human body, excepting that an indefinable something, which they call spirit, flows through its veins instead of blood. They seem to disregard the statement of our Lord, that this was not a spirit body, that a spirit being has not flesh and bones. Do they also forget John's statement, that it doth not yet appear what a spirit body is, and that we shall not know until we are changed and made like him and see him, not as he was, but as he is (1 John 3: 2)? Do they also forget the Apostle Paul's express statement that "flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God"? And his further assurance that therefore all the heirs with Christ must also "be changed"—1 Cor. 15: 50, 51?

Many Christians have the idea that our Lord's glorious spiritual body is the very same body that was crucified and laid away in Joseph's tomb: they expect, when they see the Lord in glory, to identify him by the scars he received on Calvary. This is a mistake, which a little consideration should make manifest, Firstly, It would prove that his resurrection body is not glorious or perfect, but scarred and disfigured: Secondly, It would prove that we do know what a spirit body is, despite the Apostle's statement to the contrary: Thirdly, It would prove that our redemption price was taken back; for Jesus said, My flesh I will give for the life of the world. It was his flesh, his life as a man, his humanity, that was sacrificed for our redemption. And when he was raised again by the power of the Father, it was not to human existence; because that was sacrificed as our purchase price. And if that price had been taken back, we would still be under the condemnation of death, and without hope.

We have no more reason to suppose that our Lord's spirit body since his resurrection is a human body than we have for supposing that his spirit body prior to his first advent was human, or that other spirit beings have human bodies; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones; and, says the Apostle Peter, our Lord was "put to death in the flesh but made alive in spirit."

Our Lord's human body was, however, supernaturally removed from the tomb; because had it remained there it would have been an insurmountable obstacle to the faith of the disciples, not yet instructed in spiritual things; for the spirit was not yet given (John 7: 39). We know nothing about what became of it, except that it did not decay or corrupt (Acts 2: 27, 31). Whether it was dissolved into gases or whether it is still preserved somewhere as the grand memorial of God's love, of Christ's obedience, and of our redemption, no one knows; nor is such knowledge necessary. That God miraculously hid the body of Moses, we are assured (Deut. 34: 6; Jude 9); and that as a memorial God miraculously preserved from corruption the manna in the golden bowl, which was placed in the Ark under the Mercy Seat in the Tabernacle, and that it was a symbol of our Lord's flesh, the bread from heaven, we also know (Exod. 16: 20, 33; Heb. 9: 4; John 6: 51-58). Hence it will not surprise us if, in the Kingdom, God shall show to the world the body of flesh, crucified for all in giving the ransom on their behalf—not permitted to corrupt, but preserved as an everlasting testimony of infinite love and perfect obedience. It is at least possible that John 19: 37 and Zech. 12: 10 may have such a fulfillment. Those who cried, Crucify him! may yet, as witnesses, identify the body pierced by spear and torn by nails and thorns.

To regard our Lord's glorious body as a body of flesh would not in the least account for his peculiar and sudden appearances during those forty days prior to his ascension. How could he so suddenly appear and then vanish? How was it that he kept himself almost constantly invisible during those forty days? Why was it that his appearance each time was so changed as not to be recognized as the same seen on former occasions, or as the one well known and loved by all before his crucifixion only a few days earlier?

It will not do merely to say that these were miracles, for then some use or necessity for the miracles should be named. If his body after his resurrection were flesh and bones, and the same body that was crucified, with all the features and scars, why did he perform miracles which not only did not establish that fact, but which were likely, we see, to teach the opposite?—that he himself was no longer human, flesh and bones, but a spirit being who could go and come as the wind, so that none could tell whence he came or whither he went, but who, for the purpose of instructing them, appeared as a man in various bodies of flesh and bones which he created and dissolved as occasion required.

Before our Lord's crucifixion, he had been on familiar terms with his disciples, but after his resurrection, though he loved them none the less, his manner toward them was more reserved. This was doubtless to impress them more forcibly with the dignity and honor of his high exaltation, and to inspire due reverence for his person and authority. Though as a man Jesus never lacked that dignity of deportment which commands respect, yet a greater reserve was necessary and expedient after his change to the divine nature. Such reserve has always been maintained by Jehovah toward his creatures, and is expedient under the circumstances. This reserve marked all our Lord's interviews with the disciples after his resurrection. They were very brief, even as he had said, Hereafter I will not talk much with you—John 14: 30.

Those who believe that our Heavenly Father is a spirit and not a man should find no difficulty in realizing that our Lord Jesus, who is now exalted to the divine nature, and who is not only a moral likeness of God but in fact the express image of the Father's person, is no longer a man but a spirit being, whom no man hath seen nor can see without a miracle. It is just as impossible for men to see the unveiled glory of the Lord Jesus as it is for them to behold Jehovah. Think for a moment how even a reflection of the spiritual glory affected Moses and Israel at Sinai (Heb. 12: 21; Exod. 19; 20: 19-21; 33: 20-23; 34: 29-35). So terrible was the sight, so overwhelming and fear-inspiring, that Moses said, I exceedingly fear and quake. Though Moses was supernaturally strengthened to behold the glory of the Lord, so that for forty days and forty nights, alone with God, overshadowed by his glory and without either food or drink, he received and wrote the divine law (Exod. 34: 28), yet when he desired to see the Lord face to face he was told, "Thou canst not see my face; for there shall no man see me and live" (Exod. 33: 20). All that Moses saw, therefore, was an appearance representing God, and nothing more was possible. This accords, too, with the Apostle's statements: No man hath seen God at any time; he is the King immortal, invisible, whom no man hath seen nor can see (1 Tim. 6: 15, 16). That spirits can and do see God, who himself is a spirit, is clearly stated—Matt. 18: 10.

If our Lord is still the man Christ Jesus, who gave himself a ransom for all (1 Tim. 2: 5, 6), if being put to death in the flesh he was raised again in the flesh, and not, as the Apostle declares, a life-giving spirit—then instead of being exalted higher than angels and every name that is named in heaven and in earth, he is still a man. And if he retains the form of a servant, which he took for the purpose of suffering death for every man, and is still a little lower than the angels, he never can see God. But how unreasonable such a view when fully examined in the light of apostolic testimony. Consider, too, if our Lord's flesh, that was pierced and wounded with nail and spear and crown of thorns, and marked with sorrow, is his glorious body, and if the scars and marred human features are part and parcel of the exalted Lord, he would be far from beautiful, even if we should love the wounds endured for us. If he thus bears an imperfect, scarred, marred body, if we shall be like him, would it not imply that the apostles and saints who were crucified, beheaded, stoned to death, burned, cut to pieces and torn by beasts, as well as those who met with accidents, would each bear his blemishes and scars? And in that view would not heaven present an awful spectacle to all eternity? This is not the case, and no one could long hold so unreasonable and unbiblical a view. Spirit beings are perfect in every particular, and so the Apostle reminds the Church, who are heirs of heavenly or spiritual glory and honor, that, though sown in weakness [with marks and wounds, etc.] it [the being] is raised in power; though sown in dishonor [with lines of care and sorrow, etc.] it is raised in glory; though sown a natural body [literally, an animal body] it will be raised a spiritual body; and that as we have borne the image of the earthly father, we shall bear the image of the heavenly Lord (1 Cor. 15: 42-51). Our Lord Jesus for our sakes took and bore the image of the earthly also, for a while, that he might redeem us. But in his resurrection he became the heavenly Lord (Rom. 14: 9), and we, if faithful, shall soon bear the image of the heavenly Lord (spiritual bodies), as we now still bear the image of the earthly lord, Adam (human bodies).

Remember Paul's case. In order that he might be one of the apostles, he must witness, must see the Lord after his resurrection. He was not one who saw the manifestations of resurrection and presence during the forty days, hence he was given a special glimpse of the Lord. But he saw him, not as did the others, veiled in flesh and garments of various forms. And a glance at the unveiled glorious person of our Lord caused him to fall to the ground blinded with a glory far above the brightness of the sun at noonday, from which blindness, to restore him to even partial sight required a miracle (Acts 9: 17, 18). Did not Paul see the Lord as he is, a spiritual being? Did not our Lord during the forty days appear as he was, as he had been previously, for the special purposes and reasons already pointed out? There is no room to doubt this. But the Lord had an object in appearing to Paul thus, just as he had, and served another object by appearing differently to the others. This object Paul shows, saying: Last of all he was seen of me also, as by one born before the due time (1 Cor. 15: 8—literal rendering). As the resurrection of our Lord was his birth from the dead, to the perfection of spiritual being (Col. 1: 18; Rom. 8: 29), so the resurrection of the Church, the body of Christ, is here and elsewhere referred to as a birth. In our birth as spirit beings, we shall see the Lord as he is, just as Paul saw him; but we, being changed or born then, as spirit beings, will not be stricken down nor blinded with the sight of our Lord's glorious person. Paul's statement means he saw him as we shall see him as he is, he saw him as all the body of Christ shall see him, but before the due time, before he was born from the dead, and therefore before able to endure it; yet "as" each one so born shall in due time see him.

Moses, coming down from the mount to communicate to Israel the Law Covenant, was a type of the greater Lawgiver and Mediator of a New Covenant, who at his second advent shall come to rule and bless the world. Moses typified, therefore, the entire Church, of which our Lord is the Head. Moses' face was caused to shine, so that the people could not look at him, and he must thereafter wear a veil, a type of the spiritual glory of Christ, an illustration of the point we are now examining. Christ has the real glory and brightness, the express image of the Father's person, and we shall be like him, and no man can behold that glory; hence whatever manifestation of the Law-giver there will be to the world when the Lord's glory shall be revealed, the glory of the spiritual persons cannot be seen. They will speak through the veil, under the cover. This and more, was meant by Moses' veil—Exod. 34: 30-33.

As we give the matter careful study, we come more and more to recognize divine wisdom displayed in the manner of revealing the resurrection of our Lord to the apostles, that they should be thoroughly satisfied and reliable witnesses, and that the meek of the world might be able to receive their testimony and believe that God raised our Lord from the dead, that they might recognize him as the one that was dead, but is now alive forevermore, and, believing, might come unto God by him. And as we consider him under the leadings of the holy Spirit of truth, our minds expand and we see him no more the man Christ Jesus, but the Lord of glory and power, partaker of the divine nature. And thus we know him, for whose coming and kingdom the Church has earnestly prayed and longed. And no one properly recognizing his great exaltation can expect at his second coming the man Christ Jesus in the body of flesh taken for sacrifice and wounded and given in death as our ransom. Nor should we expect, at his second coming he would appear, or manifest himself, in various flesh and bone forms to the world, that was needful for those early witnesses, but not so now. He will, as we shall see, manifest his second presence differently.

From what we have seen as to spirit beings and their manifestations in times past, evidently if our Lord were to manifest himself at his second advent either by opening men's eyes to behold his glory, as he did with Paul, or by assuming a human body, it would be detrimental to the plan revealed in his Word. The effect of appearing in glory to the world, their eyes being miraculously wrought upon to enable them to see him, would be almost to paralyze them with the overwhelming sight, while to appear as a man would be to lower the standard of dignity and give a lower than the true estimate of the divine nature and form. As neither would seem to be necessary or advisable now, we cannot presume that either of these methods will be adopted.

On the contrary, we should expect the Christ would be manifest in the flesh of mankind in the same manner as when the Lord was made flesh and dwelt among men, God manifest in his flesh. Human nature, when perfect and in harmony with God, is a likeness of God in the flesh; hence the originally perfect Adam was a likeness of God, and the man Christ Jesus was also; so that he could say to Philip, who asked to see the Father, He that hath seen me hath seen the Father, he hath seen the likeness of God in the flesh, God manifest in the flesh.

So mankind in general, as its members come gradually back to the long-lost image of God, will be fleshly likenesses of the Father and of the Christ. At the very beginning of the Millennium, as we have seen, there will be samples of perfect manhood before the world (Vol. 1, 287-293): Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and the holy prophets, already tried and approved, will be the princes among men, the exponents and representatives of the spiritual, invisible kingdom. In these Christ will be manifested, in their flesh, even as the Father was manifested in his flesh. And as whosoever will reaches perfection and comes into full harmony with the will of Christ, every such one will be an image of God and of Christ, and in each of these Christ will be manifested.

Because created in God's moral image, the perfect man, fully consecrated, will be able to appreciate perfectly the holy Spirit and Word of God; and the glorified Church will direct him. No doubt, too, visions and direct revelations, and general communication between the spiritual kingdom and its earthly representatives, will be much more free and general than similar communications ever were before, more after the order of the communions of Eden, before sin brought condemnation and separation from God's favor and communion.

Nothing in reason or in Scripture, demands our Lord shall at his second advent appear in various bodies of flesh and bones. That such a procedure is not essential is evident from the success of Satan's kingdom, which operates through human beings as agents. Those who partake of the spirit of evil and error represent the great unseen prince, most fully. He is thus manifest in their flesh, though himself a spirit, invisible to men.

The Christ changed, made partakers of the divine nature, shall be spirit beings as truly as is Satan, and equally invisible to men. Their operations will be similar in manner, though opposite in character and results; their honored agents, not bound and made slaves by ignorance and weakness, as are most of the servants of Satan, but made perfect, and free indeed, will act intelligently and harmoniously, from choice and from love; and their appointments will be rewards of righteousness.

Jesus' presence will be manifested to the world by exhibitions of power and great glory, not merely to the natural sight, but to the eyes of their understanding, as they shall open to an appreciation of the changes which the new Ruler shall effect. His presence and righteous authority will be recognized in the punishments and the blessings that will flow to mankind from his reign.

It has long been generally believed that trouble comes as punishments for evil doing, upon the wicked. This seeming to be a natural and proper law, people in general have accepted it, thinking that it should be so, even if it is not; yet the facts of experience agree with the Bible, that it has been the godly who have oftenest suffered afflictions and persecutions (2 Tim. 3: 12). But in the Day of Trouble, the period of years introducing Messiah's reign, this order will begin to be reversed. In that day, evil powers are to be overthrown, and righteousness, established by a gradual process, shall speedily work out a fitting retribution to evil-doers, and blessings to them that do good: Tribulation and anguish upon every soul of man that doeth evil—but glory, honor and peace to every man that worketh good in that day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God, who will render to every man according to his deeds (Rom. 2: 9, 10, 6, 5). And since there is so much that is wrong now, the retribution will be heavy at first, making a time of trouble such as was not since there was a nation. Thus, in vengeance, trouble and wrath upon the nations, will the Lord reveal to the world the fact of the change of dispensations, and the change of rulers. And thus, When the judgments of the Lord are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness (Isa. 26: 5-11). They will learn that under the new order of things right-doers are to be exalted and evil-doers restrained and punished. For clear prophetic testimony relative to this kingdom and its operation on behalf of the humble, the upright, the poor, the needy and the oppressed, and its overthrow of monopolies and every system of injustice and oppression, and the general equalization of human affairs, read carefully Psalm 72: 1-19; 37: 1-14.

Our King will reveal himself gradually: some will discern the new Ruler sooner than others, but ultimately every eye shall see [horao, discern] him (Rev. 1: 7). But he cometh with clouds; and while the clouds of trouble are heavy and dark, when the mountains (kingdoms of this world) are trembling and falling, and the earth (society) is being shaken, disintegrated, melted, some will begin to realize what we proclaim as already at hand, that the great day of Jehovah has come; that the foretold day of trouble and wrath upon the nations is beginning; and that Jehovah's Anointed is taking to himself his great power and beginning his work, of laying justice to the line and righteousness to the plummet (Isa. 28: 17). And he must reign until he shall have put down all authorities and laws on earth, contrary to those which control in heaven.

As the trouble increases, men will seek, but in vain, for protection in the "dens" and caves, the great rocks and fortresses of society (Free Masonry, Odd Fellowship, and Trades Unions, Guilds, Trusts, and all societies secular and ecclesiastical), and in the mountains (governments) of earth; saying, "Fall over* [cover, protect] and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb; for the great day of his wrath is come"—Rev. 6: 15-17.

The idolatry of money in which the whole world has gone mad, and which is to have so prominent a place in the trouble, causing not only anxiety for its accumulation, but also for its preservation, is to be completely overthrown, as shown in Isa. 2: 8-21; Ezek. 7: 17-19.

The day of trouble will be recognized, and from its storm all will seek protection, though few will recognize the judgments of the Lord then abroad in the world as the result of his presence, the setting up of his authority, and the enforcement of his laws. But in the end all shall see,

*The Greek word epi, here used, is generally translated on, but has also the meaning of over and about, and is so translated many times in the A.V. The thought is that of protection, not of destruction. The common view of this passage, that it teaches wicked men will get faith enough to pray for literal mountains to fall, is absurd. The fulfillment is now beginning: the great, the rich, and no less the poor, are seeking to the mountains and rocks and caves for shelter from the storm of trouble which all see is gathering.

recognize, the King of glory; and all who then love righteousness will rejoice to obey him and conform themselves fully to his just requirements.

That will be a time of retribution upon all who by fraud or force, sometimes in the name of law and under its sanction, have unjustly grasped the rights or property of others. The retribution, as we have seen, will come from the Lord, through the uprising of the masses of the people. In their distress, loth to part with a dollar, an acre or an assumed right or dignity long enjoyed and undisputed, yet seeing the approaching retribution, many will seek the covering of the hitherto powerful organizations, civil, social and ecclesiastical, to promote and shield their interests, feeling alone they must fall. But these shall not be able to deliver them in the day of the Lord's anger. The nearing conflict and retribution will cause all the families of the earth to wail; for it will be a time of trouble such as was not since there was a nation, no, nor ever shall be again. It will be because of him that they will wail; because of his judgments producing in a natural way the great trouble; because the Lord ariseth to shake the earth, and to destroy its corruptions (Isa. 2: 21). So far-reaching will be the judgments and the trouble that none shall escape. Ultimately every eye shall discern the change, and recognize that the Lord reigneth. The trouble might be lessened could men see and promptly act upon principles of equity, ignoring and relinquishing all unjust privileges of the past, even though legalized; but this, selfishness will not permit until the trouble shall break and overthrow the proud, humble the powerful and exalt the meek.

But not until the great day of trouble is about closing, not until the Gentile kingdoms are ground to powder and utterly removed, no place being found for them after 1914, as shown in a former chapter, not until great Babylon is utterly overthrown and her influence over the world broken, will the great mass of mankind come to realize the true state of the case. Then they will see the trouble through which they will have passed was that symbolically termed The battle of the great day of God Almighty (Rev. 16: 14); that in proportion as they have aided error and wrong, they have been battling against the law and forces of the new empire and Ruler of earth; and that in proportion as their tongues, pens, hands, influence and means, were used to support the right and the truth on any subject, they had been to that extent fighting on the Lord's side.

Some will learn the significance of the trouble more quickly than others, because more teachable. And during all the trouble there will be in the world those who will bear witness to its cause, declaring Jesus' presence and the setting up of his kingdom which is in opposition to the powers of darkness to be the cause of the trouble and shaking and overturning of society, showing that all who oppose truth and righteousness are the enemies of the new kingdom, and that unless they surrender they must soon suffer ignominious defeat. Yet the masses will be heedless of wise counsel, as they have always been, until humbled under the iron rule of the new kingdom, only at last realizing the folly of their course.

The true teacher and light bearer (Matt. 5: 14), the true Church, Christ's body, is not to be left in darkness to learn of her Lord's presence by the manifestations of his wrath and power, as the world will learn of it. For her enlightenment special provision has been made. By the sure word of prophecy, which shines as a light in a dark place, she is clearly and definitely informed just what to expect (2 Pet. 1: 19). By the prophetic word, she shall not only be shielded from discouragement, and enabled to overcome the besetments, snares and stumbling-stones so prevalent in the evil day, and thus to stand approved of God, but she is the light-bearer and instructor of the world. The Church is enabled to point out to the world the cause of the trouble, to announce the presence of the new Ruler, to declare the policy, plan and object of the new dispensation, and to instruct the world as to the wisest course to pursue in view of these things. And though men will not give heed to the instruction until the lesson of submission has been forced upon them by the trouble, it will aid them then in learning the lesson. It is to this mission of the feet or last members of the Church, who will declare upon the mountains (kingdoms) Christ's reign begun, that Isa. 52: 7 refers.

SEEMINGLY CONFLICTING SCRIPTURES.

There are some statements of Scripture as to the manner of the Lord's return and appearing which, until critically examined, appear to be contradictory of each other. And no doubt they have for centuries served the purpose of concealing the truth until the due time for it to be understood; even then, from all but the special class of consecrated ones for whom it was intended.

For instance, our Lord said, Behold, I come as a thief; and, As it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of man [the days of his presence]: They did eat, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage ... and knew not until the flood came. And when Jesus was questioned of the Pharisees when the Kingdom of God should come, he answered them and said, The Kingdom of God cometh not with observation [marginal reading, not with outward show]—Rev. 16: 15; Luke 17: 26, 27, 20; Matt. 24: 38, 39.

These scriptures state and illustrate the manner of the Lord's coming. They show that he will be present unseen, doing a work of which the world for a time will be unaware. His arrival must therefore be in a quiet manner, unobserved, and entirely unknown to the world, just as a thief would come, without noise or other demonstration to attract attention. As in the days of Noah the world went on with its affairs as usual, not at all disconcerted, and without the slightest faith in the preaching of Noah with reference to the coming flood, so in the early part of the Day of the Lord, the world, having no faith in the announcement of his presence and of the impending trouble, will go on as usual, giving no heed at all to any such preaching until, in the great flood of trouble, the old world, the old order of things, goes down, passes away, preparatory to the full establishment of the new order, the Kingdom of God under the whole heavens. "As it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be also in the days [of the presence] of the Son of man."

On the other hand, we find passages that at first sight seem to be in direct conflict with these; as, for instance: The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the Archangel, and with the trump of God. The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty messengers, in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. They [the world] shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. Behold, he cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see him—1 Thes. 4: 16; 2 Thes. 1: 7, 8; Matt. 24: 30; Rev. 1: 7.

As seekers after truth, it will not do for us to say, in view of these passages, that their majority seem to favor whatever view we incline to prefer, and then to ignore the others. Until we have a view of the matter in which every Bible statement finds a logical representation, we should not feel sure that we have the truth on the subject. One statement of God is as true and firm a foundation for faith, as a hundred. And it would be wiser to seek for a harmonious understanding than to arrive at a conclusion or adopt a theory based on a one-sided interpretation, and thus to deceive ourselves and others.

Christians generally make no effort to harmonize these statements, and therefore their ideas are one-sided and incorrect. The last group of statements is just as positive as the first, and apparently teaches the reverse of a quiet, unobserved, thief-like manner in the Lord's coming and presence. In addition to these, we are referred to two other illustrations of the manner of his coming: This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come, in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven, and, As the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be (Acts 1: 11; Matt. 24: 27). To reach a true conclusion, these also must be given due weight.

In our examination of the subject we should note that while our Lord stated, as a fact, that his kingdom would be established without outward show, and that his coming, his presence, would be as a thief, requiring close watching to apprehend and discern it, all of the above texts generally cited as proof of an outward, visible manifestation are in figurative language, except the one which says that he will come in like manner as he went away. The symbolic must bend in interpretation to the plainer, more literal statements, as soon as their symbolic character is recognized. Whenever a literal interpretation would do violence to reason, and also place the passage in direct antagonism to plain statements of Scripture, such passage should be considered figurative, and its interpretation as a symbol should be sought in harmony with plain and literal passages, and with the general character and object of the revealed plan. By recognizing and thus interpreting the symbols in this case, the beautiful harmony of all the statements is manifest. Let us now examine them and see how perfectly they agree with the statements which are not symbolic.

(a) The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the Archangel, and with the trump of God (1 Thes. 4: 16). The voice and the trumpet here mentioned correspond with the same figures used in Rev. 11: 15-19, The seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdom of this world is become the kingdom of our Lord, and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever. ... And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, etc. The same events are referred to in Daniel's prophecy: At that time shall Michael [Christ] stand up [assume control], the great Prince ... and there shall be a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation ... and many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake. And Paul adds to his mention of the voices and the trumpet the statement, The dead in Christ shall rise first. In 2 Tim. 4: 1 he states that Christ shall judge the quick (the living) and the dead, at this time of his appearing and kingdom; and the beginning of this judgment of the living nations is described as the greatest time of trouble the world has ever known—Dan. 12: 1.

Paul, John and Daniel evidently refer to the same time, the time of Jesus' appearing, and the establishment of his kingdom in the midst of a great time of trouble, and to the events preceding and introducing it. The same result is shown by each writer to follow the standing up of Michael, the voices and the trumpet: namely, trouble and wrath upon the nations and the resurrection of the dead. Next, mark the figure used:

With a shout. The Greek word here translated shout is keleusma, which means a cry of encouragement. A shout implies a message designed for the ears, not of a few, but of a mixed multitude. It is generally designed either to alarm and terrify or to assist and encourage. Or it may have this effect upon one class, and the reverse effect upon another, according to circumstances and conditions.

The aspect of affairs in the world for the past fifteen years strikingly corresponds with this symbol, in the outbursts of world-wide encouragement for men to wake up to a sense of their rights and privileges as men, and to consider their mutual relationships, the principles upon which they are based and the ends which they should accomplish. Where on the face of the earth is the civilized nation that has not heard the shout, and is not influenced by it! The civilized world has, in the past few years, been studying political economy, civil rights and social liberties as never before in history; and men are encouraging each other, and being encouraged, as never before, to probe these subjects to the foundation. The shout of encouragement started by the increase of knowledge among men has already encircled the earth, and under its influence men are banding themselves together, encouraged and assisted by men of brain and genius, to contend and strive for both real and fancied rights and liberties; and as their organizations increase and multiply, the shout grows louder and longer, and will by and by result as foretold, in the time of trouble and tumult of angry nations. This result is graphically described by the Prophet, "The noise of a multitude in the mountains [kingdoms] like as of a great people; a tumultuous noise of the kingdoms of nations gathered together: the Lord of hosts mustereth the host of battle" Isa.—13: 4.

The Voice of the Archangel is another striking symbol of similar import. The name archangel signifies chief messenger; and our anointed Lord himself is Jehovah's Chief Messenger, the Messenger of the Covenant (Mal. 3: 1). Daniel refers to the same personage, calling him* Michael, which name signifies who as God, a fitting name for him who is the express image of the Father's person, and the representative of his authority and power. The Archangel's voice represents Christ's authority and command. This symbol, then, represents Christ as taking control, beginning his reign and issuing commands, official orders, announcing the change of dispensation by the enforcement of the laws of his kingdom.

This thought is differently expressed by Daniel, when he says, Then shall Michael, the great Prince, stand up. To stand up signifies to assume authority, to give commands. See ariseth, Isa. 2: 19, 21. Another illustration of this symbol is from David, who says of Christ prophetically, He uttered his voice; the earth melted. The time of trouble will be precipitated, and the earth, society, will disintegrate, under the change of administration going into effect when the new King utters his voice of command. At his command systems of error, civil, social and religious, must go down, however old or firmly entrenched and fortified they may be. The sword out of his mouth shall cause the havoc; The truth on every subject, and in its varied aspects, shall judge men, and, under his power and overruling, shall cause the overturning of evil and error in all their thousand forms.

The Trump of God. Many seem thoughtlessly to entertain the idea that this trumpet will be a literal sound on the air. This will be seen to be an unreasonable expectation, when it is noticed that Paul here refers to what the Revelator designates The Seventh Trumpet, the Last Trump in a series of symbolic trumpets (Rev. 11: 15; 1 Cor. 15: 52). The proof that these references are to the same trumpet is found in the record of the events connected with each. Paul mentions the resurrection, and the establishment of the Lord's Kingdom, as connected with the trump of God, and the Revelator mentions the same with greater minuteness. The propriety of calling the seventh or last trump the trump of God, is evident, too, when we remember that the events mentioned under the preceding six trumpets of Revelation refer to humanity's doings, while the seventh refers specially to the Lord's work, and covers the Day of the Lord. Since the six preceding trumpets were symbols, and this is generally admitted by commentators and students who make any claim as expositors of Revelation, it would be a violation of reason and common sense to expect the seventh, the last of the series, to be a literal sound on the air. And not only so, but it would be out of harmony with the Lord's general methods, as well as with those statements of Scripture indicating the secrecy of his coming; for a thief never sounds a trumpet to announce his arrival.

The seven trumpets of Revelation are all symbolic, and represent seven periods of time and their events. The examination of these we leave for a subsequent volume. Suffice it here to say that we find ourselves today in the midst of the very events which mark the sounding of the seventh trumpet. The great voices, the increase of knowledge, the angry nations, etc., taken in connection with time-prophecies, establish this as a fact. Many events are to transpire before this seventh or last trumpet ceases to sound, e.g., the rewarding of the saints and prophets, the resurrection of all the dead, etc. In fact, it covers the entire period of the Millennial reign of Christ, as indicated by the events which are to transpire under it—Rev. 10: 7; 11: 15, 18.

Thus we find the shout, the voice of the Archangel and the trump of God all symbols, and now in process of fulfillment. Note carefully, too, the fact that each of the three prophecies just referred to (Dan. 12: 1; Rev. 11: 15; 1 Thes. 4: 16) declares Jesus' presence at the time when the events mentioned transpire. They were foretold for the very purpose of indicating the manner in which his invisible presence would be manifested to those who have faith in the word of prophecy. Paul says, The Lord shall descend with [literally in, or during] a shout, voice, trumpet, etc.; John says that the kingdoms of this world become his, during the time of these events; and Daniel says, At that time shall Michael, the great Prince [Christ], stand up (be present) and take to himself his power. If, therefore, we can recognize the shout, the voices and the sounding of the great trumpet, we should accept them as indications, not that the Lord will come soon, but rather that he has come and is present, and that the harvest work of gathering the wheat and burning the tares is already under way. This we shall soon see is abundantly proved by time-prophecies. Yet it is not to the natural vision, but to the eye of faith, through the sure word of prophecy, that his presence and work can be discerned.

Just here another fact should not be overlooked, namely, that the Shout, the Voice of the Archangel, and the Trump of God, as above explained, are all instrumentalities for the accomplishment of the harvest work of the Gospel age. If, therefore, we see not only the meaning of these symbols, but the foretold results taking place, we have additional proof both that we have rightly interpreted the symbols, and that we are now in this period called the harvest, in which the Gospel age and the Millennial age lap, the one closing and the other opening. Many will need no aid in tracing a separating work now going on between the truly consecrated and the merely nominal Christians. Many see the symbolic fire already under way, and discern the shout of the people, the command of the new King Immanuel and the events called the seventh trumpet, and the clouds of trouble, in which the Lord comes, and from and in which his power is to be manifested, subduing all things unto himself.

We have (Vol. 1, 237) called attention to the fact, that the recognition of the harvest work in actual process is proof of the Lord's presence, since he declared that he would be the chief reaper and director of the work, and that this would be his first work. "Behold, a white cloud, and upon the cloud one sat like unto the Son of man, having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharp sickle... And he that sat on the cloud thrust in his sickle on the earth; and the earth was reaped." "In the time of the harvest I will say to the reapers, gather" etc. (Rev. 14: 14, 16; Matt. 13: 30). The reaping work will occupy forty years for its full accomplishment, ending with A.D. 1914. Its various features will be accomplished gradually, but all of its days are days of the Son of Man, days of our Lord's presence and power, recognized in the end by all, but at first only by the class specified by the Apostle, Ye, brethren—not in darkness.

In flaming fire. The next of these symbolic statements can be understood, if the meaning of the symbols, fire, etc., already explained (Vol. 1, 317), be remembered. It reads, "The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ"—2 Thessalonians 1: 8.

Expressed literally, we understand this to signify that in his day, the Millennial age, Jesus' presence will be revealed or manifested to the world from his position of spiritual control, heaven, in the wrath and punishment then visited upon evil and evil-doers. It will be consuming wrath, indicated by the symbol, fire, leaving neither root nor branch of evil systems, error, oppression, or willful sinners; and all the proud, and all evil doers, will be burned up as stubble in that Millennial day. In its beginning, in this harvest period, this fire will burn very fiercely, consuming pride and evil, now of rank growth. Happy those who will surrender their pride and evil to be destroyed, that they themselves be not destroyed also in the second death, as some resisters will evidently be, during the Millennial age. It is of this time that we read, "Behold, the day cometh that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble: and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch"—Mal. 4: 1.

The mighty angels, messengers, or agents of his power, are various, and may properly be understood as applying to and including all the various agencies, animate and inanimate, which shall be used by our Lord in the overthrow of the evil systems of the present, and in the chastisement of evil-doers.

While the wrath or vengeance of the Lord is to be expressed in flaming fire, in consuming trouble, such as never before was known, so general and wide-spread, and so destructive of evil, righteousness and the righteous will begin to be favored. As these dealings become more and more apparent, men will begin to draw the inference that a new power has taken control of human affairs; and thus the presence of our Lord as King of kings shall be revealed to the world. "He shall be revealed in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God [who are not acquainted with God, but who nevertheless fail to obey the light of conscience, which all to some extent possess], and [on those who, while knowing God] obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Under the chastisements, increasing light and favorable opportunities of the Millennial day, all will be brought to such a clear knowledge of the truth and the way of righteousness as to be without the excuse of ignorance, or of inability to obey the truth; and those who persistently continue enemies of God and righteousness shall be punished with lasting destruction [a destruction from which there shall be no resurrection] from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of his power.

In power and great glory. The next statement is to the effect that the world will see the Son of man coming, before his kingdom is fully set up or his joint-heirs are all gathered and exalted with him. Seeing his coming, all the tribes of the earth will mourn. They shall see the Son of man coming with power and great glory.

Already the world sees the clouds of trouble gathering and darkening; they realize that a power is at work in men's affairs, with which they cannot cope; the near future, from the present outlook, is dark and ominous to all who have enough intelligence to mark the trend of events. Thinking men observe the persistency with which questions of right and wrong, justice and injustice, are forced upon their consideration, demanding an expression of their individual principles. Many recognize the glory and power of earth's new Ruler, yet since clouds and darkness are round about him they do not recognize him. Men see the clouds, and therefore see him coming in clouds with power and great glory [the glory of power and justice], but they do not recognize him. Not until the clouds have let fall hail stones and coals of fire (Ps. 18: 12, 13) to batter down men's pride, and selfishness and prejudices, and consume these, will the clouds disappear, and reveal the majesty and glory of Christ's presence. If men would consider, and hearken to the voice of the Lord, which now directs the course of justice, and warns of impending retribution, the disasters of the near future would be averted; but "God speaketh once, yea, twice, yet man perceiveth it not ... Then he openeth the ears of men [in the thunder tones of the day of trouble] and sealeth their instruction, that he may withdraw man from his purpose, and hide pride from man."

Behold, he cometh with clouds, and in due time every eye shall see him, shall discern his presence, power and authority; and all must submit, whether willing or unwilling, until the loosing of Satan for a little season, in the close of the Millennium, when after full experience their willingness or unwillingness will be tested, and the unwilling will be destroyed in the second death, called the lake of fire—Rev. 21: 8.

Thus seen, all of these symbolic explanations of the manner of our Lord's coming accord perfectly with the plain statements which declare that his presence will be a secret for a time, known only to those watching.

IN LIKE MANNER.

What is taught by the statement of the angel at the time of Jesus' departure, "This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven shall so come, in like manner, as ye have seen him go into heaven"—Acts 1: 11?

An examination of this text will manifest its harmony with the foregoing. Many seem to think the passage reads,

As you see Jesus ascend into heaven, so, in like manner, you shall see him come again. Such should read it again and again, until they note the fact that it does not say that those who saw him go will see him come, nor that any one else will see him come. What it does say is the manner of his coming will be like the manner of his going. What, then, was the manner of his going? Was it with great splendor, and with great demonstration? Was it with trumpet sound and voices and a shout rending the air, and the Lord's person shining in supernatural glory and brightness? If so, we should expect his coming again to be in like manner. On the other hand, was it not as quietly and secretly as was possible, consistent with his purpose of having thoroughly convinced witnesses of the fact? None saw him, or knew of the fact, but his faithful followers. His statement (John 14: 19), Yet a little while and the world seeth me no more, has never yet been disproved; for none but brethren saw even his manifestations after his resurrection, and no others witnessed his ascension. And in like manner as he went away (quietly, secretly, so far as the world was concerned, and unknown except to his followers), so, in this manner, he comes again. And as when he went away he lifted up his hands and blessed them, so, when he comes again, it is that their joy may be full, as he said, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you—Luke 24: 50, 51; John 14: 3; 16: 22.

The angel seemed also to give special emphasis to the fact that the coming again would be the coming of this "same Jesus," the same one who left the glory which he had with the Father before the world was, and became man, became poor that we might be made rich; the same Jesus that died on Calvary; the same Jesus that arose a quickeningspirit the third day; the same Jesus that had manifested his change during the forty days, this same Jesus now ascended up on high. It is the same Jesus who has experienced two changes of nature, from spirit to human, and then from human to divine. These changes of nature have not destroyed his individuality. His identity was preserved, as the angel thus assures us, whether the philosophy of that fact be understood or not; and though we shall know him no more after the flesh, as a man, but should remember his exaltation, that he is of the divine, spiritual nature, and should anticipate his coming in harmony with this change and exaltation, yet we may remember he is the same loving Jesus, and not changed in this respect. It is this same Jesus, who, though present forty days after his resurrection, was seen of the disciples only, and but briefly, who in his second presence will be as invisible to the world as during the forty days before his ascension. We must remember that he does not come to give himself as a sacrifice, and hence that he has no further use for a human body prepared for sacrifice (Heb. 10: 5). That is all over: he dies no more, but comes to rule, bless and uplift the redeemed race.

Our Lord furnished us a most beautiful illustration of the manner in which his presence will be revealed, when he said, As the bright-shining emerges from the east, and illuminates even unto the west, so will be the presence of the Son of man (Matt. 24: 27). That most translations of this verse are faulty in using the word lightning, where sunlight is meant, is evident; for lightning flashes do not come out of the east and shine unto the west. They just as frequently come from other quarters, and rarely flash clear across the heavens. The Lord's illustration, and the only one that comports with his words, is the sun's brightness, which invariably emerges from the east and shines unto the west. The Greek word astrape, here used, is thus shown to be improperly translated in this text, and also in the account of the same words by Luke (17: 24). Another case of the use of this word astrape by our Lord is found in Luke 11: 36, where it applies to the brightness of a candle, and in the common version is rendered bright-shining. Incorrect ideas of the manner of our Lord's coming and revealing, firmly fixed in the minds of translators, led them into this error of translating astrape by the word lightning. They supposed that he would be revealed suddenly, like a flash of lightning, and not gradually, like the dawning sunlight. But how beautiful is the figure of sunrise, as illustrating the gradual dawning of truth and blessing in the day of his presence. Jesus associates the overcomers with himself in this figure, saying, Then shall the righteous shine forth as the Sun in the Kingdom of their Father. And the Prophet, using the same figure, says, The Sun of righteousness shall arise with healing in his beams. The dawning is gradual, but finally the full brightness shall thoroughly banish the darkness of evil, ignorance and sin.

A wrong translation of the word parousia has further tended to obscure the sense of this passage. In the Diaglott and in Prof. Young's translation it is rendered presence; in Rotherham's it is arrival; while in the A.V. it is rendered coming. And though the text of the Revised Version retains this last erroneous rendering, coming, yet in the margin it acknowledges presence to be the true definition of the Greek. The Greek word parousia invariably signifies presence, as having come, having arrived; and it should never be understood as signifying to be on the way, as the English word coming is generally used. The text under consideration therefore teaches that as the sunlight gradually dawns, so shall the presence of the Son of man be gradually manifested or revealed.

Together with this illustration, Jesus coupled words to guard us against certain errors which would be advanced about the time of his second advent, calculated to lead his Church astray, Behold, I have told you before ... If they shall say unto you, Behold, he is in the desert; go not forth: behold, he is in the secret chambers; believe it not. For as the bright shining cometh out of the east and shineth even unto the west, so shall be the presence of the son of man. Thus does our Lord put us on guard against two errors rapidly growing in our day. One is the claim that our Lord will come in the flesh, in the wilderness of Palestine; and, so believing, many have gone thither, and are waiting to see Jesus in the flesh, with the scars, as when crucified. Expecting him as he was, and not as he is, they seriously err, and blind themselves to the truth, as did the Jews at the first advent. These expectations lead this class to interpret literally the statement of the prophet (Zech. 14: 4), His feet shall stand in that day upon the Mount of Olives, *etc. Blinded by false expectations, they see not that the feet in this passage are figurative, as truly as in Ps. 91: 12; Isa. 52: 7; Ps. 8: 6; 110: 1; Eph. 6: 15; Deut. 33: 3; and in other passages. If they knew what to expect, they would know not to go to Jerusalem to look for the man Christ Jesus; for the highly exalted king comes as the sunlight, making his presence and influence felt everywhere. Wherefore, Go not forth.

If they shall say, Behold, he is in the secret chambers; believe it not. Spiritism, ready to deceive by counterfeits, and ever ready to use advanced truths as a garment of light (2 Cor. 11: 13, 14), has not hesitated to claim that we are in a period of dispensational change, the dawning of a glorious age. Among other such things, some of them even teach that Christ is present, and, we doubt not, ere long they will give seances at which they will claim to show him in secret chambers. Should the error present itself in this form, or any other, let us remember our Lord's words and repudiate such claims as false, knowing that not so will he reveal his presence, but as the sunlight, emerging gradually, "the Sun of righteousness shall arise with healing in his beams."

OUR LORD'S PAROUSIA IN THE HARVEST.

The Greek is an exact language: a fact which greatly enhances its value in giving expression to truth. Thus, for instance, in our common English Bibles, the word come is used to translate thirty-two Greek words, each of which has a fine shade of difference. Instances: ephistemi signifies to overtake, as in Luke 21: 34, come upon [overtake] you unawares; sunerchomai signifies to come together, as in 1 Cor. 11: 18, come together in the church; proserchomai signifies to approach, or come toward, as in Heb. 4: 16, Let us therefore come boldly; heko signifies to arrive, or have come, or came, as when the action of coming is completed, as in John 2: 4, Mine hour is not yet come; enistemi signifies to be present, and is so translated, except in two cases where it should be so rendered: 2 Tim. 3: 1, Perilous times shall come, be present; and 2 Thes. 2: 2, That the day of Christ is at hand, present. Parousia, too, signifies presence, and should never be translated coming, as in the A. V., where it is twice rendered properly, presence (2 Cor. 10: 10; Phil. 2: 12). The Diaglott, a very valuable translation of the New Testament, renders parousia properly, presence, in almost every occurrence of the word.

The two Greek words, heko and parousia, and their use in the New Testament, are what we desire to notice at present, and particularly the latter of these; because a correct appreciation of their significance sheds light upon the manner of our Lord's return, through passages in which they occur, while the common but erroneous translation beclouds the point it should illuminate.*

With the right thought as to the meaning of parousia in mind, not that of coming, as being on the way, but presence, as after arrival, let us examine some passages in which the word is used. From these we will learn that presence does not necessarily imply sight, but is applicable also to things present but unseen. For instance, angels, spirit beings, can be present with us, yet unseen, as our Lord was present in the world and often with the disciples during the forty days after his resurrection, without being seen of the world, or by his disciples except on the few brief occasions already referred to. Those days were days of his parousia (presence), as much as the preceding thirty-three and a half years had been.

In the conversation previous to the question of Matt. 24: 3, our Lord foretold the destruction of the temple, and the rejection of Israel after the flesh until a time when they would gladly recognize him as Messiah and say, Blessed is he. He had told his disciples that he would go away, and come again and receive them unto himself. He called their day the harvest, or end of that age, and he had told them of a future harvest at the time of his second coming (Matt. 9: 37, 38; 13: 39, 40). Doubtless remembering that few recognized him as the Christ at his first advent, they wanted to know how he might be surely recognized at his second advent, expecting probably that his second advent would occur in their day. Hence their inquiry, What shall be the sign [indication] of thy parousia [presence] and of the end of the age?

* Parousia occurs twenty-four times in the Greek Testament, and is only twice in the A.V. (2 Cor. 10: 10; Phil. 2: 12) correctly translated presence. The other occurrences, in which it is mistranslated coming are Matt. 24: 3, 27, 37, 39; 1 Cor. 15: 23; 16: 17; 2 Cor. 7: 6, 7; Phil. 1: 26; 1 Thes. 2: 19; 3: 13; 4: 15; 5: 23; 2 Thes. 2: 1, 8, 9; James 5: 7, 8; 2 Pet. 1: 16; 3: 4, 12; 1 John 2: 28.

Because of their disposition to mix the closing events of the Jewish age, or harvest, in which they already were, with the then future "harvest," or end of the Gospel dispensation, our Lord gave quite a detailed account of events which must intervene, indicating a lapse of a considerable period between, yet giving no clear idea of its length; for even he did not then know how long it would be—Mark 13: 32.

Our Lord's reply in vs. 1 to 14 covers the entire Gospel age; and his words in vs. 15 to 22 have a double application, literally to the close of the Jewish age, and figuratively to the end of this Gospel age, of which the Jewish age was a shadow. Vs. 23-26 contain words of warning against false Christs, and in verse 27 he reaches their question regarding his parousia, and declares [properly translated], As the bright shining [the sunlight] cometh out of the east and shineth even unto the west, so shall the parousia [presence] of the Son of man be. The sunlight becomes present instantly, yet noiselessly; and it is first discerned by those who are first awake.

Leaving other intermediate features of our Lord's discourse for examination in their appropriate place, we note his second reference to their question as to his parousia in vs. 37 and 39. He says, As the days of Noah, so shall also the parousia [presence] of the Son of man be. Note, the comparison is not between the coming of Noah and the coming of our Lord, nor between the coming of the flood and the coming of Jesus. The coming of Noah is not referred to at all; nor is the coming of Jesus referred to; for, as already stated, parousia does not mean coming, but presence. The contrast is between the time of the presence of Noah among the people before the flood, and the time of the presence of Christ in the world, at his second advent, before the fire, the trouble of the Day of the Lord with which this age ends.

Though the people were wicked in Noah's day, before the flood, and will be in the time of our Lord's presence, before the hot fire of trouble comes upon them, yet this is not the point of comparison to which our Lord refers; for wickedness has abounded in every age. The point of comparison is stated clearly, and is readily seen if we read critically: The people, except the members of Noah's family, were ignorant of the coming storm, unbelieving as to the testimony of Noah and his family, hence they knew not. This is the point of comparison. So shall also the presence of the Son of man be. None but those of the family of God will believe here: others will know not, until society as at present organized begins to melt with the fervent heat of the time of trouble now impending. This is illustrated by the words, As in the days that were before the flood, they were eating, drinking and marrying [Luke 17: 28 adds, planting and building], until the day Noah entered into the ark, and knew not, ... so shall also the parousia [the presence] of the Son of man be. In the time of the presence of the Son of man, therefore, the world will go on with its eating, drinking, planting, building and marrying, not mentioned as sinful doings, but as implying ignorance of his presence, and the trouble that will prevail in the world. This, then, is our Lord's answer to the question of the disciples, What shall be the sign [indication] of thy [parousia] presence and of the end or harvest of the age? In substance, he says, There will be no sign for the worldly masses; they will not know of my presence and the new dispensational changes. Only the few will know, and they will be taught of God (in a way not here explained) before there is any sign (indication) which the worldly could discern.

Luke's account of this same discourse (Luke 17: 26-29), though not in the same words, is in perfect accord. Luke does not use the word parousia, but he expresses this exact thought, saying: "As it was in the days of Noe, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of man"—in the days of his presence. Not before his days, nor after his days, but in (during) his days, the world will be eating, drinking, marrying, buying, selling, planting and building. These Scriptures, then, clearly teach that our Lord will be present in the end of this age, entirely unknown to the world, and unseen by them.

Though there will never be another flood to destroy the earth (Gen. 9: 11), it is written that the whole earth shall be devoured by the fire of God's jealousy (Zeph. 3: 8), not the literal, physical earth in either case, but the existing order of things in both cases: in the first instance accomplished by drowning all people except Noah's family; in the last, by burning all except the family of God in the symbolic fire, the trouble of the Day of the Lord. The faithful children of God shall be counted worthy to escape all those things coming on the earth (Luke 21: 36); not necessarily by being taken from the earth, but possibly by being rendered fire-proof, as in the typical illustration of the three Hebrews who walked in the midst of the fiery furnace heated seven times, on whose garments, even, was not the smell of fire; because one like the Son of God was present with them—Dan. 3: 19-25.

Next we will notice scriptures that teach many in the Church will for a time be ignorant of Jesus' presence, and of the harvest or end of this age, while he is actually present, and the harvest work in progress.

The closing verses of Matt. 24, from v. 42 on, are very significant. In v. 37 our Lord had shown the world would not know of the parousia of the Son of man; and now he cautions his professed disciples that, unless on their guard, they will also be in darkness as to his parousia. He says, Watch, therefore; for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come [erchomai—arrive]. If people were expecting a thief at a definite time, they would stay awake so as not to be taken unawares: so you should be awake, always ready and watching for the first evidence of my parousia. In reply to your question, When shall these things be? I merely tell you to watch and be ready, and when I arrive, when I am present, I will reveal the fact to all who are watching and faithful. They only will have any right to know. All others should and must be in outer darkness, and must learn with and as the world—through trouble.

Who, then [in the harvest], is the faithful and wise servant whom his Master shall make* ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season? Blessed that servant whom his Master on coming [elthon—after coming] shall find so doing. Verily, I say unto you, he shall make him ruler over all his goods, all the vast storehouse of precious truth shall be opened to such faithful servants, to arm and supply the household of faith.

But if the servant's heart is not right, he will say, My Master tarries [has not arrived], and may smite [oppose and contradict] his fellow servants [who differ with him; who, therefore, are declaring the opposite, My Lord does not tarry, but has come, is present]. Such may eat and drink with the intemperate [intoxicated with the spirit of the world], but the Master of that servant will come [heko, will have arrived] in a day not expected, and in an hour in which that servant is not aware, and will cut him off [from being one of the servants privileged to hand meat in due season to the household], and will appoint him his portion with hypocrites. [Though not a hypocrite but a genuine servant, he must, because unfaithful and overcharged, have his portion with hypocrites in the perplexity and trouble coming upon Babylon.] There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

The foregoing, carefully examined, clearly teaches us that in the end of this age there will be one class denying that the Lord is present (not denying that he will come sometime, but that he has come), and smiting or opposing those fellow servants who must therefore be teaching the opposite, that the Lord has come. Which is the faithful, truthful servant, and which the one in error, is clearly stated by our Lord. The faithful one whom he finds giving seasonable meat will be exalted and given fuller stewardship over the storehouse of truth, with increased ability to bring it forth to the household, while the unfaithful one will be gradually separated and drawn into closer sympathy with mere professors or hypocrites. And note the fact that the unfaithful is thus cut off, or separated, at a time of which he is not aware, in the harvest time, while his Lord is present unknown to him, searching for and gathering his jewels—Matt. 13: 30; Psa. 50: 5; Mal. 3: 17; Matt. 24: 31.

We particularize here, to show that, in answer to the question of the disciples about signs and evidences of his second presence, our Lord taught neither the world nor the unfaithful servants would be aware of it, until the intense fire of trouble is at least commenced. The faithful evidently will see him present merely by the eye of faith, through the Scriptures written aforetime for their learning, to be grasped as they become due. Present truths on every subject are parts of his goods and treasures new and old which our Lord had laid up for us and now freely gives us—Matt. 24: 45-47.

While by foretold indications the Lord made ample preparation to enable the Church to recognize his presence when due, though they should not see him with the natural eye, he also carefully warned us against deceptions which should arise—deceptions which should appear so plausible as to deceive the elect, if it were possible. But it is not possible; for all the elect give earnest heed to the warning, and studiously acquaint themselves with the foretold indications of his presence, and watch for their fulfillment. Those otherwise minded are not of the elect class. Only the overcomers are to reign with the Lord. Such deceptions, as will be shown in a later chapter, are already in existence, and deceive many. But, thank God, the elect are forewarned and forearmed, and shall not be deceived nor disheartened. Though clouds and darkness are round about him, they recognize his presence, and rejoice that their deliverance draweth nigh. If any man should say unto you, Lo, here is Christ, or there [in a special place], believe it not. And if they shall say unto you, Behold, he is in the desert, go not forth: behold he is in the secret chambers, believe it not; for as [like] the bright shining sunlight, which gradually dawns upon and fills the earth, so shall his presence be (Matt. 24: 23, 26, 27). It will be manifested as foretold, by the dawning light of truth, truth on every subject, as we now see it so rapidly and gloriously unfolding. A few years more, and the Sun of righteousness will have fully risen with healing in its beams to bless and raise up the death-stricken world.

In view of the evidences presented in this and the preceding and following chapters, we have no hesitation in announcing the heart-cheering intelligence, that the harvest of the Gospel age is upon us, and that the Master is again present as the Chief Reaper—not in the flesh, as in the Jewish harvest, but in power and great glory, as the "highly exalted," divine Christ whose glorious body is now "the express image of the Father's person," though his glorious person is graciously veiled from human sight. He is inaugurating his reign of righteousness; his sickle of truth is separating; he is gathering together into oneness of heart and mind the ripe first-fruits of spiritual Israel; and soon that elect "body" complete shall rule and bless the world.

This announcement is here made, in order that as we proceed the reader may have the clearer idea of what the time-prophecies particularly indicate, when it shall be shown that the harvest, and all its attendant events, are now chronologically due, and coming to pass as foretold.

Thus seen, these time-prophecies and all this particularity of instruction as to the manner and the attending circumstances of the Lord's appearing were not given to alarm the world, nor to satisfy idle curiosity, nor to awaken a sleeping nominal church. They were given in order that those who are not asleep, and not of the world, but are awake, consecrated and faithful, and earnest students of their Father's plan, may be informed of the significance of transpiring events, and not be in darkness on a subject and as to events in no other way discernible with certainty, the harvest, the presence of the great Reaper, the threshing and sifting of the true wheat, the bundling and burning of tares in the time of trouble, etc.

SCOFFING FORETOLD.

The Apostle Peter describes how the unfaithful servants and hypocrites will scoff during the presence of the Lord, even as they scoffed in the days of Noah (2 Pet. 3: 3, 4, 10, 12). Notice that the Apostle wrote to the Church, and that the scoffers he describes are in the nominal church and professedly interested in the Lord's work and plan, and believers, therefore, that he will come some time. The scoffing described is on the subject here noted, and such as we hear and shall hear from professed Christians, whenever the subject of the Lord's presence, harvest work, etc., is presented. Christians generally, until they investigate the subject, have such ideas of literal manifestations of fire, trumpets, voices, etc., and of seeing the Lord descending through the air, a shining body of flesh, as when they hear of his invisible presence, without taking time to investigate a subject upon which they feel so sure, busied with worldly plans, and intoxicated with the spirit of the world, they will dismiss the matter quickly as unworthy of investigation.

It is to this class of professed Christians the Apostle refers, saying, "In the last days [the closing years of the Gospel age, in the harvest] shall come scoffers, walking after their own desires [theories, etc.], asking, Where is the promise of his presence [parousia]? for ever since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as at present from the beginning of creation." When referred to our Lord's statement (Matt. 24: 37-39; Luke 17: 26) that in his days, the days of his presence, things would indeed continue as before; and that, as in Noah's day, men would be eating, drinking, marrying, planting and building; and that, as then, the world would know not of his presence, and read not the signs of the speedy and great changes just at hand, they are too busy to consider the testimony carefully, and only continue to scoff.

Ah! says Peter, they forget the great change which occurred in the days of Noah; and then, under the symbol of fire, he describes the overwhelming flood of trouble which shall shortly overtake the whole world, utterly overthrowing all civil and ecclesiastical rule [the heavens] and melting the entire social fabric [the earth], producing anarchy and social chaos until the new heavens [ruling powers, the Kingdom of God] shall be fully established, as well as a new earth [society organized on a new and better basis, of love, equality and righteousness]. The Apostle then reminds us (verse 8) that this Day of the Lord's presence, for which the Church has long hoped and looked, is a thousand-year day, the Millennium of Christ's reign.

In v. 10 he assures us that "the Day of the Lord will arrive [Greek, heko] as a thief"* [unobservedly, quietly: it will be present, while some are scoffing and smiting those fellow-servants who declare the truth]. The Apostle then exhorts the saints to separateness from the world; that they be not swallowed up by politics, money-getting, etc., but that they set their affections on higher things. He says, Seeing that in God's plan present earthly conditions are only temporary and will soon give place to the better order, what manner of persons ought we to be, in respect to holy conduct and piety, looking for the presence [parousia] of the Day of God, watching for the evidences (signs) to prove that it has come.

And, thanks be to God, his provision is so abundant that all those of piety, who are looking for that day, will know of it before the full bursting forth of the fire of wrath. Through Paul he assures us that none of the children of the light will be left in darkness, that that day should come upon them unawares (1 Thes. 5: 4). Hence, though we are already in the day of the Lord's presence, and in the beginning of the great fire of trouble, we see that it is even as shown us in symbol (Rev. 7: 1, 2), the storm is held in check until the faithful servants of God are "sealed in their foreheads:" i.e., until such are given an intellectual appreciation of the time, presence, etc., which will not only comfort them, and shield them, but also be a mark, seal or evidence of their sonship, as indicated by our Lord when he promised that the holy Spirit should show to the faithful "things to come" John 16: 13.

Some take Peter's statement literally, that "the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved and pass away with a great noise;" and also the Revelator's description of the same events, by a very similar symbol, "The heaven departed as a scroll when it is rolled together." It would seem, however, that one glance upward at the myriad gems of night shining through millions of miles of space, with nothing between to roll away, or to take fire, should be argument enough in one moment to convince such that they had erred in supposing these statements to be literal—should convince them that their expectation of a literal fulfillment is absurd in the extreme.

So, then, God veiled from mankind under figures of trumpets, voices, fire, etc., information (which was not for the worldly to know, but only for the Little Flock, the consecrated saints) regarding the harvest, the Lord's presence, his spiritual kingdom, etc.; and yet he arranged them so that, in due time, they would speak clearly and emphatically to the class for whom he intended the information. As at the first advent, so to a similar consecrated class it may now be said, in the time of the second advent, "Unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God; but unto them that are without, all these things are done in parables," in figures and dark sayings, in order that, even though having the Bible before them, others than the consecrated may not really see and understand—Mark 4: 11, 12.

The world is not ignorant of the unprecedented events and circumstances of the present time, and their increasing noteworthiness with every passing year; but not perceiving the grand outcome, these only fill their minds with dark forebodings of evil. As foretold, they are in fear, looking forward to those things that are coming on the earth; for already the powers of the heaven (the present ruling powers) are being shaken.

CONNECTING THE PROPHETIC CHAIN.

In the preceding chapter we presented evidence showing that the Times of the Gentiles, or their lease of dominion, will run fully out with the year 1914, and that at that time they will be overturned* and Christ's Kingdom fully established. That the Lord must be present, and set up his Kingdom, and exercise his great power so as to dash the nations to pieces as a potter's vessel, is then clearly fixed; for it is "in the days of these kings," before their overthrow, i.e., before 1914, that the God of heaven shall set up his Kingdom. And IT shall break in pieces and consume all these (Dan. 2: 44). And in harmony with this, we see all about us evidence of the beginning of the smiting, shaking and overturning of the present powers, preparatory to the establishment of the kingdom "which cannot be moved," the strong government.

The next chapter will present Bible evidence that 1874 was the exact date of the beginning of the Times of Restitution, and hence of our Lord's return. Since that date he has been verifying his promise to those in the proper attitude of watchfulness, "Blessed are those servants whom the Lord when he cometh shall find watching: Verily, I say unto you, that he shall gird himself, and make them to sit down to meat, and will come forth and serve them" (Luke 12: 37). Even so, he has opened unto us the Scriptures, showing us truth concerning his present glorious nature, the object, manner and time of his coming, and the character of his manifestations to the household of faith and to the world. He has drawn our attention to the prophecies which definitely locate us on the stream of time, and has shown us the order of his plan of operations in this harvest time. He has shown us, first of all, that it is a harvest of the saints, a time for their full ripening, and for their separation from the tares; and secondly, that it is a time for the world to reap its whirlwind harvest—for the reaping of the vine of the earth, and the treading of its fruitage in the winepress of the wrath of Almighty God. He has shown us that both of these ripenings (Rev. 14: 1-4, 18-20) will be completed in a period of forty years, ending with the year A.D. 1914.

*How long it will require to effect this overturning we are not informed, but believe the period will be short.

But while the reader is thus informed of what will be proved in succeeding chapters, he must not expect to have passages of Scripture pointed out in which these matters and these dates are plainly written. On the contrary, he must bear in mind that all these things have been hidden by the Lord, in such manner that they could not be understood or appreciated until the due time had come, and then only by his earnest, faithful children, who esteem truth as more precious than rubies, and who are willing to seek it as men search for silver. Truth, like silver, must be not only mined, but also refined, separated from dross, before its value can be appreciated. The things here stated in few words will be proved point by point; and while many may prefer to take a statement without the trouble of verifying it from the Scriptures, this will not be the case with the real truth-seeker. He must, so far as possible, make every point, argument and proof his own, direct from God's Word, by tracing all the connections, and thus convincing himself of the truthfulness of the account presented.

Though the Lord provides it, and the servants bring forth the meat in due season for the household, yet each, to be strengthened thereby, must eat for himself.

"Mine eyes can see the glory of the coming of the Lord;
He is trampling out the winepress where His grapes of wrath are stored;
I see the flaming tempest of His swift-descending sword.
Our King is marching on.

"I can see His coming judgments, as they circle all the earth,
The signs and groanings promised, to precede a second birth;
I read His righteous sentence in the crumbling thrones of earth.
Our King is marching on.

"The 'Gentile Times' are closing; for their kings have had their day;
And with them sin and sorrow will forever pass away;
For the tribe of Judah's 'Lion' now comes to hold the sway.
Our King is marching on.

"The seventh trump is sounding, and our King knows no defeat:
He will sift out the hearts of men before His Judgment Seat.
Oh, be swift, my soul, to welcome Him, be jubilant, my feet.
Our King is marching on."

STUDY VI.

EARTH'S GREAT JUBILEE.

"THE TIMES OF RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS" FORETOLD BY MOSES. THE DATE OF THEIR BEGINNING INDICATED. THEY CANNOT BEGIN UNTIL THE GREAT RESTORER HAS COME. EVIDENCE FROM THE LAW. CORROBORATIVE TESTIMONY FROM THE PROPHETS. LOGICAL CONCLUSIONS DRAWN FROM THESE AS SEPARATELY AND UNITEDLY CONSIDERED. HARMONY OF PRESENT INDICATIONS.

VERILY I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the Law, till all be fulfilled—Matt. 5: 18.

It is only when we recognize the typical character of God's dealings with Israel that we can rightly appreciate the wonderful history of that people, or understand why their history, in preference to that of other nations, is so detailedly recorded by the Prophets and the New Testament writers. In them, as the New Testament writers show, God has given striking illustrations of his plans, both for the Church and for the world. Their Tabernacle service, so minutely prescribed in the divinely given Law, with its bleeding beasts and its peculiar appointments, their festivals and holy days, their Sabbaths and all their ceremonies, as types pointed forward to antitypes, larger, higher and grander far than those shadows. And the Apostle Paul assures us that those antitypes will be laden with blessings for mankind, when he says that the Law foreshadowed good things to come (Heb. 10: 1; 8: 5; Col. 2: 17), while our Lord, in the above expression, assures us that all the good things foreshadowed are sure of fulfillment.

But, in considering types, we should carefully avoid the error of many well-meaning people, who, when they begin to see that there are significant types in the Scriptures, run to the extreme of treating every Bible character and incident as typical, and are thus led into error by curiosity and ingenuity. On no such unsafe ground do we build when examining the ceremonies of the Jewish Law, given as types and declared by the apostles to be such. Nor can we afford to let these types pass without due consideration and careful study of the lessons they teach, any more than we can afford to spend time speculating, and building faith upon mere conjecture.

When Jesus said that not one jot or tittle of the Law should pass away until fulfilled, he referred not only to fulfilling its covenant obligations for all under the Law Covenant, finishing its hold upon them, by meeting its demands against them in full with his own life, but he meant more than this: He meant, further, that all the blessings expressed in it typically would be sure of fulfillment upon an antitypical scale. In all the Jewish ceremonies, God caused no type to be made which will prove meaningless, or pass unfulfilled; and all institutional types were kept up until their fulfillment at least began. Such types must be continually repeated until their antitypes appear; for the keeping of a type is not the fulfilling of it. The fulfilling is reached where the type ceases, being displaced by the reality, the antitype.

Thus, for instance, the slaying of the paschal lamb was fulfilled in the death of Christ, the Lamb of God, and there began the special blessing upon the antitypical firstborn, the believers of the Gospel age. The blessing, foreshadowed in that type, is not yet completely fulfilled, though the fulfillment began with the death of Christ, our Passover Lamb. In like manner, every ceremony prescribed in the Law proves to be full of typical significance. And the particularity with which the observance of every detail of the types was enforced throughout the Jewish age gives emphasis to our Lord's words quoted above, that every minute particular, every jot and tittle, must be as particularly fulfilled as it was carefully enforced in the ceremonies of the Law.

In this chapter we propose to examine that typical feature of the Mosaic Law known as the Jubilee, and to show that it was intended to foreshadow the great Restitution, the recovery of mankind from the fall, to be accomplished in the Millennial age; that in its character it was an illustration of the coming Restitution; and that in the manner of its reckoning it furnishes time regulations which, when understood and applied, indicate clearly the time for the beginning of the antitype, the "Restitution of all things"—Acts 3: 19-21.

Since the Jubilee was a part of the Law, since repeating does not fulfill it, since our Lord declared that the type could not pass away unfulfilled; and since we know that no such restitution of all things as that foretold by all the holy prophets since the world began, and prefigured in this type, has yet occurred, we know that it must be fulfilled in the future.

ISRAEL'S JUBILEE YEAR.

The year of Jubilee was a Sabbath of rest and refreshing, to the people and to the land that God gave them. It was the chief of a series of Sabbaths.* They had a Sabbath day every seventh day; and once every year these typical Sabbath days reached a climax, a cycle of seven Sabbaths, thus marking a period of forty-nine days ($7 \times 7 = 49$), was followed by a Jubilee day, the fiftieth day (Lev. 23: 15, 16), known among the Jews as Pentecost. It was a day of rejoicing and thanksgiving.

*The word "Sabbath" signifies rest.

The Sabbath year occurred every seventh year. In it the land was allowed to rest and no crops were to be planted. A climax of these Sabbath years was reached in the same manner as the Pentecost or fiftieth day-Sabbath. Seven of the Sabbath years, embracing a period of seven times seven years, or forty-nine years, constituted a cycle of Sabbath years; and the year following, the fiftieth year, was the Year of Jubilee.

Let us examine the account of it and mark its fitness as a type of the great millennium of restitution.

When Israel came into Canaan, the land was divided among them by lot, according to the tribes and families. Success thereafter might increase, or adversity decrease, one's possessions, as the case might be. If a man became involved in debt, he might be obliged to sell a part or even all of his property, and with his family go into servitude. But God made a bountiful provision for the unfortunate: He arranged that such adverse circumstances might not continue forever, but that all their accounts, credits and debts, must be reckoned only to the Jubilee Year, when all must be freed from encumbrances, etc., to start anew the next term of fifty years.*

Thus every fiftieth year from the time of their entering the land [including that east of Jordan] was a Jubilee year, a time of joy and restitution, in which families were re-united and homesteads restored. No wonder that it was called a Jubilee. If property had been sold for debt,

*A somewhat similar arrangement under a Bankrupt Law has been found expedient in our day and land, thus endorsing the principle then enunciated. Nor does it follow, that a cancellation of debt every fifty years, and the Jewish form, would serve us better than the methods of today; for in their case, the time, circumstances, etc., were not especially for themselves, their convenience, and their circumstances, but especially as prophetic figures and lessons relating to God's plan in its future development.

it was to be considered as a grant of such property until the Jubilee year; and the price it would bring if sold depended on whether the next Jubilee was near or far distant.

The account of this observance is found in Lev. 25. Vs. 10 to 15 read thus: "Ye shall hallow the fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof. It is a Jubilee unto you, and ye shall return every man unto his possession and ye shall return every man unto his family ... And if thou sell aught to thy neighbor, or buyest aught of thy neighbor's hand, ye shall not oppress one another. According to the number of years after the Jubilee thou shalt buy of thy neighbor, and according unto the number of years of the fruits he shall sell unto thee. According to the multitude of the years thou shalt increase the price thereof, and according to the fewness of the years thou shalt diminish the price of it."

This arrangement provided by God through their leader and mediator, Moses, though itself a blessed boon, foreshadowed a still greater blessing which God had in view—the release of all mankind from the debt of sin and its bondage and servitude, through Christ our Lord, the greater Mediator and Deliverer, whom Moses typified (Deut. 18: 15). It was thus, in types, that Moses wrote of Christ and the blessings to come through him (John 5: 46; 1: 45), the Great Restitution and Jubilee to come to all the race, now groaning under the bondage of corruption and slavery to Sin.

If the shadow brought joy to the typical people, the substance, the real restitution, will cause boundless joy and will indeed be a grand Jubilee to all people, all the world, including Israel, being typified by that people, even as their priesthood represented the Church, the royal priesthood.

Even if we were not definitely informed, what would be more reasonable than to surmise that the same infinite love which provided for the temporary welfare of Israel, a stiff-necked generation, would much more make provision for the lasting welfare of the whole world, that God so loved as to redeem while yet sinners? And here it may be well to note what will be more fully shown hereafter, that while in one aspect the Israelites were typical of the believers of the Gospel age, in another they represented all who, in any age, shall believe God and accept his leading. And in this character we are viewing them. Their covenant, sealed by the blood of bulls and goats, was typical of the New Covenant, sealed with the precious blood of Christ, under which the reconciling of the world shall be effected in the next age. Their day of atonement sin-offerings, though in type to that people, and for their sins only, typed the better sacrifices and the actual atonement for the sins of the whole world. But note that the Jubilee applied not to Israel's priesthood, typical of the Gospel Church, but to the others only; for the priesthood had no possessions, and hence could neither lose any nor have any restored. The Jubilee was for all the people but the priestly tribe, and hence types, not those blessings which are to come to the Church, the Royal Priesthood, but the restitution blessings, earthly blessings, in due time to come to all who become believers in and followers of God.

The teaching of this type is in accord with what we have learned in our examination of the divine Plan of the Ages. It points unmistakably to The Times of Restitution of all things, spoken by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began. Moses was one of these; and here particularly he speaks to us of the coming restitution of man's first estate and liberty, long lost, sold under sin.

By the failure of our first parents all was lost: all rights were forfeited, and all became slaves to the tyrant Sin and were unable to free themselves. The family circle has been sadly broken by the bondage of corruption, death. Thank God for the promised time of release! The Jubilee is at hand, and soon the captives of Death and slaves of Sin shall have back their first estate, perfect manhood, and their first inheritance, the earth, the gift of God through Jesus Christ, the mediator and ratifier of the New Covenant.

While in the typical Jubilee Year many restored liberties and blessings were at once entered upon, yet probably most of the year was required to straighten out affairs and get each one installed again in his former liberties, rights and possessions. So, too, with the antitype, the Millennial age of Restitution. It will open with sweeping reforms, with recognition of rights, liberties and possessions long lost sight of; but the work of restoring to the obedient all that was originally lost will require all of that age of restitution, a thousand years.

It is certain that no antitype of the Jubilee answering to the features of this type has yet occurred; and, on the strength of Jesus' assertion, we are equally sure the type could not pass away unfulfilled: It is easier for heaven and earth to pass, than for one tittle of the Law to fail (Luke 16: 17). Apparently, this feature of the Law has failed. Actually the type, which was observed regularly every fiftieth year as long as the Israelites were in their own land, has not been observed since their captivity in Babylon. Apparently, therefore, this feature of the Law did pass away without even beginning a fulfillment. What shall we answer in the face of this apparent contradiction to Jesus' statement? But is it really so? or can any antitype of the Jubilee be found, beginning where the last observance of the typical Jubilee ended? Yes, we answer; a clearly defined antitype had its beginning at that exact point, and on a larger and grander scale, as antitypes always are. We see, by actual fulfillment, that the cycles, as well as the Jubilee Years in which they culminated, were included in the type; and that the same method by which the typical Jubilee was pointed out (by squaring) was to be observed in calculating the time for the antitype, Earth's Great Jubilee. When the last typical Jubilee had been kept and had passed away, the great cycle began to count, the close of which will usher in the antitypical Jubilee or Restitution age.

We have already referred to the method of counting the Cycles: multiplying the seven days of a week by seven ($7 \times 7 = 49$) gave the cycle that pointed out Pentecost, the Jubilee Day which followed; and multiplying the seven years of a week of years by seven ($7 \times 7 = 49$) made the cycle which pointed out the fiftieth or Jubilee Year. The same system carried out would indicate that to reach the great antitype we should in like manner square the Jubilee period: multiply the fifty years by fifty. That is, the antitypical cycle, by the method of squaring here taught us, should be reckoned by multiplying the typical Jubilee period, fifty years by fifty, just as in reaching it we multiplied the seven years of a week of years by seven—Lev. 25: 2-13.

Following this divinely indicated method of reckoning, wonderful results open before us, which assure us that we have the correct key and are using it as was intended by him who formed this treasure-casket. Fifty times fifty years give the period of twenty-five hundred years as the length of that great cycle, which began when Israel's last typical Jubilee ended, and which must culminate in the great antitypical Jubilee. We know that such a cycle must have begun where the type ceased; because, if not a jot or tittle of the Law can pass away without a fulfillment at least commencing, the Jubilee type, which was far more than a jot or tittle, indeed an important feature of the Law, would not have been permitted to pass away until the right time for its antitype to begin. That the antitype of the Jubilee did not in any sense begin when the Israelites ceased to observe it, is evident; hence that a grand cycle began then, we may be certain. The new cycle began there, though Israel and all the world are ignorant of the fact that a great cycle has been working and also of the antitypical Jubilee by which it will be terminated. We are not to look for the Jubilee of Jubilees to begin after this cycle, but to take the place of the fiftieth or last Jubilee of the cycle; for an antitype of an institution never follows its type but takes its place upon the same date. Hence the 2500th year, which would be the 50th Jubilee, must be part of the antitype, the real Jubilee. But instead of being a year, as in the type, it will be larger; it will be the beginning of the great thousand-year Jubilee—the Millennium. Just so it has been in the fulfillment of every type in which time was a feature. Thus the Pentecostal outpouring of the holy Spirit came upon the typical day of Pentecost—or fiftieth day. Christ, our Passover-sacrifice, died in the same day in which the typical lamb was appointed to be killed—a day before or a day after would not answer. So here, not the year after nor the year before the 2500th, or last one of the typical cycle, would do; but that very year, beginning October, 1874, must have begun the antitype or Restitution times.

The keeping of the type could not cease until the great cycle (50 x 50) began to work. The point to be ascertained, then, is the exact date when the last typical Jubilee was observed by Israel. With that date established, it becomes a very simple matter to count the great cycle of fifty times fifty or twenty-five hundred years, and thus locate definitely the date of the beginning of the Jubilee of Earth, the Times of Restitution of all things.

We must look for beginnings only of this stupendous work of restoring all things. The first days in the typical Jubilee Year would see comparatively little accomplished; so we must expect in the first years in the dawning of the great Millennial Jubilee to see but little accomplished. The first work in the typical Jubilee Year would naturally be a searching out of former rights and possessions and the ascertaining of present lacks. Tracing the parallel of this, we should expect in the antitype just what we now see going on all about us; for, as will be shown, we have already entered upon the great antitypical Jubilee period, and have been in it since October, 1874. What do we see about us? We see investigation on the part of the people of their original, God-given inheritance, and their present lacks, rights, etc., many in ignorance and selfishness claiming what others have; and the attempt to hold on to as much as possible by those who have possession, causing disputes, controversies, strikes and lock-outs, with more or less justice and injustice on both sides, which must finally be left to Christ's adjudication, as disputes under the Law were settled by Moses, and after his death by those who sat in Moses' seat (Matt. 23: 2). With these fixed conclusions and expectations, let us seek the date which God evidently hid for us in this type, that we might know the things freely given unto us of God, now due to be understood.

We have no direct Bible record of Israel's keeping their typical Jubilees that would show which was the last one observed. We fix upon the date for the Jubilee immediately preceding the Babylonian captivity and seventy years desolation of their land, as the last, for two reasons: First, It could not be this side of that desolation, because there, surely, the type ceased, passed away; for the land being desolate seventy years and the people captives in a foreign land, a Jubilee must have been due somewhere during those seventy years and must have gone unobserved. A glance is enough to show that the commands and provisions as to the Jubilee Year could not be complied with while they as a nation were in captivity and the land was desolate. Hence we say the type either passed away then, or before that interruption: it could not be this side of it. And when the observance of the type ceased, the cycle of the antitype must have begun. One such failure to observe the type would indicate that the type had ceased and that the cycle leading to the antitype had begun. Besides, never since the Babylonian captivity has Israel had full control of the land: they and their land have ever since been subject to Gentile dominion.

Secondly, In every captivity previous to that one, God evidently delivered them from their enemies in time to get back into their own land to celebrate the Jubilee Year, and thus to perpetuate it as a type until the right time for the great (50 x 50) cycle to begin; for their previous captivities, though frequent, it seems never lasted longer than forty years, thus permitting them, according to the Jubilee arrangement, to go free and to receive back every man his inheritance each Jubilee Year. Besides, when we shortly show that, reckoned from the beginning of the seventy years desolation under Babylon, the great cycle ends with the year 1875, it will be manifest to all that it could not have commenced at an earlier date, prior to that Babylonian captivity; for if we place it even one Jubilee earlier, it would locate the termination of the cycle fifty years earlier than A.D. 1875, namely A.D. 1825; and surely no Jubilee age of restitution began with that year.

Satisfied thus that the last typical Jubilee, from which the great (50 x 50) cycle counts, was not earlier, and could not be since the captivity of Babylon, and hence that the one immediately preceding that captivity was the last typical Jubilee Year, and that at its close the great, silent cycle began to count, we proceed to locate the exact time of that last typical Jubilee, thus:

The system of year Sabbaths being identified with their land and their inheritance in it, the first cycle of forty-nine years, leading to the first Jubilee, should begin to be counted from the time they entered it. This reasonable inference is made positive by the Lord's words, "When ye come into the land which I give you, then shall the land keep a Sabbath [observe the Sabbath system] unto the Lord: Six years shalt thou sow thy field, and six years shalt thou prune thy vineyard and gather in the fruit thereof; but in the seventh year [from entering the land] shall be a Sabbath of rest unto the land." So, then, the cycle of seven times seven, or forty-nine years ($7 \times 7 = 49$), began at once, and the fiftieth year after entering the land was the first typical Jubilee.*

*Some have suggested as there were six years consumed in war before the division of the land was finished, the counting of the Jubilee cycles did not begin until then. But no, the land was entered upon earlier, and the command reads, "When ye come into the land," and not, When ye have divided the land. It was divided parcel by parcel during the six years, but they did not get possession of all of it during those years, nor for an indefinite time afterward—until the enemies were driven out, which in some cases was never done. (Josh. 18: 2, 3; 17: 12, 13; 23: 4, 7, 13, 15). Hence, had they waited for full possession before beginning to count the cycles, they would never have begun.

It will be seen, by reference to the table of Chronology, that 969 years elapsed between the entering of Canaan and the seventy years desolation.

To the division of the land	6	years
Period of the Judges	450	"
Period of the Kings	513	"
Total	969	years

We may know how many Jubilees they had observed up to that time by dividing 969 years by 50. There are 19 fifties in 969, showing that number of Jubilees, and the remaining 19 years show that their nineteenth, which was the last of the typical Jubilees, occurred nineteen years before the seventy years of desolation of the land while they were in captivity in Babylon, and nine hundred and fifty years after entering the land.

There, then, just nineteen years before the seventy years desolation of their land, at the close of their last Jubilee, the nineteenth, the great cycle of 2500 years ($50 \times 50 = 2500$) began; and it becomes a simple matter to reckon where those 2500 years terminated, and consequently where the twenty-five hundredth year, the beginning of the antitypical Jubilee, began. Thus:

Thus, the year which began October 1874 was the 2500th year, but since the antitype is larger than the type — 1000 years instead of one year — 1875 (beginning Oct. 1874), instead of being a Jubilee year was the first of the 1000 years of Jubilee.

THE JUBILEE AS A TYPE IN THE LAW

Thus we find that the twenty-five hundredth year began with the beginning of the year 1875, which in Jewish civil time, by which this is reckoned (Lev. 25: 9), began about October 1874. So, then, if the great Jubilee were to be only a year, like its type, it would have commenced October, 1874, at the end of 2499 years, and would have ended October, 1875. But this is not the type, but the reality: it was not a Jubilee Year, but the antitypical Thousand years of Restitution of all things, which commenced October, 1874.

Thus we see that not only did Israel's Jubilee clearly and forcibly prefigure the Times of Restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began, but that also the manner of its reckoning as clearly indicates the date of the beginning of Earth's Jubilee. If we fail to accept these conclusions, we see no other alternative than that this type ceased without fulfillment, notwithstanding the most positive assertions of our Lord that it could not—that it would be easier for heaven and earth to pass than for one jot or tittle of the Law to pass away without a fulfillment (Matt. 5: 18). We accept the facts thus divinely indicated, however astounding the conclusions which we must reasonably draw therefrom.

What are the reasonable conclusions from these Bible teachings? Let us consider what must follow, from the standpoint of reason, and then see if any other scriptures will warrant or contradict those conclusions. First, we infer that when the Times of Restitution are due to begin, the presence of the Great Restorer is also due. This would be a very reasonable inference, but it amounts to much more than inference when it is indorsed by the Apostle's positive inspired statement, that "When the [appointed] times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord [Jehovah]* ... he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you, whom the heaven must retain until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began"—Acts 3: 19-21.

On the strength of this inspired statement, we have clear evidence of the fact that our Lord's second advent was due when the Times of Restitution were due to begin, in October, 1874, as marked by the Jubilee arrangement. It seems evident that the Jubilee, like all other things of that dispensation, was arranged for our admonition [instruction] upon whom the ends of the ages are come" (1 Cor. 10: 11). One thing seems clear, if they do not profit us, they have been thus far almost profitless; for the Scriptures inform us that the Jews never fully observed the type, even during the first nineteen Jubilees (Lev. 26: 35). They no doubt found it almost impossible to restrain their love of wealth. It, like all prophecies and types, was no doubt arranged to cast light when and where needed on the path of the just—to guide the feet of the body of Christ.

*The word here rendered presence is not parousia, but prosopon. Apo prosopon, rendered from the presence, does not signify as a result of presence, but rather out from the face of. The thought is common to us, and was more common in eastern countries long ago: To show the face was a mark of favor; to turn the back was a mark of disfavor. Thus of Jesus at his first advent it was written, We hid as it were our faces from him, i.e., were ashamed of and would not acknowledge him. So Jehovah would not look upon sin, and hid his face from sinners. Since the ransom has been laid down, Jehovah waits to be gracious, until the due time. Then he will no more disregard and treat men as sinners, turning his back upon them, but will send refreshment from his face, his favor, will send Jesus, his agent in the restitution of all things. The same thought is in our hymns: Show thy reconciled face; Show thy face and all is bright.

Call to mind what was shown in the preceding chapter of the manner of our Lord's return and appearing, lest you stumble here because of erroneous ideas on that point. Remember, that As the days of Noah were, so shall also the presence [parousia] of the Son of man be; for as in the days that were before the flood they ... knew not, ... so shall also the presence of the Son of man be (Matt. 24: 37-39). Remember, also, what we have already gathered from the inspired teaching, that only those faithfully watching the sure word of prophecy, and loving and looking for his appearing will be able to discern his presence, until he makes it manifest to the world in flaming fire, taking vengeance in the time of trouble. The fact, then, that his presence is not known and generally recognized by the world, or even among Christians, is no argument against this truth. The world has no faith in prophecy, and of course, cannot see anything in its light. And lukewarm Christians (and such are the large majority) are paying no attention to the sure word of prophecy; and many who profess to be watching are reading the prophecies through the colored glasses of old and long cherished errors, and with their eyes miserably crossed by prejudice. All such should go to the Great Physician for some of the eye salve of meekness (Rev. 3: 18), and forever discard the colored glasses of the traditions of men, and all theories of their own and of others which will not harmonize with every testimony of God's Word.

Neither the world's ignorance and unbelief nor the indifference and prejudice of the great majority of professed Christians shall prove stumbling blocks to God's elect, to those who in simple, child-like faith accept the testimony of his blessed Word. Such cannot stumble; nor is it possible that they should be deceived. By their faith and God's leading such will overcome. Fear not, Jewels of the Lord's own choosing, lift up your heads and rejoice, knowing that your deliverance, exaltation and glory, draweth nigh—Luke 21: 28; 12: 32.

Another reasonable expectation, if the Times of Restitution actually began with October, 1874, and if our Lord's second presence was then due, is, those watching should see some distinguishable indications of what the Scriptures explain to be the first work of his presence, the harvesting of the fruit of the Gospel age, the gathering together of his elect (in mental association and spiritual communion), and at least some preparatory steps toward the establishment of God's Kingdom. Some of these evidences we have already briefly hinted at; but there is so much to be observed on this point that we must leave its consideration for a later chapter. The harvest of the Church is indeed upon us; the wheat is being separated from the tares; and affairs in the world are rapidly shaping themselves, making ready for the permanent establishment of the Redeemer's Kingdom. The foretold signs, in the manner and order of their prediction, are made clearly manifest to those watching; but this we leave for the present, because we wish first to bring other prophetic testimonies to view. Suffice it to say here that the sickle in the harvest of this age, as in the Jewish harvest, is the truth; and that the messengers who use the sickle now are disciples or followers of the Lord, though many of them now, as then, realize but slightly the magnitude of the work in which they are engaged.

PROPHETIC EVIDENCES CORROBORATIVE.

While the foregoing evidence is strong and clear just as it stands, we now offer prophetic testimony that proves that we began counting the Great Cycle at the right point. Our Heavenly Father knew the fear and trembling with which our faith would grasp these exceeding great and precious promises; hence he has doubled the already strong cord of evidence, furnished in the Law, by additional testimony through the prophet. And our dear Redeemer and Lord, who hands us this cord, and whose presence this testimony points out to us, as he comes to us in the early dawn of the Millennial Day, seems to say, as he once said to Peter (Matt. 14: 25-32), O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt? Learn that I am a spirit being, no longer visible to human sight. I thus reveal myself by the lamp of the Word to the eyes of thine understanding, that as in coming days I shall walk upon the stormy sea of the world's unparalleled trouble, thou needst not fear, but be of good cheer. Remembering that it is I, be not afraid.

This truly marvelous prophetic corroboration, which we now proceed to consider, lay hidden in its own simplicity until the appreciation and application of the Jubilee type, as above, gave it significance.

The seventy years, usually spoken of as the seventy years captivity in Babylon, are Scripturally styled the seventy years desolation of the land. This desolation God had predicted by Jeremiah the Prophet, thus: "And this whole land shall be a desolation, and ... shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years ... Thus saith the Lord, that after seventy years be accomplished at Babylon, I will visit you, and perform my good word toward you, in causing you to return to this place" (Jer. 25: 11; 29: 10). In 2 Chr. 36: 17-21 the fulfillment of this prophecy is recorded; and the reason why it was just seventy years, and why it was made completely desolate, is stated thus: "He brought upon them the king of the Chaldees [Nebuchadnezzar], ...

and them that had escaped from the sword carried he away to Babylon, where they were servants to him and his sons until the reign of the kingdom of Persia: to fulfill the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had enjoyed her Sabbaths; for as long as she lay desolate she kept Sabbath, to fulfill threescore and ten [70] years."

From this we see Israel had failed to observe properly the Sabbatic years, of which the Jubilees were the chief. It certainly was a hard test of obedience toward the Heavenly King, to a people so notably avaricious, to be commanded to let the land rest, to restore to former owners lands acquired and possessed for years, and to restore servants their liberty, especially when obedience was only commanded, and not enforced by compulsion. God had forewarned them, through Moses, that if they were disobedient to the laws to which as a nation they had pledged themselves, he would punish them. In the same chapter in which he tells them of the punishment of seven times under Gentile rule, he tells them, also, that if they would neglect the year Sabbaths he would punish them for it by desolating their land. (As a matter of fact, the seventy years desolation was also the beginning of the seven Gentile Times, as already shown). The Lord's threatening reads thus: "Your land shall be desolate and your cities waste. Then shall the land enjoy her Sabbaths, as long as it lieth desolate and ye be in your enemies' land ... because it did not rest in your Sabbaths when ye dwelt upon it"—Lev. 26: 34, 35, 43.

God permitted for a while their half-hearted and half-way obedience, but finally removed them entirely from the land, made it desolate, without an inhabitant, and gave it the full number of its Jubilee Years—not only for those they had imperfectly observed, but also for the entire future number which would elapse, according to his arrangement, before the antitypical Jubilee, the Restitution or Millennial age, would be due.

And since the entire number of typical Jubilees, designed to precede the antitype, is thus proved to be seventy, we are thus furnished another means of calculating when the antitype is due to begin. The calculating of this prophetic statement of the entire number of Jubilees is simple and easy; and, as we should expect, its results agree exactly with those already obtained by the method of counting furnished by the Law.

The entire number being seventy, and nineteen of these having been observed in a half-hearted way by Israel before the desolation, it follows that the remaining fifty-one mark the period from the last Jubilee which Israel imperfectly observed, down to the great antitype. But note a difference in the manner of counting. Under the Law reckoning, we counted the future as well as the past cycles of forty-nine years with the fiftieth or Jubilee Year added; for the Law shows things as they would have been, had Israel carried them out aright. But prophecy records things just as they will actually occur. We are examining the prophetic statement, remember, and hence should reckon these cycles as they have occurred, cycles of forty-nine years, without Jubilees; for Israel did not observe a Jubilee since their nineteenth one. The first nineteen cycles had Jubilee Years, but the fifty-one since have had none; hence we must reckon fifty-one cycles of forty-nine years each, or 2499 years ($49 \times 51 = 2499$), from the last Jubilee observed by Israel to the antitype. This calculation, though entirely distinct from the other, ends exactly as shown by the Law method of reckoning previously examined, October, 1874.

Let us state this proof in another form, for the benefit of some. The full number of Jubilee cycles which God had ordained was seventy, as shown by the plain statements of the reason for the seventy years desolation of their land. This was to include those that Israel had observed in an unsatisfactory manner, which we have seen were nineteen, and all the cycles to follow, up to the antitype. We will reckon these from their start at entering the land, and see where they end.

19 Cycles with Jubilees (50 years each) =	950 years.
51 Cycles without Jubilees (49 years each) =	2499 "
70 Cycles, therefore, cover a period of	3449 "

This period of 3449 years, reckoned from entering the land, ends as the foregoing, October, 1874, thus:

system, on entering the land, until the antitype, the Great Jubilee, or Times	—

The logical conclusion, if these matters are accepted as of divine ordering, is easily drawn. And if not divinely arranged, whence came they? We do not put them into the inspired Word; we merely find them there in their simplicity and beauty, and, like all the other precious food from the storehouse, which our Lord is now serving us according to promise (Luke 12: 37), this is nourishing strong meat, not especially intended for babes in Christ, but for those more developed, who have their senses exercised (Heb. 5: 14) to discern and appreciate this meat now in due season. If not of divine arrangement and intended for our instruction, how and why come the two proofs, matching and corroborating each other so perfectly? To convince yourself of their divine ordering, note that in no other place and way can these seventy years of Sabbaths in desolation be made to harmonize with the (50 x 50) cycle of the Great Jubilee. Try it. Prove it. Suppose either a mistake, or a change of one of the nineteen Jubilees kept by Israel: Suppose that eighteen (one less) or twenty (one more) had elapsed before the seventy years desolation began. Calculate, and you will see that these two lines of evidence, which so perfectly unite in the testimony that 1875 (beginning October, 1874) is the date of the beginning of the Times of Restitution, and the date, therefore, from which we may know that the heavens no longer retain our Lord, the great Restorer, cannot be united elsewhere, without doing violence to themselves, to the chronology, and to other prophecies yet to be examined.

If these time-prophecies teach anything, it is that the Great Jubilee, the Times of Restitution of all things, has begun, and that we are already in the dawn of the Millennial age, as well as in the harvest of the Gospel age, which ages lap one upon the other for forty [eighty] years, the day of wrath. We are already fourteen years into this day of wrath; and preparations for the struggle are progressing rapidly. The coming twenty-six years, at the present momentum, will be quite sufficient for the accomplishment of "all things written."

Let no reader hastily conclude there are no evidences of Restitution about us, nor that the Sun of Righteousness is not already gilding the watch towers of Zion and enlightening the world. Let him, on the contrary, reflect that we are already in the day when the hidden things are being made manifest; and let him remember that the first work of Restitution is properly a breaking down of the old and decaying structure which stands in the place which the new is to occupy. Remember that the first work of the tenderest physician is often to open the wounds, and to cleanse and amputate according to the necessities of the patient, in order to make thorough work of the healing. That such service causes pain and is seldom appreciated by the patient at the time, none need be told; and so it is with the work of the great Physician, the Restorer, the Life-giver: He wounds to heal, and the trouble and sifting in the Church and the world are but the lancing and cleansing needful, and a most important part of the Restitution work.

In the type, the Trumpet of Jubilee was to be sounded when the Jubilee Year began, to proclaim liberty throughout the land, to all its inhabitants (Lev. 25: 10). The antitype is ushered in with the sounding of the (symbolic) Seventh Trumpet, the Trump of God, the Last Trump. It is indeed the great trumpet: it announces liberty to every captive; and while at first it means the surrender of many expired claims and privileges, and a time of disturbance and unsettling of usages, habits, etc., its full import, when rightly appreciated, is "good tidings of great joy which shall be unto all people."

In the early commotion each one who hears the Jubilee Trumpet of the new age is forcibly struck by some one of its many features and heeds no other. One sees the propriety of, and calls for, governmental reforms, the abolition of standing armies and their burdensome tax. Another calls for the abolition of titled aristocracy and the recognition of every man by his qualities. Others call for the abolition of landlordism, and demand landholding shall be as at first, according to necessity, and ability and willingness to use. Others call for temperance reform, and by prohibitory, etc., laws, by Law and Order Societies seek to chain this evil, and begin to restrain men who for the love of money would ensnare, enslave and destroy fellow men, and, fastening their fangs into their weaknesses, would fatten and luxuriate upon their blood. Others form Humane and Anti-Cruelty Societies, to prevent those who have the ability from injuring the weak and dependent. Others form societies for the suppression of vice and of debasing literature. Others form Anti-Adulteration Societies to examine into adulterations of food, and to expose and prosecute and punish those who for love of more gain adulterate food and make it even injurious to health. Laws are enacted for the protection of the life and health of the people. Miners must have pure air, despite the cost; they must have two ways of escape in case of fire. Working people, powerless to help themselves or to choose their places of work, are cared for by the public laws. They can no longer be paid when the employer pleases, and in store-orders, but the law now demands pay-day shall be at least every two weeks and in cash. They can no longer be crowded into buildings where in case of fire they would be liable to burn to death or maim themselves for life by jumping; for fire-escapes are compulsory, and for any death or injury due to carelessness on the part of the employer, he is held responsible, and is punishable, either by fines, damages or imprisonment. Corporations, such as our railroad and steam-ship lines, are compelled to care for the lives and interests of the people, the poor as well as the rich. These reforms result from awakening the people by the Jubilee Trump of knowledge and liberty, and are not traceable to pure benevolence on the part of the more favored class. For though all in the favored or wealthy class who are benevolent, and such as love righteousness, can and do rejoice in these beginnings of reform, others, and the majority, regretfully yield from necessity. True, such laws and arrangements are not yet perfected, nor are they universal; but the beginnings noticed rejoice our hearts, and give evidence of what may be expected in the exalting of the humble and lowly, and the abasing of the proud, when the Jubilee regulations are fully in operation. All these things are parts of the reform commotion ushering in Earth's Great Jubilee; and though much has been demanded, and much has been gradually conceded, yet kings, and emperors, and queens, political, social, ecclesiastical and financial, will not submit to the great leveling process of this Jubilee or Restitution age without a severe struggle, such as the Scriptures point out as just before us, and which, though severe, is unavoidable, and will work out ultimate good.

The spirit of "liberty throughout all the land" is indeed sometimes carried to an unreasonable extent by the ignorant and the hot-headed; and yet it is all part of the great unavoidable Jubilee excitement, occasioned by the ignorance and oppression of the past. None but the Lord's "little flock" is fully and correctly informed as to the grand scope of the Restitution. These see the minor changes, the straightening out of the lesser affairs of men, but they see also what can be seen from no other standpoint than God's Word—that the great enslaver, Sin, is to be shorn of his power, that the great prison-house of Death is to be opened and a release presented to each prisoner, signed in the precious blood of the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world, the great Redeemer and Restorer. Glad tidings indeed it shall be to all people, not only to the living, but also to all that are in their graves. Before the end of this great Jubilee every human being may go entirely free—may get back to man's first estate, "very good," receiving back through Christ all that was lost in Adam.

THE SEVENTH TRUMPET.

"Blow ye the Trumpet, blow
 The gladly solemn sound;
 Let all the nations know,
 To earth's remotest bound,
 The Jubilee of Earth is come,
 Returning ransomed sinners home.

"Jesus, our great High Priest,
 Hath full atonement made.
 Ye weary spirits, rest;
 Ye mournful souls, be glad.
 The Jubilee of Earth is come,
 Returning ransomed sinners home.

"Ye who were sold for naught,
 Whose heritage was lost,
 May have all back unbought,
 A gift at Jesus' cost.
 The Jubilee of Earth is come,
 Returning ransomed sinners home.

"The Seventh Trumpet hear,
 The news of heavenly grace;
 Salvation now is near;
 Seek ye the Savior's face.
 The Jubilee of Earth is come,
 Returning ransomed sinners home."

STUDY VII.

THE PARALLEL DISPENSATIONS.

THE JEWISH AGE A TYPE OF THE GOSPEL AGE. REMARKABLE PARALLELISM OF CORRESPONDENCY BETWEEN THE TWO DISPENSATIONS. YET THEY ARE DISTINCT. SUPERIORITY OF THE CHRISTIAN EPOCH, THE ANTITYPE. FLESHLY AND SPIRITUAL ISRAEL CONTRASTED. PROMINENT PARALLELS EXAMINED. TIME PARALLELS SPECIALLY NOTICED. PERIOD OF FLESHLY ISRAEL'S FAVOR. TIME OF THEIR CUTTING OFF FROM FAVOR. THE PERIOD OF DISFAVOR SHOWN FROM PROPHECY TO BE EQUAL TO THE PERIOD OF FAVOR. APOSTOLIC TESTIMONY THAT THEIR PERIOD OF DISFAVOR IS THE PERIOD FOR THE HIGH CALLING OF SPIRITUAL ISRAEL. THE LENGTH OF THE GOSPEL AGE THUS SHOWN INDIRECTLY BUT CLEARLY. HARMONY OF THE BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, JUBILEE TESTIMONY, GENTILE TIMES, AND OTHER PROPHECIES WITH THE LESSONS OF THESE PARALLELS UNANSWERABLE, CONCLUSIVE AND SATISFYING.

IN previous chapters the fact has been referred to, that God's dealings with the nation of Israel were of a typical character; yet few have any adequate conception of how fully this was the case. It has doubtless been observed by many that the apostles, particularly Paul, in instructing the Christian Church, frequently refer to some striking features of type and antitype in the Jewish and Christian dispensations. But a closer attention to the Apostle's teachings will show that he does not only make use of a few illustrations drawn from the Jewish economy, but that in his close reasonings he calls up the whole Jewish system as divinely instituted (ignoring entirely the "traditions of the elders," which were no part of that system), and shows that in all its features it was typical of the then dawning Christian dispensation, mapping out most clearly the course of the Christian Church in the Gospel age, as well as pointing out its glorious work in the Millennial age.

Many presume that the Jewish and Christian ages are only one, and that God has been selecting the Christian Church from the beginning of human existence. This is a grave mistake, that beclouds and hinders the correct and clear apprehension of many truths. Jesus was the head and forerunner of the Christian Church, which is his body (Eph. 5: 23; Col. 1: 24); hence none preceded him as members of the Church. Had any preceded him, he could not properly be styled the forerunner. The high calling to become joint-sacrificers, and joint-heirs with him, was not made known in other ages (Eph. 3: 2, 5, 6). Good men who lived and died prior to the laying down of our ransom by the precious blood knew nothing of this high calling. Since the gifts and callings of God are unmerited favors, no injustice is done to those of other ages, in not offering them the same favor. The call and favor to those of past ages, as they will be to those of the next age, were to earthly honors and glory, and everlasting life as earthly (human) beings; while those of the Gospel age are to heavenly honors and glory, to a change of nature from human to divine, and to power, honor and dominion in heaven and in earth, as joint-heirs and co-workers with Christ. And since the Church called out, separated from the world, and developed during this age, is in the age to come to be the agent of Jehovah in the full execution of his great plan of the ages, a plan which compasses the interests not only of humanity, but of all creatures in heaven and in earth, wonderful have been the preparations made in the ages past for their training and instruction. And no less wonderful has been the care with which these, called to be heirs of divine glory, have during this age been trained, disciplined, guided and protected through the long, difficult, narrow way, first opened up by their Lord and Forerunner, in whose footprints they are directed to tread, as he set the example—1 Pet. 2: 21.

Jesus spent the three and a half years of his ministry gathering out from Israel, training and instructing, the few disciples who should form the nucleus of the Christian Church. When about to leave them alone in the world he gave them the promise of the holy Spirit, that, during the entire age, should guide the Church into all truth, show them things to come, and bring freshly to remembrance what he had taught, which promise began to be verified at Pentecost. It is also written that the angels are all ministering spirits sent forth to minister to these heirs of this great salvation (Heb. 1: 14), and that our Lord's special care is over them, even to the end of the age (Matt. 28: 20). All the writings of the apostles are addressed to the Church, and not to the world, as many seem to think; and they are full of special instructions, encouragements and exhortations, needful only to the saints who during this age are walking in the narrow way. And our Lord's revelation, which God gave him after he had passed into glory, he sent and signified [signified, told in signs, symbols, etc.] to his Church, through his servant John (Rev. 1: 1). We are also told that the prophecies given aforetime by holy men of old were given, not for themselves, nor for others of their day and age, but exclusively for the instruction of the Christian Church—1 Pet. 1: 12.

In this chapter we purpose to show that the whole Jewish nation during that age was unwittingly engaged, under God's direction, in furnishing for our instruction a typical view of the plan of salvation in all its workings, even as we have just seen its Jubilees pointing out the final consummation of the plan in the blessing of all the families of the earth. It is by drawing upon this storehouse of truth, so abundantly and specially provided for the Church, that the Spirit of God feeds us and leads us gradually into a more and more complete understanding of his plan, as rapidly as that knowledge becomes needful to us. And from this great storehouse God is now supplying much of the special light and food needful to us in this harvest time at the consummation of the age. Since such has been God's care and abundant provision for the Christian Church above all other people of past and future ages, how important in his estimation must that knowledge be to us, and how eagerly should we avail ourselves of it.

While we will not in this chapter or volume enter into a detailed examination of the typical features of God's dealings with Israel, as set forth in the Tabernacle and Temple, and ordinances and sacrifices, etc., we now invite close attention to some of the marked and prominent outlines of correspondency between the Jewish and Christian dispensations as type and antitype; for all that the Christian Church actually experiences and accomplishes, the Jewish Church prefigured. And many of these features of correspondency are parallel not only in character, but also in their relative time of occurrence. Even in their national history, and in the history of many particular individuals of that nation, we find correspondencies marked by the Scriptures. Some of these, Christian thinkers have long noticed, and others have been entirely overlooked. Here a beautiful and fruitful field of thought and study opens before us.

Paul designates the Jewish Church, Israel after the flesh, and the Christian Church, The Israel of God (1 Cor. 10: 18; Gal. 6: 16). Hence we may properly designate them Fleshly Israel and Spiritual Israel. The higher plane of the spiritual house is also pointed out by the Apostle when he describes Fleshly Israel as a house [family] of servants, and Spiritual Israel as a house of sons (Heb. 3: 5, 6; Rom. 8: 14). The fleshly house was the honored servants of the spiritual house in many ways, but chiefly in that they unconsciously, under God's ordering, furnished pantomime illustrations of spiritual things, which, if studied and heeded, bless and enlighten the house of sons.

In both cases there have been a Nominal and a Real Israel, in God's estimation, though to men they seemed as one; the nominal and the real not being clearly distinguishable until the end or harvest time of their respective ages, when the truth due and brought to light accomplishes the separation, and makes manifest which are of the real and which of the nominal Israel. Of the fleshly house Paul said, They are not all Israel which are [nominally] of Israel (Rom. 9: 6); and our Lord recognized the same fact when of Nathaniel he said, Behold an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile, and also when in the time of harvest he separated the real from the nominal, calling the former valuable wheat, and the latter mere chaff, though comparatively the wheat was only a handful, and the chaff included nearly all of that nation. In a similar proportion, and under a similar figure, the nominal and the real members of Spiritual Israel of the Gospel age are pointed out; and their separation, too, is in the time of harvest—in the end of the Gospel age. Then only the wheat, a comparatively small number, a little flock, will be separated from the masses of nominal Spiritual Israel, while the great majority, being tares and not real wheat, will be rejected as unworthy of the chief favor to which they were called, and will not be counted among the Lord's jewels—Rom. 9: 27; 11: 5; Luke 12: 32; Matt. 3: 12; 13: 24-40.

The head of the fleshly house was Jacob, surnamed Israel, prince of God. By his twelve sons he founded the house which bore his name, the House of Jacob, the House of Israel. So with the Spiritual House: its founder, Christ, established it by the twelve apostles; and this house also bears the name of its founder, The Church of Christ. In point of time, God called Fleshly Israel first; but in point of favor, and in time of realization, Spiritual Israel comes first. Thus the first becomes last, and the last first (Luke 13: 30). The Scriptures clearly mark these two houses of Israel as being the fleshly seed of Abraham and the spiritual seed of Jehovah, the Heavenly Father, whom Abraham typified.

Some are blinded to weighty truths by the supposition that the expression, both the houses of Israel, refers to the two divisions of Fleshly Israel, after the split in the days of Solomon's son, Rehoboam. Such need only be reminded that after the captivity in Babylon, upon their restoration to Palestine, all Israelites of all the tribes then captives in the universal domain of Medo-Persia, including Assyria and Babylonia, were given liberty to return to their own land if they chose (Ezra 1: 1-4). Many of the faithful Israelites of all the tribes, who had respect to God's promises associated with the holy land and the holy city, returned to the various cities of Palestine. The tribe of Judah, the principal tribe, in which was vested the kingly office, and in whose territory Jerusalem, the chief city, was located, naturally took a leading part in its rebuilding; but after that return from Babylon, Israel was no more a divided nation, but dwelt together as at first, as one people, and were known by the original name, Israel—Neh. 11: 1, 20; Ezra 2: 70.

This is emphasized in the New Testament. The Lord and the apostles speak of Fleshly Israel as one. Paul says that Israel sought, but that only a "remnant" was found worthy (Rom. 10: 1-3; 9: 27; 11: 5-12, 20-25; Acts 26: 7). Our Lord said that he was "sent to [all] the lost sheep of the [one] house of Israel"; yet when he would not permit his disciples to go outside of Palestine to seek them (Matt. 10: 5, 6; 15: 24), it is evident that those living in Palestine represented all Israel. Peter, too, speaks of fleshly Israel as one house; and addressing the people at Jerusalem he said, "Let all the house of Israel know," etc. (Acts 2: 36). Many of all the tribes dwelt in Palestine, and many of all the tribes dwelt in surrounding nations. Thus Paul met and preached to Israelites in nearly every city which he visited in Asia Minor and Italy, but they were always recognized as one nation, spiritual Israel being the only other Israel.

God has made special covenants or promises to both these houses of Israel. The promises to the fleshly house were all earthly, while those to the spiritual house are all heavenly. Though the promises to the fleshly house were (and still are) grand and precious, the promises to the spiritual house are characterized as "better promises," and "exceeding great and precious promises" (Heb. 8: 6; 2 Pet. 1: 4). To the fleshly house it was said, "If ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people; for all the earth is mine. And ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and a holy nation." And though all Israel answered and said, "All that the Lord hath spoken we will do" (Exod. 19: 5-8), and then failed to keep their covenant, yet the faithful among them, who earnestly endeavored in their weakness to keep it, will in the Millennial age be "princes in all the earth," members of the earthly phase of the Kingdom of God—See Vol. 1, chap. xiv.

But to the spiritual house it is said, "Ye are built up a spiritual house, a holy priesthood, to offer up sacrifices acceptable* to God by Jesus Christ ... Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a peculiar people, that ye should show forth the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvelous light; which in time past were not a people, but are now the people of God"—1 Pet. 2: 5, 9, 10.

Fleshly Israel had by God's appointment a Tabernacle made with hands, which was typical both in itself and in its services (Heb. 9: 1, 2, 9, 10). But Spiritual Israel has "the true [antitypical] Tabernacle, which the Lord pitched and not man" (Heb. 8: 2). For the services of the typical Tabernacle a typical priesthood was ordained, of which Aaron was the head, which offered typical sacrifices for the sins of the typical people, and accomplished a typical cleansing or justification each year. The antitypical Tabernacle has a priesthood that offers up better sacrifices (Heb. 9: 23), which actually and forever cancel the sins of the whole world. And of this priesthood our Lord Jesus is the head priest—the High Priest of our profession [order], the Church which is his body being the under-priests. The nominal church is not this priesthood, but the true Church, the faithful in Christ, who follow the footsteps of our great High Priest in sacrifice.

Another marked feature of this correspondency as type and antitype, noted in the Scriptures, is that both the houses of Israel (fleshly and spiritual) were carried away captives into Babylon. This will be more clearly seen when in a succeeding chapter we view Babylon the Great, the Mother of Harlots (Rev. 17: 5, 6). We merely notice here the correspondence. Fleshly Israel was taken

*The word spiritual before sacrifices in this text (v. 5) is omitted in the oldest Greek MS., the Sinaitic. The correctness of this omission is evident when we reflect that not spiritual, but earthly or human privileges, rights, etc., are sacrificed.

Captive into literal Babylon, which was built upon the literal Euphrates, while in the Gospel age mystic Babylon, which carried away captive Spiritual Israel, is portrayed as sitting upon the mystic Euphrates. In the type, the golden vessels of the Temple were carried away and profaned by literal Babylon: in the antitype, the divine (golden) truths, pertaining to the service of the true Temple, the Church (1 Cor. 3: 16, 17; Rev. 3: 12), were far removed from their place, perverted and misapplied by mystic Babylon. Literal Babylon being built upon the river Euphrates, which materially contributed to its wealth and resources, its overthrow was accomplished by diverting those waters. So mystic Babylon sits upon, is supported by, many waters (peoples, nations), and its fall is predicted, through the turning aside of its supporters and sustainers, the people—Rev. 16: 12.

TIME PARALLELS

MEASURING

SHADOW AND SUBSTANCE—TYPE AND ANTITYPE.

We now come to the consideration of that most wonderful feature of this typical correspondency, the time element, which in every instance sustains and corroborates the dates indicated by the Jubilees, the Chronology, and the foretold close of Gentile Times. And it is for this purpose particularly that this subject is here introduced—that the force of this wonderful parallelism may increase and confirm the faith of God's children in the time element of his plan, as it was evidently intended to do—Heb. 9: 9, 23; 10: 1.

Of the prophecies and time-proofs there is none more striking and convincing than this one. The lesson it teaches is startling because of its simplicity, and carries conviction to the hearts of the humble. Not only were Fleshly Israel and its ceremonies typical, but the Jewish age was typical of the Gospel age. They are of the same length, and correspond to each other; so that, seeing and appreciating the Jewish age, its length, and the peculiarities of its harvest, we may know the exact length of the Gospel age, its antitype, and may understand what to look for, and when, in the harvest of the Gospel age. But let us now proceed to show this; for though we might take it for granted on general principles, and say that as the various features of the Jewish system correspond to those of the Gospel age, so too the time should correspond, yet God has not left us thus to infer this, but has clearly though indirectly told us so.

Paul says that God has cast off the fleshly house from favor, during the time of the selection of the spiritual house; and that when the spiritual house has been selected, God's favor will return to the fleshly house. He says: "I would not, brethren [the Church, or spiritual Israel], that ye should be ignorant of this mystery, lest ye should be wise in your own conceits, that blindness in part is happened to Israel [fleshly] until the fullness of the Gentiles* be come in. As it is written: There shall come out of Zion the [promised] Deliverer [the Christ, our Lord, the head, and the remnants or faithful few, of both the nominal houses of Israel, which shall compose his body, the Church] and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob.

*None should confound this Fullness of [from out of] the Gentiles with the Times of the Gentiles, mentioned heretofore. The Times of the Gentiles, as shown, is the period of time during which God leased universal rule to Gentiles; while the Fullness of the Gentiles refers to the full number selected out from the Gentiles, to complete the Gospel Church, who, with the remnant selected from the Israelites (which would include the apostles), shall constitute the Church of Christ, the Holy Nation, the Royal Priesthood, the Kingdom of God, to whom the kingdom and dominion of earth shall be committed.

And so all Israel shall be saved (for this is my covenant unto them) when I shall take away their sins. As concerning the gospel [the high calling], they are enemies [cast off] for your sakes [that you may have the preference and inherit the choice, the spiritual parts of the promises]; but as touching the election [by which they were chosen to receive special earthly favors from God, promised to father Abraham and his natural seed], they are beloved for the fathers' sakes; for the gifts and calling of God are not things to be repented of." What God has promised is sure of fulfillment. Knowing the end from the beginning, Jehovah never made a covenant which he would need or wish to break.

In this prophecy Paul gives an intimation of the length of the Gospel age, by showing that it began with the casting off of fleshly Israel, and that it will end with their restoration to favor. Placing the words of Paul and Peter (Rom. 11: 27 and Acts 3: 19, 20) together, we learn the time for the return of favor to Israel will be in the beginning of the Times of Restitution, at the second advent of our Lord. Paul says the return of favor to that people will be when God shall take away their sins, which Peter says he will do in the times of refreshing or restitution which shall come when our Lord returns, when the heavens no longer retain him.

The date of our Lord's second advent, and the dawn of the Times of Restitution, we have already shown to be 1874. We should expect, therefore, to see some marks of God's returning favor to Fleshly Israel shortly after 1874, as one of the first features of restitution work. Surely enough, we do see favor beginning to return to them. Every fresh evidence of the removal of Israel's blindness, and of divine favor toward them, is, when measured by Paul's words, a fresh proof that the Gospel age is closing and that the little flock is about complete. But we have proof also that furnishes us with the exact date when favor should begin to return to Israel. Thus far we have merely seen that the measure of Fleshly Israel's cast off condition is the measure of the time of special favor to others, for the calling of other people, Gentiles, to be joint-heirs with Christ, which call ends in the beginning of the Times of Restitution; but not, other prophecies show, at the very beginning of it.

But pause a moment. Let there be no misunderstanding on this point: When the call to the high privilege of becoming members of the Church, the bride and joint-heir of Christ, ceases, it does not mean all of those already called are sure to be counted worthy, and therefore to be chosen; for many are called, but few are chosen, since only a few of the called ones comply with the conditions of the call. Nor does it imply that those not thereafter called to that high calling will be offered no other favors. The fact is, that when this high calling ceases, it is because the Designer of the plan of the ages has almost completed that part of his plan intended to be accomplished in the Gospel age: the selection of the Gospel Church, the bride of Christ. All men were not called to that high honor. We are specially informed that God's design was to select for this purpose only a limited number, a little flock, as compared with the mass of mankind. After enough have been called and the time for calling ends and it is no more proper to extend this call to others, it will still be possible for those already called, who have accepted the call, to make their calling and election sure, by faithfulness to their covenant of consecration to God unto death; and it will still be possible for these to fail of so doing. This call, which must end when enough have been invited from which to complete the favored Little Flock, the body of Christ, is far from being the limit of God's love and favor and calling. Its end will close the heavenly or high calling. For where this call ends, where this door of opportunity and favor closes, another door begins to swing open, the door of opportunity to enter the highway of holiness, and to go up thereon, not to the divine nature, to which the Gospel Church was called, but to everlasting life and perfection as human beings—Vol. 1., chaps. x. and xi.

Now for the exact date of the return of favor to Israel, which marks the exact end of the heavenly call, from which date Israel will begin gradually to see, and to have increasing evidences of returning divine favor, and from which date also God's call to heavenly honors will cease, and only these already called will be privileged to win that prize by faithfulness to the close of life:

Fleshly Israel, like Spiritual Israel, was called of God to be his peculiar people, a peculiar treasure unto him above all other people (the one an earthly treasure, and a type of the other, which is a heavenly treasure). Separated from the world, they were the recipients of special favor from God for eighteen hundred and forty-five years. This period began with the beginning of their national life, at the death of Jacob, the last of the patriarchs, when they were first recognized as a nation, and called The Twelve Tribes of Israel, a national name. See Gen. 49: 28; 46: 3; Deut. 26: 5. These eighteen hundred and forty-five years of national life and favor ended with their rejection of Messiah, A.D. 33, when, five days before his crucifixion, he offered himself to them as their king, and, not being received, declared, Your house is left unto you desolate (Matt. 23: 38). This, the end of their favor, was the point of their fall, which continued for thirty-six and a half years until A.D. 69, when the destruction of their national polity, temple, etc., set in. It should be noted, however, that God continued his favor to individuals of that nation, after the nation, as a nation, had been cut off; for the gospel call was confined to individuals of that nation for three and a half years after Pentecost, after the death of Christ, not reaching Cornelius, the first Gentile so favored (Acts 10), until that time. This was the end of the seventy weeks of favor promised through Daniel, as it had been written, He shall confirm the covenant with many for one week. That seventieth week of years began at our Lord's baptism; his cross, as predicted, marked its middle; and favor was confined to Fleshly Israel until its close.

During their long period (1845 years) of national favor, during which other nations were ignored, Israel had chastisements and blessings combined. But even their chastisements for sins were evidences and elements of God's favor and care over them. He sent trouble upon them, and frequently allowed them to be carried away into captivity, when they forgot and disobeyed him; yet when they repented and cried unto the Lord he always heard and delivered them. The history of that people, as recorded in Exodus, Joshua, Judges, Chronicles and Samuel, etc., attests the fact that God did not long hide his face from them, and that his ear was ever open unto their repentant cry, down to the day their house was left desolate. Even that day, God was forgiving them more than ever, and sent them the long-promised Messiah, the Deliverer, in the person of our Lord, his Son. The unfitness of that nation longer to be his special treasure, or in any measure to represent God's Kingdom on earth, was manifested in their rejection of the holy, harmless, undefiled one, and their desire of a murderer in his stead.

Thus, because of their unfitness, the day of their greatest favor became the day of their rejection from favor. And the great favor of becoming joint-inheritors with Messiah, which Israel except the faithful remnant (Isa. 1: 9; 10: 22, 23; Rom. 9: 28, 29; 11: 5) missed by their blindness and hardness of heart, was offered to believing Gentiles: not to Gentile nations, but to justified believers of every nation, though the favor was at first, for three and a half years, confined exclusively to believers of the nation of Israel. Blinded as a people by national prejudices, the great prize which they were offered first, but of which they were unworthy, goes to a holy nation, a peculiar people, composed of a worthy remnant of their nation, with others called out from Gentile nations, whom in their pride they once despised as dogs. And God's promised favor will not return to them as a people, to remove their blindness, and lead them as first-fruits of the nations into earthly blessings, until the full number of the peculiar people have been called from the Gentiles, until the fullness of the Gentiles be come into this higher favor.

Thus, as Paul declared (Rom. 11: 7), Fleshly Israel did not obtain that for which they sought, the chief favor. Supposing the chief favor to be the earthly blessings, and in their pride of heart claiming that chief blessing as their natural birth-right, and as further merited by their works, they blindly stumbled over and rejected it as a favor through Christ. As David had foretold, their table, spread with the rich promises and blessings offered them through Christ, became a snare and a trap and a stumbling block and a recompense unto them, because of their hardness of heart (Rom. 11: 9, 10; Psa. 69: 22-28). Christ, who came to redeem and who would have exalted them to a position of glory beyond their power to desire or imagine, was to their pride a stone of stumbling and a rock of offence—Rom. 9: 32, 33; Isa. 8: 14.

Yet the blindness of Israel was only a blindness in part, and not a total loss of sight; for the testimony of the Law, the prophets and the apostles was open to all, whether Jew or Gentile; and during the Gospel age any Jew who would resolutely brush away the films of prejudice and pride, and humbly and thankfully accept the favor of God with his Gentile brother, might do so. Yet few have ever been able to do so; and no favor will be granted, and no special effort to convince them as a nation of the truth, or to overcome their prejudices, will be exerted, until the fullness of the Gentiles has come in; until Spiritual Israel is complete.

Since their rejection of Messiah, since their house was left desolate, Israel has had no marks of God's favor. Even Jews must admit that their tears and groans and prayers have gone unanswered; and, as foretold by their prophets, they have been a by-word and a hissing unto all nations. Though formerly God heard their prayers, and marked their tears, and returned them to their own land, and continually favored them, since then he heeds them not and shows them no favor. Since they said, His blood be upon us and upon our children, theirs has been one continuous chastisement: they have been scattered and persecuted among all nations, as foretold. These are the facts as all may read them on the pages of history. Now let us turn to the prophets and see how particularly these facts were foretold, and what the same prophets have to say concerning their future.

Through the prophet Jeremiah (chap. 16), after telling Israel how they had forsaken him, the Lord says: "Therefore will I cast you out of this land into a land that ye know not, neither ye nor your fathers; and there shall ye serve other Gods [rulers] day and night, where I will not show you favor" (Vs. 9-13). These days came when they rejected Messiah. How literally this threat has been fulfilled all may judge, and they themselves must admit. This prophecy cannot refer to any of their previous captivities to other nations, Assyria, Babylon, etc. Such an inference is guarded against in the expression, "Into a land which ye know not, neither ye nor your fathers." Abraham came from Ur of the Chaldees—Babylonia—and Jacob from Syria (Deut. 26: 5). Israel's dispersion among all nations since the close of their 1845 years of favor, and no other of their captivities, fits this pointed expression, a land which ye and your fathers have not known. So then this, together with the no favor, positively marks this prophecy as relating to Israel's present dispersion among all nations.

But though he cast them off from all favor for a while, God will not leave them cast off forever, but says Jer. 16: 13-15, "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that it shall no more be said, The Lord liveth, that brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt; but, The Lord liveth, that brought up the children of Israel from the land of the north [Russia, where nearly one half of the Hebrew race resides], and from all the lands whither he had driven them: and I will bring them again into their land that I gave unto their fathers."

We might multiply quotations from the prophets and apostles on the final return of God's favor to Jacob, or Israel after the flesh, after the selection of the full number for "the body of Christ" from the Gentiles, but the student can do so by the use of a Concordance or a Reference Bible. Among the very pointed references to this favor to be restored to Israel, in the New Testament, is that by James, Acts 15: 14-16, and by Paul, Rom. 11: 26. But first, they must drink the very last dregs of their chastisement; and thus it is expressed in this remarkable prophecy

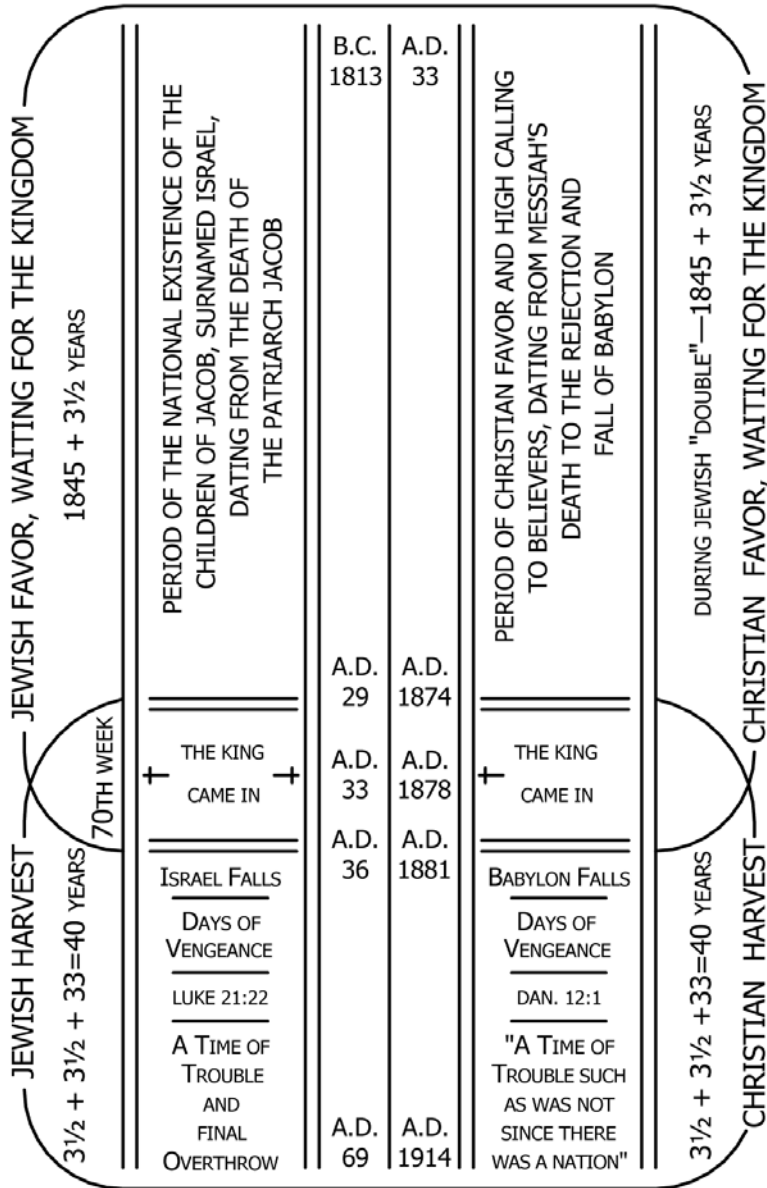

(v. 18); "And first [before the favor will come] I will recompense their iniquity and their sin double." The Hebrew word here rendered "double" is mishneh, and signifies a second portion, a repetition. Thus understood, the Prophet's declaration is, that from the time of their being cast off from all favor until the time of their return to favor would be a repetition, or duplication in time, of their previous history, during which time they had enjoyed divine favor.

As shown in the accompanying diagram, the period of their favor, from the commencement of their national existence at the death of Jacob, down to the end of that favor at the death of Christ, A.D. 33, was eighteen hundred and forty-five years; and there their double (mishneh), the repetition or duplication of the same length of time, eighteen hundred and forty-five years, without favor, began. Eighteen hundred and forty-five years since A.D. 33 shows 1878 to be the end of their period of disfavor. A.D. 33 plus 1845 = A.D. 1878.

All these prophetic points in the past are clearly marked, and we should expect some evidence of God's returning favor to Fleshly Israel, Jacob, in or about A.D. 1878. This we do find, in the fact that the Jew is now permitted privileges in Palestine denied for centuries past. And it was in that very year, 1878, when their double was full, and God's favor was due to return to that people—that the Berlin Congress of Nations was held, in which Lord Beaconsfield, a Jew, then Prime Minister of England, was the central figure and took the leading part. There England assumed a general protectorate over the Asiatic provinces of Turkey, among which is Palestine; and the Turkish government amended its laws relating to aliens, which ameliorated the condition of the Jews then residing in Palestine, as well as partially opened the door for others to locate there, with the privilege of holding real estate. Previously, the Jew was but a dog, to be cuffed, kicked and abused by his Mohammedan ruler, and was denied the most ordinary privileges of existence, in the land sacred to him with memories of the past, and with promises touching the future.

At the same time that the door to Palestine thus opened before them, a fierce persecution arose in Roumania and Galicia, and specially in Russia, where it still continues—increasingly. By one regulation after another they have been despoiled of rights and privileges by these governments, as well as mobbed by their neighbors, until they are being compelled to leave in large numbers. But this persecution is doubtless a favor also, as it will tend, and has already tended, to cause them to look toward Jerusalem and the covenants, and to remind them that they are heirs of certain rich earthly promises.

But we must remember that the year 1878 was but the turning point of returning favor to Fleshly Israel. We have already learned, from our study of The Times of the Gentiles, that Jerusalem and its people will continue to be trodden down, controlled and oppressed by the Gentiles, until the Times of the Gentiles be fulfilled, and hence, though favor was due and began in 1878, the Jew will not be received back into full favor until after 1914. Their rise again to favor will be gradual, as was their fall from it. It is remarkable that these two periods of their falling and rising are of the same length, the falling was gradual, with increasing momentum, for thirty-six years and a half, from 33, when their national favor ceased, to 69, where their national existence began to end, the land to be desolated and Jerusalem destroyed. History thus marks the beginning and ending of their fall, while prophecy marks both ends of their rising, 1878 and 1914, showing a parallel of thirty-six years and a half. This is a further part of their mishneh, double, mentioned by the prophet.

Though the turning points of the Jewish and Gospel ages are thus clearly marked at 33 and 1878 respectively, by Israel's rejection and returning favor, yet the work of each of these ages laps upon the age succeeding it. Thus the turning point of the Jewish age being reached, their age thereafter was lapped upon by the opening Gospel age, just as their returning favor, which is one of the opening features of the Millennial age, laps over upon the close or harvest of the Gospel age. For thirty-six years and a half (from 33, the end of their national favor, to 69, their overthrow) Israel, except the faithful remnant, was falling, and the believing Gentiles were rising, the Jewish age was ending and the Gospel age was beginning; and for thirty-six years and a half (from 1878 to 1914) the Gospel age is ending, and woes are preparing and coming upon Christendom, except the faithful remnant, while the restitution work for Israel and all people is preparing, i.e., the dates 33 and 1878 mark when the work of the respective new ages began, though the work of harvesting the preceding age, and destroying the refuse, was allowed to go on thirty-six years and a half into the new, in each case. Thus the lap of the dispensations, and the end-marks of each, are clearly defined.

A double work belongs to each of these lapping periods: the pulling down of the old and the establishing of the new arrangement or dispensation. And as the Jewish age and people were but the types or shadows, we must expect the results here to be much more extensive than there; and so we shall find them. This twofold work is shown in the statement of the prophet Isaiah, "For (1) the day of vengeance is in my heart, and (2) the year of my redeemed is come"—Isa. 63: 4.

Nor is it a cunningly devised correspondence, arranged to suit the facts; for many of these parallels, and other truths, were seen from prophecy, and were preached as here presented, several years prior to 1878, that year being announced as the time of returning favor to Israel, before it came, and before any event marked it so. The author published these conclusions drawn from Scripture, in pamphlet form, in the spring of 1877.

The testimony could scarcely be stronger, and yet be kept secret until due time for knowledge to be increased, and for the wise [in heavenly teaching] to understand. The exact year of Israel's rejection, yes, even the day, we know; that they were to have a mishneh or double, the Prophet clearly declares; that this parallel period is eighteen hundred and forty-five years long, that it ended in 1878, we have shown, we think; and that it was marked by favor is an indisputable fact. Bear in mind, too, that it is since the end of their double that Prof. Delitzsch has published his Hebrew translation of the New Testament, which is already in the hands of thousands of Hebrews and awakening much interest. And further, remember that the greatest Christian movement among the Jews since the days of the apostles, headed by Rabinowitsch and others, is in progress in Russia. It had its start about as long a time after 1878, where Israel's double ended, as the time of the awakening among the Gentiles was after Israel's rejection in A.D. 33.

Now call to mind the Apostle's words which show clearly that they were cast off from divine favor, and from earthly covenants, still theirs, until the fullness or complete number from the Gentiles has come in, until the end of the Gospel call, and then you will see that 1878 is a marked date, of deep interest to Spiritual Israel, no less important than to Fleshly Israel.

As none but our Lord Jesus knew the import of the end of the Law age and the beginning of the Gospel age (the apostles knew only in part and saw dimly until after Pentecost), so we can expect only the body of Christ, anointed with the same spirit, to see clearly the end of the Gospel age and its weighty import. The poor Jews and many professed Christians do not yet know of the great dispensational change which occurred at the first advent, the end of the Jewish age and the start of the Gospel age. And likewise now, few know, or will come to know, until outward evidences prove it to their natural sight, that we are now in the end or "harvest" of the Gospel age, and that 1878 marked so important a point as it did. Nor was it intended others than the faithful few should know, and not be in darkness with the world. To you it is given to know, said our Lord.

Some perhaps may say, Though Jeremiah was a prophet of the Lord, whose testimony as to the "mishneh" or duplication of Israel's experiences should be respected, we should consider the evidence still stronger if another prophet had mentioned the same thing. To such we reply that the statement of one reliable prophet is good and sufficient ground for faith, and that many of the notable proofs at the first advent were foretold by only a single prophet; nevertheless, God, who is rich in mercy and very pitiful, considered our weakness of faith, and has answered the prayer of our hearts in advance, providing more than the one testimony.

Turn to Zechariah's prophecy (9: 9-12). In prophetic vision he walks beside Jesus as he rides into Jerusalem, A.D. 33, five days before his crucifixion (John 12: 1-12), and to the people the Prophet cries, "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion! Shout, O daughter of Jerusalem! Behold, thy king cometh unto thee! He is just, and having salvation: lowly, and riding upon an ass." Mark the fulfillment of these words (Matt. 21: 4-9, 43; John 12: 12-15; Luke 19: 40-42). Every item was fulfilled, even to the shouting. When the people shouted Hosanna! the Pharisees asked Jesus to rebuke them, but he refused, saying, If these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out. Why? Because it had been prophesied there would be a shout, and every item of prophecy must be fulfilled. Let this particularity of detail in prophetic fulfillment give us confidence in the further statements of this and other prophets.

After briefly noting the evil consequences to follow a rejection of their king (Zech. 9: 10), the Prophet, speaking for Jehovah, addresses them (v. 12), "Turn you to the strong hold [Christ], ye prisoners of hope: even today do I declare that I will render double unto thee." The word double, here, is the same word used by Jeremiah mishneh, a repetition, or another equal portion. Israel had for years been under the Roman yoke, but they were prisoners of hope, hoping for a coming king who would deliver and exalt them to the promised dominion of earth. Now their king, their strong tower, had come, but so meek and lowly that they in their pride could not regard him as such a deliverer. Much more they were Sin's prisoners, and this Deliverer purposed this greater release also. Our Lord had been with them three and a half years, fulfilling the Scriptures in their midst, and now came the last and final test, would they receive him, the Lord's Anointed, as their king? The foreknowledge of God, that they would reject Messiah, is shown by the Prophet's words, Even today do I declare that I will render double unto thee.

This prophecy not only leaves no doubt about there being a double, a duplication of chastisement added to Israel's experience because of their rejection of Messiah, but it also marks the exact day when it began, and makes the conclusions drawn from Jeremiah's prophecy, and fixed by our Lord's words, "Your house is left unto you desolate," doubly strong, exact and clear.

Call to mind our Lord's words at this time on this point, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, that killest the prophets and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not. Behold! your house is left unto you desolate; for I say unto you, Ye shall not see me henceforth till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord" (Matt. 23: 37-39). Also we read that on the last day of their test, "when he was come near, he beheld the city and wept over it, saying, If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! But now [henceforth] they are hid from thine eyes" (Luke 19: 41, 42). Thank God, now that their double is complete, we can see that their blindness is beginning to turn away. This gives saints joy on their own account, too, for they realize the glorification of the Body of Christ draws near.

But our loving Father, who evidently wished to settle and to establish our hearts beyond doubt, upon the small point which decides and proves so much, has sent us word concerning Israel's double by another of his most honored servants, the Prophet Isaiah.

This prophet takes his standpoint down at this end, at the time when the double (mishneh) has been fulfilled, A.D. 1878; and, addressing us who now live, he gives us God's message, saying: "Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God. Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her that her appointed time is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned; for she hath received of the Lord's hand DOUBLE* for all her sins"—Isa. 40: 1, 2. See marginal reading.

The student of prophecy should notice that the prophets vary their standpoints, sometimes speaking of future things as future, and sometimes assuming a position future and speaking from that assumed standpoint, e.g., Isaiah, speaking of our Lord's birth, assumes to stand by the manger where the babe Jesus lay, when he says, "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given, and the government shall be upon his shoulders," etc. (Isa. 9: 6). The Book of Psalms cannot be read intelligently unless this principle be recognized. No better illustration of this principle can be given than the three prophecies relating to Israel's double already noticed. Jeremiah foretold that the days would come when God would scatter them among all nations, and that, when they have received double, he would gather them again by a more mighty display of power on their behalf than when they came out of Egyptian bondage. Zechariah speaks as though living at the time of Christ's offering himself to Israel as their king, and tells us that there, in that day, their double began. Isaiah stands beside us in 1878, and calls our attention to the fact that God had a fixed or appointed time for favoring Israel already arranged, and that this fixed time was after a double, or counterpart, of their previous favor; and he tells us that we should now give to Israel this comforting message that her double is complete, her appointed time accomplished. It would be difficult indeed to decide which of these three prophecies is strongest or most important. They are each important, and each would be strong alone; but combined they are a threefold cord of wonderful strength to the humble, studious, trustful children of God.

*The word here translated double is kephel, which means double, in the sense of a thing folded in the middle.

The force of these prophetic utterances is increased when we remember that these prophets lived and wrote hundreds of years apart, and that they wrote things entirely contrary to Jewish expectation. Surely faithless and slow of heart to believe all that God has spoken by the prophets are those who cannot see in this harmonious testimony the finger and dealings of God.

If any should object, that the Berlin Congress and its actions were not a sufficiently marked beginning of God's returning favor to Israel, we reply that it was a far more marked return of favor than was our Lord's action upon riding into Jerusalem a mark of disfavor. Neither, at its occurrence, was recognized as a fulfilling of prophecy. Today there are thousands more who know of the fulfillment of the double than up to Pentecost knew that the double began back there. Thus we see that the child that Simeon said was set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel (Luke 2: 34) proved the fall or stone of stumbling to Fleshly Israel as a nation. We have seen how, as the Head and Captain of Spiritual Israel, he is to be the Deliverer, to raise up again the fleshly house, and to restore all things after their appointed time, their double, is complete; and now we see the double complete and favor to Israel beginning. As we note these fulfillments of God's Word, our hearts may well sing,

"How firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord,
Is laid for your faith in his excellent Word."

While thus noting Israel's fall from favor and their consequent loss, and the cause of all this, let us not forget that in this also they foreshadowed nominal Spiritual Israel, and that the same prophets have foretold the stumbling and fall of both the houses of Israel—"He shall be for a stone of stumbling and for a rock of offence to both the houses of Israel"—Isa. 8: 14.

As truly as there was a casting off and fall of nominal Fleshly Israel, as we have seen, there is to be a casting off and fall of nominal Spiritual Israel, the nominal Gospel Church, and for similar reasons. The casting off and fall of the one are as vividly portrayed in the Bible as those of the other. And as surely as a remnant of Fleshly Israel was saved from blindness and fall through meekness and faith, so also a similar remnant of nominal Spiritual Israel shall be saved from the blindness and fall of the nominal mass in the harvest or end of this age. Thus the last members of the true Church, the body of Christ, are to be separated from the nominal church, to be joined to the Head, glorified. The remnant chosen from Fleshly Israel at its fall, and the faithful few of the Gospel age, including the living remnant at its end, alone constitute the true Israel of God. These are the Elect, justified by faith in Christ's redemptive work, called to joint-sacrifice and joint-heirship with Christ, chosen in the sanctification of the spirit and belief of the truth, and faithful unto death. With the completion of the selection of this company, in the harvest of this age, quite a commotion may be expected among the wheat and tares; for many divine favors, specially granted because of the faithful few, will be withdrawn from the nominal mass, when the little flock, for whose development they were granted, has been completed.

We should expect the order here would be, as in the typical Jewish harvest, a separating work, fulfilling the words of David, Gather my saints together unto me, those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice (Psa. 50: 5). As A.D. 33 marked the giving over of the nominal Jewish house, as a system, to disfavor, disruption and overthrow, so the corresponding date, 1878, marked the beginning of the disfavor, disruption and overthrow of nominal Spiritual Israel, of which we shall have more to say in succeeding chapters.

MATHEMATICAL DEMONSTRATION.

Assuming that the foregoing evidence is conclusive and satisfactory, we now proceed to prove chronologically: First, that the Jewish age, from the death of Jacob to where their house was left desolate when their double or second part began, was eighteen hundred and forty-five years long; and second, that the double ended in A.D. 1878, and favor was due to begin there, proving thus the close of the Gospel age favors.

The second point requires no proof; for it being a fact that our Lord died in 33, it becomes an easy matter to add eighteen hundred and forty-five years to 33, and find the year 1878 to be the year in which favor to Israel was due to begin, provided we can prove our first proposition, that the period of Israel's waiting for the fulfillment of God's promises under his favor was eighteen hundred and forty-five years long.

The length of this period is set forth in the chapter on Chronology except one item, namely, the period from the death of Jacob to the coming out of Egypt. This period was peculiarly hidden, or covered, until recently; until it was noticed the length of the Jewish age was not known; and without it the double of it could not have been measured, even if the prophecies of the double had been noticed and understood. The Chronology runs smoothly until Jacob's death, but from that date until the coming out of Egypt, there is no full record. Various snatches here and there are given, but no connected thread by which we could surely know. It was for this reason that at this point in the table of Chronology we were compelled to look to the New Testament. There we received aid from the inspired Apostle, who gave us the connecting link. We thus learned that it was a period of four hundred and thirty (430) years from the Covenant, at the death of Terah, Abraham's father, to Israel's exodus from Egypt.

We find the hidden period between the death of Jacob and Israel's leaving Egypt by first calculating the period from the death of Terah to the death of Jacob, and then deducting that number of years from the four hundred and thirty years, the period from Terah's death to the exodus from Egypt. Thus:

Abraham was seventy-five (75) years old when the Covenant was made with him, at the death of Terah (Gen. 12: 4), and Isaac was born twenty-five (25) years after (Gen. 21: 5). Hence

From the Covenant to the birth of Isaac.....	25	years
From Isaac's to Jacob's birth (Gen. 25: 26).....	60	"
From Jacob's birth to his death (Gen. 47: 28)....	147	"
Total years from the Abrahamic Covenant	— to Jacob's death	232	"
From the Covenant to the day Israel left
Egypt (Exod. 12: 41), at the Passover	430	"
From this deduct the period from the Covenant to Jacob's death	232	"
The period from Jacob's death to the	—
Exodus, therefore, was	198	"

Thus all difficulty as to the length of Israel's national existence is cleared away. The hidden period from Jacob's death to the Exodus was no doubt purposely concealed, until due to be seen. To this we add the periods presented in the Chronological Table, as follows:

Period from Jacob's death to the Exodus	198	years
Israel in the wilderness.....	40	"
To the division of Canaan	6	"
Period of the Judges.....	450	"
" " Kings.....	513	"
" " Desolation	70	"
From the first year of Cyrus to A.D 1	536	"

To find the length of the double, when favor was due and began toward them, and when therefore it began to depart from nominal Spiritual Israel, we count eighteen hundred and forty-five years from the Spring of 33, and obtain the date of Passover, 1878. Their rising again from A.D. 1878 to 1914 (the closing of Gentile Times), under the favor of the King whom they rejected, and whom by that time they will recognize, corresponds in length with their thirty-six years and a half of falling, from the day their house was left desolate, A.D. 33, until the start of their overthrow as a people, A.D. 69.

We have already examined many striking parallels between the Jewish age shadow or type, and the Gospel age substance or antitype, and here we have just proved another: The length of the two ages corresponds exactly, the Gospel Church being called during Israel's mishneh or double of disfavor. And while other correspondencies are striking, especially so are the closing features of the two ages, their harvests, reapers, work and the time devoted, all serve to give us clear outlines of the closing work to be accomplished in the harvest which is the end of this age. Note carefully the correspondencies of these two harvests, as we shall briefly recapitulate:

REVIEW OF HARVEST PARALLELS.

The Jewish age ended with a harvest, our Lord and the apostles doing the work of reaping fruit, whose seed had been sown by Moses and the prophets. "Lift up your eyes, (said Jesus), and look on the fields, for they are white already to harvest ... I send you to reap that whereon ye have bestowed no labor: other men labored, and ye are entered into their labors" (John 4: 35-38). The end of the Gospel age is also called a harvest, "The harvest is the end of the world" (age). "In the time of harvest, I will say to the reapers, Gather first the tares and bind them in bundles ... but gather the wheat into my barn"—Matt. 13: 39, 30.

John foretold Jewish harvest's work and effect (Matt. 3: 12): "Whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat [Israelites indeed] into the garner [Christian Church]; but he will burn up the chaff [refuse of the nation] with unquenchable fire," (a trouble which consumed them nationally). Here was the baptism of the holy Spirit and of fire—the holy Spirit coming upon the Israelites indeed at Pentecost, and the fire of trouble upon all others, during the thirty-six years and a half following their rejection (Matt. 3: 11). In the trouble Israel as a nation was destroyed, not as individuals. The Revelator tells of the harvesting of this age with the sickle of truth, because the time to reap is come, and shows a double work, part of which relates to the vine of the earth, as distinguished from the true vine of the Father's planting, Christ Jesus and his members or branches (John 15: 1-6). The harvest of this age is said to be of wheat and tares (Matt. 13: 24-30, 36-39): that of the Jewish age was called one of wheat and chaff. And as the chaff predominated largely there, the analogy and parallelism so marked in every other feature implies that the tares will be much more abundant than the wheat in this harvest.

The Jewish harvest, a period of forty years, began with our Lord's ministry and ended with the start of nominal Israel's overthrow and the destruction of their city, by the Romans, A.D. 69. And the harvest of this age began with the presence of our Lord at the beginning of Earth's Jubilee, in 1874, as shown in chapter vi., and ends with the start of the overthrow of Gentile power, 1914, a period of forty years, also another of the wonderful parallels of the two ages.

While the Jewish harvest began with our Lord's ministry, and God's favor departed from their system three and a half years later, and was followed by thirty-six years and a half of trouble upon that system, yet favor continued to individuals of that nation, and the call to the high position of joint-heirship with Christ was given to them alone for three and a half years after Jesus' rejection by and of them, thus verifying the promise to Daniel (Dan. 9: 27), that favor would be shown to his people to the full end of the seventieth week, in the midst of which Messiah was cut off. This promise was fulfilled to all the wheat, while the system which held it was condemned and cast off in the midst of the week. The harvesting of the wheat of the Jewish age lasted for several years, beginning with our Lord's ministry, though all the special favor ceased three and a half years after the death of Christ.

The trouble upon that nation began to kindle early, but did not reach its terrible fury until the wheat of the nation had been about all garnered.

Similar periods are marked in the harvest of this age now closing, corresponding to those of that harvest. The fall of 1874, when the Jubilee cycles point out that our Lord was due to be present, corresponds to the time of his baptism and anointing by the holy Spirit when he became Messiah the Prince (Dan. 9: 25), and began his work of reaping the Jewish harvest. The Spring of 1878, three and a half years after, corresponds to the date at which Jesus assumed the office of King, rode on the ass, cleansed the temple of its money-changers, wept over and gave up to desolation that nominal church or kingdom. It marks the date when the nominal church systems were spewed out (Rev. 3: 16), and from which time (1878) they are not the mouth-pieces of God, nor in any degree recognized by him. The three and a half years following the Spring of 1878, which ended October, 1881, correspond to the three and a half years of continued favor to individual Jews in the last half of their seventieth week of favor. As in the type the date, three and a half years after Jesus' death, marked the end of all special favor to the Jew and the beginning of favor to the Gentiles, so we recognize 1881 as marking the close of the special favor to Gentiles, the close of the high calling, or invitation to the blessings peculiar to this age—to become joint-heirs with Christ and partakers of the divine nature. As we have seen, this marks a movement among the Jewish people toward Christianity, known as the Kishenev Movement. Now trouble is impending over nominal Christendom, but the storm is stayed until the wheat is garnered, until God's messengers seal his servants in their foreheads (intellects) with the truth—Rev. 7: 3.

The features of this harvest corresponding to those of the Jewish harvest have been very marked also as to the preaching done. In the first three and a half years of the Jewish harvest Jesus and the disciples had for their special text time, and Messiah's presence. Their proclamation was, The time is fulfilled, the Deliverer has come (Mark 1: 15; Matt. 10: 7). So in this harvest also: up to 1878 the time prophecies and the fact of the Lord's presence, substantially as here presented, though less clearly, were our message. Since then the work has widened, and the view of other truths has become brighter and clearer; but the same facts and scriptures, teaching the same time and presence, stand unchallenged and incontrovertible. As the favor that was continued to individual Israelites, after their house nominal was cut off from favor, was not intended to convert and reform their nominal church system, nor granted in hope of changing their chaff into wheat, but was intended to separate and garner every grain of ripe wheat, so in this harvest the object of the continued and abounding favor of the truth is not designed to convert whole sects or to work national reforms, but on the contrary to separate completely the wheat class from the tare class. They have grown together side by side for centuries, and a pure, all-wheat sect has been unknown; but now in the harvest the separation must come, and the strain is terrible. It means, in many instances, the uprooting of earthly friendships and the sundering of many tender ties; and the truth will do the separating. The Lord's prediction as to the harvest at the first advent is true again in the present harvest (Matt. 10: 35-38; Luke 12: 51-53). As there the truth set the father against the son, the daughter against the mother, and the mother-in-law against the daughter-in-law, so again, a man's foes are often they of his own household. This cannot be avoided. They who love peace more than truth will be tested, and they who love truth supremely will be accepted and approved as the overcomers, as in the Jewish harvest.

In the Jewish harvest the messengers chosen and sent forth as heralds of the King and Kingdom at hand were humble, untitled men, and those who opposed the message were the Chief Priests, Scribes, Pharisees and Doctors of Divinity. As we should expect we find it here: the blindest are the leaders of the blind, who, like their types, Know not the time of their visitation—Luke 19: 44.

The presence was one of the main tests there, and the cross was the other. John the Baptizer cried to them, "There standeth one among you whom ye know not." Yet only Israelites indeed were able to realize the fact of Messiah's presence; and of these many stumbled over the cross; for though willing to accept Messiah as a Deliverer, their pride made them unwilling to receive him as Redeemer, also. So here, the presence of Christ, the "harvest" in progress, and the rejection of the nominal mass of professors, stumble many; and the great Deliverer, for whose coming and kingdom many have prayed (as did the Jews), they are unready to acknowledge. Again it is true, "There standeth one among you whom ye know not." And again the cross of Christ becomes a test and a stone of stumbling or trial as none could have expected; and many, many are now falling over it, saying, We will accept Christ as our Deliverer, but reject him as our Redeemer or Ransomer.

Surely all who will consider the matter carefully must acknowledge the evidence that our Lord is now present, a spirit being, and hence invisible, is greater and clearer than the evidence which the Jew had of his presence in the flesh at the first advent. And not only are the prophetic evidences of the Lord's presence now more full, complete and numerous, but the signs of the times everywhere about us, showing the harvest work in progress, are much more apparent and convincing, to those whose eyes are anointed (Rev. 3: 18), than the circumstances of the first advent, when Jesus, with a handful of followers, through much opposition and under many unfavorable conditions, announced, The time is fulfilled; repent and believe the good tidings, Messiah has come, the Messenger of the great Jehovah, to fulfill to you the promises made to the fathers. What wonder that only the humble minded ones could accept the humble Nazarene as the great Deliverer, or the humble, untitled men with him as part of his cabinet, as those who were to be princes under him. Only the few could see in the one who rode on the ass and wept over Jerusalem the great King of whom Zechariah had prophesied that Zion would receive him as King with shoutings of joy.

At his first advent he humbled himself, taking the form and nature of man (Heb. 2: 9, 14), thereby to accomplish our redemption by giving himself as our ransom price. He is now highly exalted, and dieth no more; and at his second advent, clothed with power (Phil. 2: 9), he will exalt his "body," and then bestow upon the world the blessing of restitution which he purchased for them at his first advent with his own precious blood. Remember, he is no longer flesh, but a spirit being, and will shortly change, and glorify as his members and joint-heirs, all his faithful followers.

To the Jewish house Jesus presented himself in three characters, as Bridegroom, Reaper (John 3: 29; 4: 35, 38) and King (Matt. 21: 5, 9, 4). To the Christian house he presents himself in the same three characters (2 Cor. 11: 2; Rev. 14: 14, 15; 17: 14). To the Jewish house he came as Bridegroom and Reaper in the start of their harvest (the beginning of his ministry); and just before his crucifixion he presented himself as their King, exercising kingly authority in pronouncing judgment on them, in leaving their house desolate, and in the typical act of cleansing the temple (Luke 19: 41-46; Mark 11: 15-17). So it has been in this harvest: Jesus' presence as Bridegroom and Reaper was recognized during the first three and a half years, from 1874 to 1878. Since that time it has been emphatically manifest that the time had come in 1878 when kingly judgment should begin at the house of God. It is here that Rev. 14: 14-20 applies, and our Lord is brought to view as the Reaper crowned. The year A.D. 1878, being the parallel of his assuming power and authority in the type, marks the time for the actual assuming of power as King of kings, by our present, spiritual, invisible Lord, the time of his taking to himself his great power to reign, which in the prophecy is closely associated with the resurrection of his faithful, and the beginning of the trouble and wrath upon the nations (Rev. 11: 17, 18). Here, as in the type, judgment begins with the nominal church, in condemning to destruction the systems, not the people, outwardly representing the true Church, the body. Here also is the cleansing of the true temple, the Church, the body of Christ, the consecrated class (1 Cor. 3: 16; Rev. 3: 12). This consecrated or temple class in the nominal church stands related to the nominal church, as a whole, as the literal temple stood related to Jerusalem, as a whole. After the city was given up the temple was cleansed: so now the temple class must be cleansed: every selfish, carnal thought and all worldliness must be cast out, that the temple may be clean, the dwelling place of God's holy Spirit, the temple of the living God.

The special work since 1878 has been the proclamation, "Come out of her [Babylon], my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues" (Rev. 18: 4). "Depart ye, depart ye; go ye out from thence, touch no unclean thing; go ye out of the midst of her; be ye [the royal Priesthood] clean, that bear the vessels of the Lord"—Isa. 52: 11.

Another point of similarity marking the first and second advents is the prevailing sense of the need of a deliverer, and a wide-spread impression among the nations that deliverance must in some way soon come, the ideas of some even approximating the truth of the matter. In each case only a few are able to recognize the Deliverer and enlist under his banner in the service of the truth. In the Jewish harvest many went forth to meet the Lord when all men were in expectation of him (Luke 3: 15), at the time of his birth, thirty years before his anointing as Messiah at the beginning of his ministry. So there was a corresponding expectation and movement on the part of many (afterward called Adventists) led by a Baptist brother named William Miller, in this country, and by Mr. Wolff and others in Europe and Asia. This culminated in the year 1844, just thirty years before 1874, when Christ the Bridegroom and Reaper actually came, as shown by the Jubilee's teaching. In this we find another striking time-parallel between these ages; for those thirty years correspond to the thirty years from the birth of the babe Jesus to Messiah the Anointed, baptized, and introduced as Bridegroom and Reaper, at the age of thirty—Matt. 3: 11; John 3: 29.

In each case there was a disappointment and a thirty year waiting time, during which all slumbered, and only a few in each case awakened at the right time to a realization of Messiah's presence. The nominal mass in both houses fail to recognize the visitation, because overcharged and lukewarm, neglecting the command to take heed and watch. So will be fulfilled the prediction by Isaiah, "He shall be for a stone of stumbling and for a rock of offence to both the houses of Israel" (Isa. 8: 14). The fleshly house stumbled because they had made void the law of God through giving heed to traditions (Mark 7: 9, 13), and so had no proper conception of the manner and object of the first advent. Hence they were unprepared to receive him in the way he came, and so stumbled over him and his sacrifice. The mass of nominal spiritual Israel are now stumbling over the same rock, and for the same reason. Blinded by the traditions of men and sectarian prejudices which hinder a proper enlightenment by the Word of God, they have not a proper conception of the manner or object of the Lord's second advent. Here also the cross, the doctrine of the ransom, is becoming a test to all. It is worthy of careful notice, too, that neither house would stumble or fall over a rock not present. The Rock is now present, and nominal systems are stumbling, falling and being broken to pieces; while now, as at the first advent the Israelites indeed are individually recognizing and accepting the Rock, and by climbing upon this truth are being lifted spiritually far above the stumbling, rejecting masses.

Those having the eyes of their understanding enlightened do not stumble; but as they climb upon the Rock, from its higher standpoint they see much more clearly both the past and the future of the divine plan, some things not possible to utter, relative to the coming glory of the Church and the gala-day of earth. They who put their trust in the Lord shall never be confounded.

The full force of this parallelism is not obtained unless it is noted that the Jubilee cycles and the Gentile Times mark the periods which correspond so exactly with these in the Jewish parallels. It is not fancy that the Jewish and Christian ages are type and antitype—the apostles and prophets testify to their correspondency. Nor do we rely merely on the parallels in proof of the harvest work of the dispensation now in progress: this harvest, as already shown, is otherwise marked, both its start and end. The Jubilee cycles prove that Jesus was due to be present and begin the restitution work in the fall of 1874. And the parallelism above referred to shows that date to correspond exactly with the anointing of Jesus as the Messiah, at the beginning of the Jewish harvest, at the first advent. The Gentile Times prove that the present governments must start to be overturned about October, 1914; and the Parallelism above shows that this period corresponds exactly with the year 69, which witnessed the start of the downfall of the Jewish polity. A reasonable question, then, in view of all this, is, Are these time-correspondencies mere accidents, or are they of the same divine ordering which we have seen arranged the other affairs of the fleshly house as shadows of the realities of this dispensation?

No, they are not accidental: undoubtedly the same all-wise One who taught us through the Chronology that six thousand years from Adam's creation ended in 1872, and that the seventh thousand, the Millennial age, began there; who through the Jubilee cycles taught us the Lord would be present and the Times of Restitution begin in the fall of 1874; and who through the Gentile Times showed us that we must not expect these things to be done in haste, but by seemingly natural means over a period of forty years, has in the Parallel Dispensations marked by Israel's double given us evidence that not only itself teaches clearly the Lord's presence, the harvest and the restitution, beginning with favor to fleshly Israel, but at the same time gives a proof of the correctness of the other prophetic evidences and of the Chronology. For be it distinctly noticed that if the Chronology, or any of these time-periods, be changed but one year, the beauty and force of this parallelism are destroyed. For instance, if the Chronology be altered but one year, more or less, if we add one year, say to the period of the Kings or the Judges, or if we make it one year less, it would spoil the parallelism. If we should add one year it would make the first of Israel's periods 1846 years long, and the double or other half of it would thus be thrown one year later, while, on the contrary, by such a change of the Chronology the Jubilee cycles would be thrown one year earlier, i.e., 1873; and it would make the 6000 years end in 1871, while the Gentile Times would not be affected by it at all. All can see that the harmony or parallelism would thus be utterly destroyed. Or, if one year should be deducted from the chronological reckoning the confusion would be just as great, the changes to the several periods being in an opposite direction. Thus these various time-prophecies corroborate each other, while the parallelism of the two dispensations clinches their testimony.

It will be noted by those at all familiar with the calculations usually made by Second Adventists and others relative to the prophetic periods, etc., that this method of dealing with these subjects is very different from theirs. They usually attempt to make all prophecies end at some one date. Their erroneous expectations lead them to this. They expect that a few moments will witness the entire program which will really occupy a thousand years, the Lord's coming, the resurrection, and the judgment of the world. And their expectation concerning those few moments is that they close by the burning up of the world. To appreciate and accept the prophecies which point out various dates for various steps in God's great plan, they would need first to understand the Plan of the Ages and the true manner of the Lord's second advent. But the great majority are too much blinded by their theories and prejudices to do this. Their attempts to apply prophecy to their false expectations often lead to twisting, stretching or whittling, according to the necessities of the case, in the endeavor to get all the prophecies to terminate at some one date. These friends should awake to their error in this direction; for one after another their expectations have failed, while we and they know that some of the prophecies they have used cannot be stretched into the future, but are in the past, and are now abandoned by them. They are fulfilled, but differently from what they expected, and they know it not.

On the contrary, the prophecies here presented, and those yet to be considered, are unstrained, and without twisting or whittling. We simply present them as we find them in God's Word; and, having correct expectations from God's great Plan of the Ages, it is easy for those seeing it clearly to note how the various prophetic chains fit to it and measure it. They mark it, some at one important point and some at another; and to such as see this much, this parallelism of the Jewish and Christian dispensations shows and proves beyond reasonable doubt the correctness of all the others.

The statement of the time-periods of God's plan, furnished in the prophecies, is very similar to an architect's specifications; and the parallels of the Jewish dispensation resemble his outline drawings. Suppose we had an architect's specifications for a house, without any drawings, and were to sit down and make a drawing from the specifications, and afterward should receive from the architect his outline drawings of the prospective building—if a comparison of it with our own sketch, made from the specifications, showed all the angles and measures exactly alike, we should be doubly assured as to our correct understanding of the specifications. So here, the drawing, the type or shadow of the Gospel age furnished us in the Jewish age, and the correspondence of prophecies and events with those foreshadowings, give us as strong assurance of the correctness of our conclusions as could be asked, while we still "walk by faith and not by sight."

Other prophetic testimonies yet to be examined will also be found in perfect accord with these parallels. One of them, the Days of Daniel, points out a great blessing upon the consecrated who would be living in A.D. 1874 and onward—a blessing surely being fulfilled in the grand unfolding of the truths of God's Word since that time. To him be the praise who hath called us out of darkness into his marvelous light!

Remember that the forty years' Jewish harvest ended October, A.D. 69, and was followed by the complete overthrow of that nation; and that likewise the forty years of the Gospel age harvest will end October, 1914, and that likewise the overthrow of "Christendom," so-called, must be expected to immediately follow. "In one hour" judgment shall come upon her—Rev. 18: 10, 17, 19.

STUDY VIII.

ELIAS SHALL FIRST COME.

HOW THIS IMPORTANT PROPHECY STANDS RELATED TO THE SECOND ADVENT. A PARTIAL AND TYPICAL FULFILMENT IN JOHN THE BAPTIST. THE REAL FULFILMENT. THE VISION ON THE HOLY MOUNT. REMARKABLE CORRESPONDENCIES BETWEEN ELIJAH, THE TYPE, AND THE ANTITYPICAL ELIJAH. THE TIME IS AT HAND. THE OUTLOOK. ELIJAH'S SUCCESSOR, ELISHA.

"Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord. And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers, lest [i.e., or else] I come and smite the earth with a curse"—Mal. 4: 5, 6.

IN considering the evidences of the time being at hand for the establishment of Messiah's Kingdom in the earth, this prophecy, showing the priority of Elijah's coming, must not be overlooked.

The expression of our text is peculiar. The thought seems to be that Elijah's work will be to turn, convert, parents to a humble, childlike condition, and, after making them teachable as little children, to turn their hearts from error, sin and unfaithfulness, and lead them back into harmony with their fathers, a name given by Hebrews to their faithful patriarchs and prophets.

Malachi's prophecy, the last message sent by Jehovah to Israel, seems to have deeply impressed them, especially the last two chapters, which particularly refer to Messiah's coming, and to the special trials which the day of the Lord's presence would bring with it (See Mal. 3: 1-3, 13-18; 4: 1-6). Gathering from this that the testing would be peculiar, they took comfort from the last verses quoted above, which promised that Elijah the prophet, who had once converted the entire nation from the worship of Baal back to the worship of God, would come again to prepare them, before this severe testing time which Messiah's coming would bring.

This prophecy was not fulfilled at the first advent of our Lord, neither the portion which relates to Messiah nor that which refers to Elijah. The prophecy evidently refers to the second advent; to the coming of the Messenger of the Covenant in glory and power; and to the testing and great trouble of the Day of the Lord at that time. However, Christ's presentation to typical Israel, and the great trouble which came upon them as a nation when they rejected him, was, as God had foreseen and intended, another shadow which further illustrated in many particulars the things presented in this prophecy. John the Immerser, in the spirit of Elijah, did a work for Israel similar to that of the Elijah promised, but failed of success; and, as a result, trouble, a curse, upon that nation followed. The real Elijah referred to by the prophet was to do a great work for the whole earth, to prepare all mankind for the second advent; and he will for a time also fail of success, and as a result the great time of trouble, the curse, will smite the whole earth.

The coming of Elijah mentioned by the prophet is before this great and dreadful Day of Jehovah.* And since, as we have shown, the great Day of Jehovah began in 1874, will continue forty years, and will end with the expiration of Gentile Times in the complete overthrow of worldly and Satanic dominion in the earth, and the full investiture of Immanuel, Christ Jesus and his saints, with all power and dominion, it is important for us to show here that Elijah has come. He has failed to turn the hearts of the world to childlikeness and to the wisdom of the just; hence the time of trouble comes, as God foresaw and foretold. In it God will teach mankind by severe and bitter experiences lessons they need to learn well, to prepare them gratefully to accept the Christ, Jehovah's Messenger of the New Covenant, with all the just arrangements, laws, etc., of that covenant.

At the first advent, as we have seen, many of God's promises and plans were enacted on a small scale with one nation, Israel, as an illustration of the greater, grander realities to be accomplished at Christ's second coming. As the miracles, cures, etc., typed the greater works of the Millennial age, and our Lord's riding on the ass as King represented his assuming the greater power, majesty and honor at the second advent as King of kings and Lord of lords, so the man Christ Jesus and his little band of disciples represented the Lord of Glory highly exalted, associated with the saints, his bride and co-heirs, at the second advent. Thus John the Baptist and his disciples engaged in the same work with and under him, in trying to convert Israel and to prepare them to receive Messiah, represented the real Elijah, the Christian church, whose work has been to attempt to convert the world before the coming of Messiah to the world, the spiritual Lord of glory and King of kings. John, in the spirit and power of Elijah, failed to reform Israel, and, as a result (Matt. 17: 12), Israel rejected Jesus in the flesh, and brought upon themselves a great day of vengeance, trouble and wrath (Luke 21: 22). So, likewise, only on the larger scale, the real and greater Elijah has failed to convert and prepare the world to receive the King of Glory, and now, consequently, the great day of wrath must come upon the world, to melt and mellow and humble and prepare all to cry out from the heart, Hosannah! Blessed is he that cometh in the name of Jehovah!

It is thus seen that the Church in the flesh (the Christ in the flesh, Head and body) is the Elijah or forerunner of the Church in glory, Jehovah's Anointed. Not the nominal church, but the true Church, which on the other side of the tomb will be the great Anointed Deliverer,—these constitute the Elijah. Their mission is to reprove error and sin, and to point to the coming Kingdom of glory. Jesus and the Apostles, and all the faithful in Christ Jesus since, are of this great antitypical Elijah, prophet or teacher, the same class, Head and body, that shall shortly compose the King of Glory. The work in which the Church is now engaged is preliminary to its future work, so far as the reforming of the world is concerned. In its kingly office the Church shall effect for the world what it fails to do as the Elijah teacher.

Let us not be misunderstood: We have already shown that God's plan does not extend to the converting of the world during the Gospel age. He did not intend it to do so, but merely designed the selection and trial of the Church now, and the blessing of the world through the Church, the Christ, in an age to follow this. We do not contradict this when we say that the Elijah, Christ in the flesh, has tried to convert the world and failed, except in bringing about partial reforms; for though God foretold that our mission to the world would be largely a failure, except in selecting a choice little flock, yet, knowing that the effort would react favorably upon ourselves, his commission to us through our Lord was to try to convert the world, when he said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the good tidings to every creature." Seeing that he foretold our present failure, but our future success, when he shall glorify and endue us with divine power, we are enabled to rejoice even while viewing the comparative failure of the past eighteen centuries, realizing that the labor of the true Elijah class has not been in vain, but has served the divine purpose in developing the true Church while bearing witness before the world—which will profit it in due time.

John the Baptist was not actually Elijah returned to earth, neither is the Church; but as it was true of John, that he did an Elijah work to Israel (Luke 1: 17) to prepare them, and introduced the Lord in the flesh, so it is true of the Church, it does the predicted Elijah work in the spirit and power of Elijah to the world, and announces our Lord's second advent in almost the same words which John used at the first advent, "There standeth one among you whom ye know not ... He it is who, coming after me, is superior to me"—John 1: 26, 27.

All could not receive John's testimony nor realize that he was forerunner to Jesus in the flesh. Had they done so, they would have been fitted thereby to receive Jesus as their Messiah. To as many of them as could and did accept John's message and receive Christ, to these John did do the Elijah work. As Jesus said to them of John (Matt. 11: 14), If ye will receive it, this is [types] the Elias that shall come, though John and his work did not complete the prediction on Elijah, as Jesus in the flesh did not fulfill all predicted of Messiah. He was, to all who could receive it, Jehovah's Anointed, even before he had finished his sacrifice, or had been glorified, or had come again in the exercise of the office of Messiah or Deliverer. John, at the first advent, was also a finishing out, in a measure, of the type begun in the person and work of Elijah; and John's work at the first advent foreshadowed the closing work of the Church at the second advent. These, the feet of Christ in the flesh, the feet of Elijah, announce the Kingdom (Isa. 52: 7). To those who can receive it we announce as near the reign of the Christ glorified; also to those who can receive it we point out the foretold antitypical Elijah. Some, probably, will not receive it, but will still look for some one man to fulfill Malachi's predictions, and will know not the time of their visitation until the day of trouble is burning as an oven.

It will be seen, then, that the failure of the Elijah, the Christ in the flesh, to convert and restore the world was as much a foreseen result as John's failure to convert Israel. Nevertheless it will be the same Elijah class, only glorified and empowered, that will during the Millennial age teach the world and restore all things, as promised by the mouth of all the holy prophets (Acts 3: 19-21); only in the name and likeness the Elijah type ceases with our earthly career. In harmony with this were our Lord's words in reply to his disciples who asked, "Why then say the scribes that Elijah must first come?" Our Lord's answer does not attempt a full explanation of Elijah's being a type and John a continuation of the same while at the same time a shadowy fulfillment of it, etc., things that the disciples were not then ready to understand, and that were not then due to be understood; and hence, while pointing out John's failure as a partial fulfillment of the prophecy, Jesus adds, Elijah truly shall* come, and restore all things (Matt. 17: 11). Evidently he had in mind his own glorious work of the coming age, associated with his glorified body which the Gospel age would select and test. He was looking beyond the veil to the Millennial age, and seeing the Elijah class caught up in the chariots of fire in power and great glory—spiritual exaltation.

*Oldest Manuscripts omit first.

A woman is a figure used when the Church alone is referred to, separate from her Lord and Head. Separate and distinct from her Lord, the Bridegroom, she is an espoused virgin. But in this case a man, Elijah, is the figure used, because the work prefigured is not the work of the Church separate from Jesus, but the one work of both. Our Lord was the Head and Forerunner of the Church in the flesh, the Elijah, as truly as he is Head of the Church triumphant, the Christ. Other instances in which a man is the figure used, when a joint work of Christ Jesus and his body, the Church, is typified, are numerous: for instance, Aaron and all his successors in the office of Chief Priest represented the Lord and the under priests, members of his body; Melchisedec similarly represented the whole body in glory; so did Moses, David and Solomon. Hence the use of Elijah as a figure, in representing a united work of Christ and the Church, is in harmony with the Scripture usage.

In view of the class that Elijah represented, how eloquent was that vision which the Lord showed the three disciples on the mount of transfiguration (Matt. 17: 1-9). It was a vision of the coming Kingdom, Peter tells us (2 Pet. 1: 16-18). Jesus, transfigured, appeared radiant before their eyes, while a figure of Moses represented the Mosaic or Law Dispensation and a figure of Elijah represented the Gospel or Christian Dispensation. Both dispensations look toward and point out and speak of the sufferings of Christ and the glory to follow.

Before leaving this subject we present some features and incidents in the life of the Prophet Elijah, the type, comparing them with the history of the Church, antitypical Elijah, which will certainly astonish all who have not noticed them heretofore. That the comparison may be readily seen, we place these in parallel columns.

ELIJAH.

Elijah was persecuted for fidelity to truth and righteousness.

His principal persecutor was Jezebel, the wicked queen of Israel, who is mentioned by name as the type of the enemy of the saints—Rev. 2: 20.

Jezebel's persecuting power was exercised through her husband, Ahab, the king.

Elijah fled from Jezebel and Ahab, into the wilderness, to a place prepared of God, where he was miraculously nourished—1 Kings 17: 5-9.

Elijah was "three years and six months" in the wilderness, and during that time there was no rain, and a great famine was in the land—James 5: 17; 1 Kings 17: 7; 18: 2.

After the three and a half years, 1260 days, when Elijah returned from the wilderness, the errors of Jezebel's priests were manifested, the true God was honored, and copious rains followed—1 Kings 18: 41-45.

The king and the people at first rejoiced, and Elijah and his God were honored; but the spirit of Jezebel was unchanged. She still sought Elijah's life, and he was again compelled to flee into the wilderness—1 Kings 18: 40, 45, 46; 19: 1-4.

Elijah's career ended by his being taken from the earth.

THE CHURCH.

The Church was persecuted for fidelity to truth and righteousness.

The principal persecutor was the apostate Church of Rome, which claims to be a queen and ruler over spiritual Israel—Rev. 18: 7.

Papacy's persecuting power was exercised through the Roman Empire, to which she was joined.

The true Church fled into the symbolic wilderness, condition of isolation, to her place, prepared of God, where she was sustained—Rev. 12: 6, 16.

The Church was three and a half symbolic years (a day for a year, 1260 literal years) in the wilderness condition, during which there was a spiritual famine because of the lack of truth, the living water—Rev. 12: 6; 11: 3; Amos 8: 11.

At the end of the 1260 years the power of the truth and its witnesses was manifested (A.D. 1799); and since then the truth has flowed at the rate of millions of Bibles every year, refreshing the world and bringing forth fruit.

The Bible has brought such blessings that the empires of earth recognize the Lord's hand; yet the principles of Papacy, Jezebel, in so-called Protestant sects compel the saints again to flee into the wilderness condition.

The saints will be changed from earthly to heavenly conditions.

These are coincidences striking, and not accidental. The fact that Elijah was to come before the great day, and that now we find in the Church the antitypical Elijah to whom Malachi referred and whom John the Baptist further typed, should be esteemed another evidence that the time is at hand, that the great Day of the Lord has come. But, beyond this, there are in this type suggestions, supported by other scriptures, designed to guide and fit the saints to act well their part, and to strengthen and sustain them in the stormy day upon us.

We desire not to draw before the mind a dark picture: we prefer to think of and point out the glory to follow the day of wrath, and the joys of the incoming Millennial Day, rather than the afflictions and discouragements of the nearer future that precedes full sunrise. But it is necessary that the saints should be at least in some measure forewarned of impending events, that when such come to pass they be not alarmed or disheartened, but being fore-armed may know how to meet them; and also that they may more fully appreciate the blessings of the present, so as diligently to work while it is called day; for the night [a much darker time in comparison with the present, called day] cometh, wherein no man can work.

The little season, before the storm-cloud bursts upon the world, is a favorable time for the work of the Elijah class, corresponding to the successful days of both Elijah and John. It is favorable for personal growth in grace and knowledge, and for the spread of the truth, the most favorable time ever yet known. How the early truth-seekers, the Bereans, e.g., would have rejoiced at such student helps as we possess, in the way of complete and printed Reference Bibles, Concordances, Histories, Cyclopedias, Dictionaries and other valuable works of reference, at prices within the reach of all or accessible to all without price in the public libraries of even moderate-sized towns; and in addition, the increasing light of the dawning Millennial day, and the ability of all classes to read and think intelligently for themselves. With such helps more can be learned of God's Word and plan in a day than it was possible to learn in a year in less favored times. Nor has there ever been a time so favorable for Christian effort, or spurring to Christian zeal and activity, as this time of the harvest message of the Lord's presence and the glad tidings of the oncoming kingdom.

If we would go from place to place, to meet with believers, we can do as much traveling in a day as Paul could do in a month or more, and with more comfort. If we would preach by voice, we can do so with none to molest or make us afraid. We live at a time when the masses of the people can read and write, which only very few could do in times past, and when the printed gospel is cheap, convenient, and often more effective than oral sermons. The willing heart can do far more thus than Aquila and Priscilla could do in their way and time with the same amount of effort. We can preach with both the printed and the written page through the agency of the wonderful mail systems of our day, to friends and strangers the world over, and at almost no cost.

But the Apostle, referring to the nominal Church in the last days, asserts the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine (2 Tim. 4: 3). While this is true now, in the sense that it has been true for centuries, it is to have a more forcible and clear fulfillment yet. It is true now that the Church nominal will not endure preachers who ignore their creeds and preach the Word, the whole counsel [plan] of God; but having itching ears they love human speculations on evolution, and philosophies falsely so called, rather than the Word of God.

Yet, because they cannot hinder it, they endure the sound doctrine to some extent, to an extent far beyond what Rome in her palmy days would have endured.

Just before the words we have here cited, the Apostle refers to the perilous times of the last days of this age (2 Tim. 3: 1-13), pointing out its high-minded, pleasure-loving and good-despising qualities, with its formalism, covetousness, pride and unthankfulness. He declares that in the Church evil men and leaders-astray [from truth] shall grow worse and worse, deceiving others, and being deceived themselves by their sophistries. Since the Apostle was thinking and writing specially about the last days, and not about the middle ages, we are surely justified in asking whether a time may not be but a short way before us, in these last days, when sound doctrine will not be endured or permitted to any degree.

While it is true now, to a large extent, that none are permitted to buy or sell [trade in truth] in the common marts or synagogues, but those having the mark of the beast or the number of his name (Rev. 13: 17), yet the fully consecrated have learned that magnificent temples of fashion, called churches, are no more necessary for preaching the gospel than they were in the days of the Apostles, and that grand organs and trained choirs are not necessary accompaniments to attract the attention of the people; for, as in the early days, the common people hear the gospel gladly on street corners, in market places, through the mails and from the printed page. The question is, May not this statement of the Revelator mean more than is now experienced? Like the Apostle Paul's statement, may it not imply a time will come, in the last days, when sound doctrine will not be endured at all? May not ours in this respect correspond to the experience of John the Baptist, the type, who was shut up in prison? In other words, What may we expect between our comparatively favorable time, though it is not without its difficulties, and the coming glad time of unhindered righteousness? Will it continue to be as favorable as now for labor in the vineyard, or more so, or less so? Let us note what these types indicate; for since our Lord has directed our attention to them, whatever we find in the life and experience of Elijah or John which seems to fit well to the experience of the Church, and to the testimony regarding her future earthly course, we are justified in regarding as typical.

Elijah was separated from earthly scenes by a chariot of fire, pictorial of the spiritual glory and exaltation awaiting, at the end of the earthly race-course, those of the Church alive and remaining to the last days. But we should also remember that it was by a whirlwind or storm that he was taken away; and a storm is the symbol of trouble, as much as the fiery chariot is a figure of victory and glorious escape from that trouble.

John the Baptist's closing experiences are still more clearly marked by the trouble feature. Though he was not obeyed by the people (Matt. 17: 12), they for a short time regarded him a servant and prophet of God (John 5: 35); yet when he had announced the presence of Messiah his influence soon began to wane, as he had testified it would do, saying of Christ, "He must increase, but I must decrease." So it must be in the end of this age: the work of the John class, the Elijah class, closes with the announcement, the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand, and the King is present. This is now being done; and the words of John's testimony apply with equal force at this time of the Lord's second advent: "There standeth one among you [present] whom ye know not," "whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge [cleanse] his [threshing]" floor, and gather his wheat into the garner; but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire"—the time of trouble—John 1: 26; Matt. 3: 12.

As John decreased, his special work being done when his message was delivered, so the Church in the flesh must decrease when its last message is given, until the last member has laid down his consecrated life, and passed beyond the veil into glory, thenceforth to be a member of the glorious, reigning Christ. As John said Jesus must increase, so now that the real kingdom is about to be established we can confidently say the King is present, and his kingdom must increase until it fills the earth. And John's announcement of the harvest work, the gathering of the wheat, and the trouble coming upon the chaff, also finds its parallel in the present time.

John's liberty was restrained soon after the delivery of his message, heralding the present One and the work before him; and he was cast into prison because he had reproved the king of improper union with a woman (Matt. 14: 4). And though the faithful children of God have often pointed out that union between the Church and the civil power is out of order, being in the Scriptures termed harlotry (Rev. 17: 5), and though in a great measure the world has withdrawn from the churches, the union still exists, and the Scriptures seem to teach that, in the coming trouble, the nominal churches, professed virgins of Christ, will be on the side of earth's kings and united to them; and the true Church, like its type, John the Baptist, will be unpopular and restrained of liberty, because of faithfulness in opposing and condemning error.

In John's case and in Elijah's it was a woman that persecuted, a king acting as her agent and tool: with the true Church it has been in the past what these symbolize, and doubtless will be so in the future, the nominal church represented by a woman and civil government by a king. Not only does prophecy point out a closer union between these than now exists, but any close observer can see that the principal lever by which the royal aristocracy rules the masses is the superstition that God appointed these great men, though often both weak and vicious, to rule over them; and that to rebel against tyranny and injustice, and to claim justice, liberty and equal rights, is to oppose God's will. Hence the tendency of governments and churches is toward open or secret union for their mutual welfare in the coming storm.

Not only so, but the coming struggle between the aristocracy and the masses of every civilized land will be so peculiar, so unlike any former experience, that moderate, conservative, religiously-inclined people, fearing the utter wreck of society in chaos and anarchy, will naturally prefer monarchy, oppression and bondage to anything certain to be worse. Hence such will affiliate with church and empire, with wealth and aristocracy, in the general effort to repress and prevent that irrepressible conflict, The battle of the great day of God Almighty.

Eventually perhaps the only exceptions to this course, among the lovers of peace and true religion, will be those to whom the King of kings is pleased, through his Word, to reveal his plans (John 16: 13), and who have full confidence in his wisdom and love, as well as in his power to make all things work out according to his promises. Only such, among the conservative, order-loving people, as see the part which the coming social revolution must play in God's plan, in removing effete systems whose day is past, and in preparing the world, by a leveling process, for the Millennial reign of righteousness, will be able to grasp the situation and to act accordingly. But these will be misunderstood, and their endeavors to point out the true state of the case, and the real and only remedy, will probably be interfered with by those who do not see the grand outcome, and who, because unwilling to submit their own wills, ideas and plans, are unable to see God's plans. When repressive, restrictive and coercive measures are thought to be necessary, such measures will probably include not only labor organizations and the publications which advocate their rights and wrongs, but also such others as point out the plan of God, and the cause and remedy for the distress of the nations. Yes, the time is probably not many years distant, when repressive measures may be brought to bear against every effort of the saints to spread the good news of the coming kingdom, all on the plea that the general interests and the public welfare demand such a course.

Thus would be fulfilled the predictions of the Second Psalm, probably in the end with more bitterness than can now be imagined, though it was partially fulfilled already upon the Head of the body—Acts 4: 25-29.

The same necessity for restricting liberty on political and social questions will probably be supposed to apply to freedom of expression on religious questions, which lie at the foundation of all liberty. It would not be surprising if a strong government or monarchy would some day replace this present Great Republic; and it is entirely probable that one common standard of religious belief will be held expedient and will be promulgated, to teach outside of which will be treated and punished as a political offense. Such a persecution would not only furnish, in the harvest of this age, another parallel to the harvest of the Jewish age (Acts 4: 10-13, 23-30; 5: 29-41; 11: 19), but would also give a wider and deeper significance to the words of the Apostles Paul and John (2 Tim. 4: 3; Rev. 13: 17), and to the typical illustrations of the close of the earthly career of the true Church, as represented in Elijah's whirlwind departure and John the Baptist's imprisonment and beheading.

Two lessons we may draw from this to advantage, whether developments shall prove that we have read the prophetic testimony correctly or incorrectly; and they are these: First, we should be so prepared, so armed and so thoroughly furnished with invincible truth, that persecution would move us to greater zeal, and not lead us through surprise or fear to lower our standard or surrender when the kings of the earth stand up, and, with the religious rulers of the people, are gathered against us and the truths to which God has given us the privilege of witnessing as his servants and ambassadors (1 John 3: 1). Second, such reflections relative to the future, contrasted with the privileges of the present, should stimulate every consecrated child of God to make diligent use of the present harvest opportunities and privileges, remembering that he that reapeth receiveth wages, as truly as he that planted and watered, and that now is pre-eminently a time for gathering fruit to eternal life. The little quiet of the present favorable time, with its greater liberties and advantages in every way, is divinely arranged in order to the sealing of the true servants of God in their foreheads (intellectually, with the truth)—Rev. 7: 3.

"Let the 'little while' between
In its golden light be seen."

The Master saith: "Work while it is called day; for the night cometh, when no man can work." "Labor not for the meat that perisheth, but for that which endureth unto everlasting life."

So in due time, we see that Elijah the prophet came, as foretold, before the great and notable day of the Lord. We hear his closing testimony, like that of John, saying,

There standeth one among you whom ye know not, whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly cleanse his threshing-floor: he will gather his wheat into the garner, and burn up the tares [as tares, not as men] with unquenchable fire in the time of trouble, the curse, which must needs come to prepare the way of the King of kings. He must increase, but the Elijah must decrease and finally be entirely restrained. Not only do we hear this testimony from a few of the Elijah class, but every one who is of the Elijah class will ere long be found proclaiming this message and engaging in the Elijah work. Such only as are thus faithful will be of the glorified Elijah, and permitted to share in the work of restitution of all things that, during the Millennium, will be a success. A depth of thought is found in the meaning of the name Elijah. It signifies God [mighty-one] of Jehovah [or, my God is Jehovah]. It is a fit name for the Lord's Anointed, whose work will be to restore all things that God spoke by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began.

Concluding this subject, we note briefly the fact: in the end of the Prophet Elijah's career he called Elisha, who, after sacrificing, left all, followed Elijah and became his successor as prophet when Elijah was taken away in the whirlwind, receiving his mantle of authority and a degree of his spirit and power (1 Kings 19: 16). And since Elijah typed the Body of Christ in the flesh, the overcoming Church, a company, a number, it is but reasonable that we should conclude that Elisha represented a class also, that will come into deep sympathy with the Elijah class, and follow the Lord's leading with it; and yet a class which will not be expecting to be glorified. These will be separated by the whirlwind of trouble from the Elijah class, yet nevertheless will retain an interest and will receive a blessing. After Elijah was gone, Elisha became bold and powerful, so that the theologians of that day ("sons of the prophets") said, The spirit of Elijah rests upon Elisha now!

The name Elisha means mighty deliverer [or, my God saves]. Elisha's career was one of restitution work. This foreshadows a work by a class which in the future will be the agents among men in carrying on the restitution work in the power of the then glorified Church. Among other wonderful works, Elisha healed the waters, so that there should not be any more death or barren land; he increased the widow's oil to cancel her debt; he raised the Shunamite's son to life. When there was famine in the land, and the mess of pottage for the theologians, sons of the prophets, was found to be poisoned, so that none could eat of it, Elisha healed and made it fit for food. He caused bread sufficient for only a few to more than supply a large number. He healed the leprosy of Naaman. He was God's agent in the anointing of Jehu, at whose hands, according to the word of God by Elijah, the royal family of Ahab, including Jezebel, was all cut off, and all her priests as well—2 Kings 2: 19-22; 4: 1-7, 18-44; 5: 1-10; 9: 1-37; 10: 28.

It is not hard to trace in these works of Elisha what bears a close resemblance to the restitution work that may be expected ere long, when the waters of truth shall no more be brackish with error, being healed at the spring by a clearer understanding of the Word of God; when the poor shall be helped to secure the oil of joy for the spirit of heaviness; when the dead shall be restored; when in the famine the food (truth) shall be made wholesome and plentiful; and when the systems typed by Ahab and Jezebel, and all who unite with them against God, shall be fully and finally overthrown.

STUDY IX.

ANTICHRIST MUST BE DEVELOPED, REVEALED AND SMITTEN BEFORE THE DAY OF THE LORD. A CONTRARY VIEW OF THIS SUBJECT CONSIDERED. PROPHETIC DELINEATION. ANTICHRIST'S BIRTH. HIS RAPID DEVELOPMENT. THE HISTORIC PICTURE AND THE BIBLE DESCRIPTION AGREE. HIS KINGDOM A COUNTERFEIT. HIS HEAD AND MOUTH NOTABLE. HIS GREAT SWELLING WORDS OF BLASPHEMY. HIS BLASPHEMOUS TEACHINGS. HIS WEARING OUT OF THE SAINTS OF THE MOST HIGH. HIS MILLENNIAL REIGN. ANTICHRIST SMITTEN WITH THE SWORD OF THE SPIRIT. HIS FINAL STRUGGLE AND END.

"Let no man deceive you by any means; for that day shall not come, except there come a falling away first, and that Man of Sin be revealed, the Son of Perdition"—2 Thes. 2: 3.

IN VIEW of these pointed words of the Apostle Paul, showing that a character which he designates The Man of Sin must precede the coming of the Day of the Lord, which we have proved has already begun to dawn, it is important that we look about, to see if such a character has yet appeared. For if such a character as Paul and the other apostles so carefully describe has not yet come, the above words should be understood as Paul's veto to all the other testimony concerning the Lord's presence and the setting up of his Kingdom now. And that veto must stand as an unanswerable argument until this Man of Sin shall be recognized, corresponding in every particular to the prophetic description.

It is clearly stated, not only that this Man of Sin must first rise, but that he must develop and prosper, before the Day of the Lord comes. Before Christ's day the prosperity and influence of this power will have reached their climax and will be on the decline; and it is to be by the bright shining of the Lord's presence at his second advent that this Man of Sin shall be utterly destroyed. These foretold circumstances we must observe, in order to see whether this caution to the Church in Paul's day is still applicable in our day. Now, after eighteen centuries, the claim is again made that the day of Christ has come; and the important question arises, Does anything which Paul said in correcting the error of the Thessalonians stand as an objection to this claim now?

From the Apostle's exhortations to the Church, to watch for the Lord's return, taking heed to the sure word of prophecy, and from his care in pointing out the signs of Christ's presence, the character of his work at that time, etc., it is evident that he was quite as anxious that the Church should be able to recognize the Lord's presence when he should come, as that they should not be deceived into the error that he had come, before the time of his presence. A fall into the latter error, in the early part of the age, exposed those who embraced it to the deceptions of the Antichrist principle which was even then working; while a failure to recognize the Day of the Lord, and his presence in the day when his presence is due, exposes those failing to recognize him to the continued deceptions and false doctrines of Antichrist, and blinds them to the grand truths and special privileges of this day. Hence the Apostle's anxiety for the Church at both ends of the age, and his warning, Let no man deceive you by any means. Hence also the exact description of the Man of Sin, in order that he might be recognized in his time.

While Christians in this end of the age are inclined to forget even the promise of the Lord's return, and, when they do remember it, to think of it only with dread and fearful forebodings, the early Church looked for it anxiously, and with joyful anticipation, as the fruition of all its hopes, the reward of all its faithfulness and the end of all its sorrows. Consequently, the believers of that day were ready to hearken diligently to any teaching which claimed that the Day of the Lord was either very near or present; and hence they were in danger of being deceived on this point unless they were careful students of the teachings of the apostles on the subject.

The Church at Thessalonica, impressed with the erroneous teachings of some, to the effect that the Lord had come again, and that they were living in his day, evidently supposed that the idea was in harmony with Paul's teaching in his first epistle to them, wherein he said (1 Thes. 5: 1-5) that the Day of the Lord would steal on quietly and unobservedly, as a thief in the night, and that, though others would be in it unawares, the saints would be in the light concerning it. Learning of the serious error into which they had fallen, of supposing the day of the Lord's presence to have already come, Paul wrote them a second epistle, the central thought of which was the correction of this error. He says: "Now we beseech you, brethren, concerning the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and our gathering together unto him, that ye be not readily agitated in mind nor troubled; neither by spirit, neither by word, neither by letter as from us, as though the Day of the Lord [enistemi] is present. Let no man delude you, by any means; because the falling away [apostasy] must first come, and there must be revealed that Man of Sin, the Son of Destruction, the Opposer, exalting himself above all, being called a god [mighty ruler] or that receives homage, so as to seat himself in the Temple of God, openly displaying himself that he is a god. Remember ye not that while I was yet with you I told you these things? And now ye know what interposes, in order that he [Christ] may be revealed in his own [due] season. But insubordination [to Christ] is already working, only as a secret thing, until the now hindering one shall be out of the way; and then shall that insubordinate one be revealed, whom the Lord shall kill with the spirit of his mouth and annihilate by the bright shining of his [parousia] presence." Paul could write thus positively of the development of the Man of Sin before the Day of the Lord, because of his study of Daniel's prophecy, to which our Lord also referred (Matt. 24: 15); and probably because Paul himself, in his visions and revelations, had been shown the great havoc which this character would work in the Church.

It should be observed that Paul did not use arguments such as some today are disposed to use against the claim that the day of the Lord has begun. He did not say, O foolish Thessalonians, do ye not know that when Christ comes your eyes shall behold him, and your ears shall hear a dreadful sound of the trump of God? and that you will have further proof of it in the reeling tombstones and the rising saints? Is it not evident that if such a criticism had been proper, Paul would have been quick to avail himself of an argument so simple and so easily grasped? And moreover, is not the fact that he did not use this argument a proof that such an argument is not, and could not be, founded on the truth?

From the fact that Paul, in his energetic effort to correct their error, offered but this one objection to their claim, he thereby evidently endorsed as correct their general ideas of the Day of the Lord—that it could be commenced while many might be in ignorance of it, that it could come without outward demonstration to mark it. But the only ground of his objection was, that there must first come a falling away, and, in consequence of that falling away, the development of the Man of Sin—which, whatever it may be (whether a single individual, or a great Antichrist system which he thus personifies), must rise, flourish and begin to decline—before the day of the Lord's presence. So, then, if this one objection which Paul offered be no longer in the way, if we can clearly see a character in actual existence whose history corresponds in every particular to the prophetic description of the Man of Sin, from the beginning of his existence down to the present time—then Paul's objection, which was well taken in his day, and his only one, is no longer a valid objection against the present claim that we are living in the Day of the Lord, the day of the Lord's presence. And, further, if the Man of Sin can be readily distinguished, if his rise, development and decline are clearly seen, then this fact becomes another corroborative proof of the teaching of the preceding chapters, which show that we are now in the Day of the Lord.

HIS PROPHETIC DELINEATION.

The student of prophecy will find that the Man of Sin is distinctly noted throughout the sacred writings, not only by giving a clear description of his character, but also by showing the times and places of his beginning, prosperity and decline.

This character is very forcibly delineated even in the names applied to it by the inspired writers. Paul calls it That Wicked One, The Man of Sin, The Mystery of Iniquity, The Antichrist, and The Son of Perdition; the Prophet Daniel calls it The Abomination that maketh desolate (Dan. 11: 31; 12: 11); and our Lord refers to the same character as The Abomination of Desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet (Matt. 24: 15), and again as a Beast (Rev. 13: 1-8). This same character was also prefigured by a little horn, or power, out of a terrible beast that Daniel saw in his prophetic vision, which had eyes, and a mouth that spoke great things, and which prospered and made war with the saints, and prevailed against them (Dan. 7: 8, 21). John also saw and warned the Church against this character, saying, Ye have heard that Antichrist shall come. He then advises how to escape Antichrist's influence (1 John 2: 18-27). The book of Revelation, too, is in large part a detailed symbolic prophecy concerning this same Antichrist—though this we shall merely glance at here, leaving its more particular examination for a succeeding volume.

These various appellations and brief descriptions indicate a base, subtle, hypocritical, deceptive, tyrannical and cruel character, developed in the midst of the Christian Church; at first creeping in and up very gradually, then rapidly ascending in power and influence until it reaches the very pinnacle of earthly power, wealth and glory—meanwhile exerting its influence against the truth, and against the saints, and for its own aggrandizement, claiming, to the last, peculiar sanctity, authority and power from God.

In this chapter we purpose to show that this Man of Sin is a system, and not a single individual, as many seem to infer; that as the Christ consists of the true Lord and the true Church, so Antichrist is a counterfeit system consisting of a false lord and an apostate church, which for a time is permitted to misrepresent the truth, to practice deceit and to counterfeit the authority and future reign of the true Lord and his Church, and to intoxicate the nations with false claims and assumptions.

We hope to prove, to the satisfaction of every conscientious reader, that this great apostasy or falling away mentioned by Paul has come, and that this Man of Sin has been developed, has sat "in the temple of God" (the real, not the typical), has fulfilled all the predictions of the apostles and prophets concerning his character, work, etc., has been revealed, and now, since 1799, is being consumed by the spirit of the Lord's mouth (the truth), and will be utterly destroyed during this day of the Lord's wrath and revelation with flaming fire of retribution, now beginning.

Without any desire to treat lightly the opinions of others, we nevertheless feel it necessary to point out to the reader a few of the absurdities connected with the common view concerning Antichrist, that thereby the dignity and reasonableness of the truth on this subject may be properly estimated, in contrast with the narrow claim that all which the Scriptures predict concerning this character will be accomplished by some one literal man. This man, it is claimed, will so charm the whole world that in a few short years he will secure to himself the homage and worship of all men, who will be so easily imposed upon as to suppose this man to be God, and, in a rebuilt Jewish temple, to worship him as the Almighty Jehovah. All this is to be done at lightning speed,—three and a half years, say they, misinterpreting the symbolic time, even as they misinterpret the symbolic man.

Tales of fiction and the most absurd imaginations of childhood furnish no parallel to the extreme views of some of God's dear children who are stumbling over a literal interpretation of Paul's language, and thereby blinding themselves and others to many precious truths, which, because of error on this subject, they are unprepared to see in an unprejudiced light. No matter how much we may sympathize with them, their blind faith forces a smile as they seriously tell over the various symbols of Revelation which they do not understand, misapplying them literally to their wonderful man. In this, the most skeptical age the world has ever known, he will, they claim, in the short space of three and a half years, have the whole world at his feet, worshipping him as God, while the Caesars, Alexander, Napoleon, Mahomet and others sailed through bloody seas and spent many times three and a half years, without accomplishing the one thousandth part of what is claimed for this man.

And yet those conquerors had all the advantages of dense ignorance and superstition to aid them, while today we live under conditions most unfavorable to such a development of deceit and fraud: in a day when every hidden thing is being manifested as never before; in a day when fraud of the sort claimed is too preposterous and ridiculous for consideration. Indeed, the tendency of our day is toward a lack of respect for men, no matter how good, talented and able, or what offices of trust and authority they may occupy. To such an extent is this true, as never before, that it is a thousand times more likely that the whole world will deny there is any God, than that they will ever worship a fellow human being as the Almighty God.

One great obstacle to many, in considering this subject, is the contracted idea generally entertained of the meaning of the word god. They fail to note that the Greek theos (god) does not invariably refer to Jehovah. It signifies a mighty one, a ruler, and especially a religious or sacerdotal ruler. In the New Testament, theos is seldom used except in referring to Jehovah, because, in their discourses, the apostles spoke rarely and little of the false systems of religion, and hence seldom noticed their sacred rulers or gods; yet in the following texts the word god (theos) is used to refer to others than the one supreme being, Jehovah: John 10: 34, 35; Acts 7: 40, 43; 17: 23; 1 Cor. 8: 5.

Recognizing the breadth of the Greek word theos, it will be seen at once that the Apostle's statement concerning Antichrist, that he will seat himself in the temple of God, showing himself to be a god, does not of necessity mean that Antichrist will attempt to exalt himself above Jehovah, nor even that he will attempt to take Jehovah's place. It simply implies that this one will exhibit himself as a religious ruler, claiming and exercising authority over and above all other religious rulers, even to the extent of exalting himself in the Church, which is the true Temple of God, and there claiming and exercising lordly authority as its chief or authorized ruler. Wherever in the Greek the word theos is used in any sentence where its meaning would be ambiguous, it then is preceded by the Greek article, if it refers to Jehovah; as if in English we were to say the God. In the texts above, which refer to other gods, and in this text (2 Thes. 2: 4), which refers to Antichrist, there is no such emphasis.

With this seen clearly, a great stumbling-block is removed, and the mind is prepared to look for the right things as fulfillments of this prediction: not for an Antichrist claiming to be Jehovah and demanding worship as such, but for one claiming to be the chief, supreme religious teacher in the Church; who thus attempts the usurpation of the authority of Christ, the divinely appointed Head, Lord and Teacher.

Strangely enough, too, they who take this literal view of the Man of Sin are generally those who are believers in the Lord's premillennial coming, who are looking for and expecting the Lord to come "at any moment now." Why cannot all see the Apostle's meaning, when he positively declares that the Day of the Lord (the Day of his presence) cannot come and should not be expected until after the Man of Sin has been revealed? It required over forty years to build the former Jewish temple, and it would surely require at least ten to twenty years to build, with more than former magnificence, the new temple at Jerusalem, where they expect a literal Man of Sin to be installed and worshiped as God. Why then should those who believe thus expect the Lord to come at any moment now? Such a view is out of harmony with reason as well as with the Apostle's prophecy. Consistency demands that they should either give up looking for the Lord at any moment, or else give up their expectation of a future Man of Sin; for the Day of the Lord's presence cannot come until the falling away has taken place, and until the Man of Sin has been developed and revealed out of that apostasy.

But when we get a correct view of the Apostle's words, together with correct ideas of the manner of the Lord's coming, we find no such discrepancies and contradictions, but a convincing harmony and fitness. And such a view we now present. Its Scripturalness the reader must prove.

The various titles applied to this system are evidently symbolic. They do not refer as names to a single individual, but as character delineations to a corrupt religious and civil combination, developed within the nominal Christian church, which, by its subtle opposition to Christ, the Head, and his true Church, his body, well earns the name Antichrist. Such a system could fulfill all the predictions made concerning the Antichrist, or Man of Sin, though an individual could not. It is evident, moreover, that this Antichrist system is not one of the heathen systems of religion, such as Mohammedanism or Brahminism; for the Christian Church has never been under the control of any such system, nor did any of these systems originate in the Christian Church. They now are, and always have been, independent of the Christian Church.

The system which fully answers the description given by inspiration must be professedly Christian, and must contain a large majority of those who claim to be Christians. And it must be one having its start as an apostasy, or falling away from the true Christian faith—an apostasy, too, which was secret and stealthy, until circumstances favored its assumption of power. Its stealthy beginning was in the days of the apostles, in the desire of some teachers to be greatest.

We need not look long to find a character fitting all the requirements perfectly; one whose record, written by secular historians as well as by its own deluded servants, we shall see agrees exactly with the prophetic delineations of Antichrist. But when we state that the one and only system whose history fits these prophecies is Papacy, let no one misunderstand us to mean that every Roman Catholic is a man of sin; nor that the priests, nor even the popes of the Church of Rome, are, or have been, the Antichrist. No man is the Antichrist, the Man of Sin, described in prophecy. Popes, bishops and others are at most only parts or members of the Antichrist system, even as all of the Royal Priests are only members of the true Christ, under Jesus their head, and in the same manner that these in their present condition are together the antitypical Elijah, though no one of them is the Elijah or the Christ foretold. Notice, further, that the Church of Rome as an ecclesiastical system only is not the Man of Sin, and is never presented under any figure of a man. On the contrary, a woman is always the symbol used for a church separate from its head and lord. The true Church is symbolized by a chaste virgin, while the apostate church, which has fallen away from primitive purity and fidelity to the Lord, is symbolically called a harlot. As the true virgin Church continues to be such to the end of the age, when she is to be united to her Lord and take his name, Christ, so the apostate church was not the Antichrist, or Man of Sin, until she united with her lord and head, the pope, the claimed vicegerent of Christ, and became a religious empire, falsely styled Christendom, which signifies Christ's Kingdom.

Papacy is the name of this false kingdom; and it was built upon a misapplied truth, the truth that the Church is called to be kings and priests unto God and to reign on the earth. But the time for reigning had not yet come: the Gospel age was not appointed for that purpose, but for the selection, development, discipline, humiliation and sacrifice of the Church, following in the foot-prints of her Lord and patiently waiting and enduring until the time appointed for the promised exaltation and glorious reign, the Millennial age.

The Lord foresaw that nominal Christianity would spread over the world, and that, becoming popular, it would be embraced by many who would appreciate the form without entering into the spirit of its institution. He foresaw that as numbers of this sort would identify themselves with the Church, the worldly spirit, which is the opposite of the spirit of self-denial and self-sacrifice, would come in with them; that selfishness and a desire to be great and to rule, thus coming in, would not have long to wait until they could seize an opportunity; and that thus the Church would seek to dominate the world before the time or rather, that the worldly element which would enter the Church would make its influence felt, and in the name of the true Church would grasp the civil power of earth which God had given over to the Gentiles, and which cannot pass fully into the hands of the true Church until the close of the Times of the Gentiles, A.D. 1914.

And thus it actually transpired: the nominal church began to fall away as it increased in numbers under the teaching and example of ambitious men whose ideas grew more and more favorable to the power and worldly influence which numbers and wealth brought with them. Gradually the spirit of the Church became worldly, and the things of the world were coveted. The suggestion of ambition was,—“If the great Roman Empire, with all its power and influence, its armies and wealth, were only to support the Church, how honorable and noble it would then be to be a Christian! How speedily then would heathen persecutions cease! Then it would be in our power not only to overawe them, but to compel their adherence to the Church and cross and name of Christ. It evidently is not God's design that the Church should forever be subject to the world and persecuted by it: the Apostle's words, 'Know ye not that the saints shall judge the world?' as well as our Lord's promises that we shall reign with him, and the many prophecies which refer to the reign of the Church, indicate clearly that such is God's plan. True, the Apostle wrote that our Lord would first return and exalt the Church, and exhorted that we should 'wait' for the Lord; but several centuries are now past, and we see no sign of the Lord's coming. We must understand that the apostles were to some extent in error. To us it seems clear that we can and should use every means to obtain a hold upon civil government and conquer the world for the Lord. It must be, too, that the Church should have a head, one to represent the absent Lord and to represent the Church before the world, one who would receive the homage of the world, exercise the authority of Christ, and rule the world with a rod of iron, as the Prophet David predicted." Thus gradually by a slow process of reasoning covering centuries, the real hope of the Church for exaltation to rule and bless the world, the second coming of the Lord, was lost sight of, and a new hope took its place: the hope of success without the Lord, under the headship and lead of a line of popes. And thus, by collusion, intriguing and exchange of favors with the world, the hope of the Church became a false hope, a delusive snare by which Satan led from one evil and error to another, both of doctrine and of practice.

The point at which the apostasy developed into the "Man of Sin" was when the Papal hierarchy exalted itself under the headship of an arranged line of popes, and claimed and attempted the rulership of earth in the name of, and pretending to be, Christ's Millennial Kingdom. It was a false, fraudulent claim, no matter how thoroughly some of its supporters believed it. It was a fraudulent counterfeit kingdom, no matter how sincere some of its organizers and supporters may have been. It was Antichrist's, no matter how much they claimed and believed it to be the true Christ's glory and kingdom and power upon earth. It is a mistake to suppose that to be conscientious is always to be right. Every system of error doubtless has as many conscientiously deluded votaries as it has hypocrites, or more. Conscientiousness is moral honesty, and it is not dependent upon knowledge. The heathen, misinformed, conscientiously worship and sacrifice to idols; Saul, misinformed, conscientiously persecuted the saints; and so, too, many papists, misinformed, conscientiously did violence to the prophecies, persecuted the true saints and organized the great system of Antichrist. For hundreds of years Papacy has not only deceived the kings of the earth as to its power and claimed divine authority, and ruled over them, but even in the Church, God's Temple, where Christ alone should be recognized as Head and Teacher, it has seated itself and claimed to be the only teacher and lawgiver; and here it has deceived all, except the few, by its phenomenal success and boastful claims. "All the world wondered," were astonished, deceived, bewildered, "whose names were not written in the Lamb's book of life," and many whose names are written as saints of God were seriously perplexed. And this deception is the stronger because of the very gradual formation of these ambitious designs and their yet more gradual realization. It extended over centuries, and, as an ambition, was already secretly at work in Paul's day. It was a process of little by little adding error to error, the supplementing of one man's ambitious declarations by those of another and another farther down the stream of time. Thus, insidiously, did Satan plant and water the seeds of error, and develop the greatest and most influential system the world has ever known—Antichrist.

The name Antichrist has a twofold significance. The first is against, i.e., in opposition to Christ: the second significance is instead, i.e., a counterfeit of Christ. In the first sense the expression is a general one, which would apply to any enemy opposing Christ. In this sense Saul, afterward called Paul, and every Jew, and every Mohammedan, and all the Pagan emperors and people of Rome, were antichrists, opposers of Christ (Acts 9: 4). But it is not in this sense of the word that the Scriptures use the name Antichrist. They pass over all such enemies, and apply the term Antichrist in the sense given above, as now its secondary meaning, as against, in the sense of misrepresenting, counterfeiting, taking the place of the true Christ. Thus John remarks, "Ye have heard that the Antichrist shall come. Even now there are many antichrists" (1 John 2: 18, 19). [The Greek distinguishes between the special Antichrist and the numerous lesser ones.] And John's subsequent remarks show that he does not refer to all opposers of Christ and the Church, but to a certain class who, still professing to be of the Christ body, the Church, had left the foundation principles of the truth, and were therefore not only misrepresenting the truth, but were, in the eyes of the world, taking the place and name of the true Church—hence really counterfeiting the true saints. John says of these, They went out from us, but they were not of us: they do not represent us, even though they may deceive themselves and the world on this subject.

In the same epistle John declares that those he mentions as many antichrists have the spirit of the Antichrist.

Here, then, is what we should expect, and what we do find in Papacy: not an opposition to the name of Christ, but an enemy or opponent of Christ in that it falsely bears his name, counterfeits his kingdom and authority, and misrepresents his character and plans and doctrines before the world, a most baneful enemy and opponent indeed, worse far than an outspoken foe. And this is true, be it remembered, even though some of those connected with that system are conscientiously astray, "deceiving and being deceived."

With these intimations as to the identity and characteristics of the Man of Sin, and when, and where, and under what circumstances, to look for him, we shall proceed to an examination of some of the historic evidences, proving, we think beyond reasonable question, that every prediction concerning the Antichrist has been fulfilled in the Papal system, in a manner and to an extent which, with the enlightenment of this day taken into account, all must admit could never be repeated. Space obliges us here to confine ourselves to a mere outline of the great mass of historic testimony. We have also confined ourselves to historians of recognized accuracy, in many instances going to Roman Catholic writers for their testimony or admissions.

THE CIRCUMSTANCES WHICH GAVE BIRTH TO THE MAN OF SIN.

A GREAT FALLING AWAY. We first inquire, Does history record a fulfillment of Paul's prophecy of a great falling away from the original simplicity and purity of the doctrines and life of the Christian Church, and of the secret working of an iniquitous, ambitious influence in the Church, prior to the development of Papacy, the Man of Sin, prior to the recognition of a pope as the head of the Church?

Yes, very clearly: The Papal Hierarchy did not come into existence for several centuries after the Lord and the Apostles had founded the Church. And of the interval between, we read (Fisher's Universal History, 193):

"As the church grew in numbers and wealth, costly edifices were constructed for worship; the services became more elaborate; sculpture and painting were enlisted in the work of providing aids to devotion. Relics of saints and martyrs were cherished as sacred possessions; religious observances were multiplied; and the church under the Christian emperors [in the fourth century], with its array of clergy and of imposing ceremonies, assumed much of the stateliness and visible splendor that belonged to the heathen system which it had supplanted."

Says another,† "Contemporaneously with the establishment [of Christianity as the religion of the empire in the fourth century] was the progress of a great and general corruption which had arisen two centuries before. Superstition and ignorance invested the ecclesiastics with a power which they exerted to their own aggrandizement."

Rapin observes, "In the fifth century Christianity was debased by a vast number of human inventions; the simplicity of its government and discipline was reduced to a system of clerical power; and its worship was polluted with ceremonies borrowed from the heathen."

Mosheim, in his History of Christianity, traces the falling away of the Church from its original simplicity and purity, step by step, down to its deep degradation which culminated in the development of the Man of Sin. Whether or not he recognized the Antichrist does not appear, but in a masterly way he has traced the workings of the Mystery of Iniquity, in the Church, down to the beginning of the fourth century—when his work was suddenly cut short by death. From his excellent and voluminous work our space does not here permit quotations, but we commend the work entire as highly instructive in its bearing on the subject.

We quote, from Lord's Old Roman World, a brief and pointed sketch of the Church's history during the first four centuries, which shows clearly and concisely its gradual decline, and its rapid degeneracy after the hindrance referred to by the Apostle was removed. He says:

"In the First Century not many wise or noble were called. No great names have been handed down to us; no philosophers, or statesmen, or nobles, or generals, or governors, or judges, or magistrates. In the first century the Christians were not of sufficient importance to be generally persecuted by the government. They had not even arrested public attention. Nobody wrote against them, not even Greek philosophers. We do not read of protests or apologies from the Christians themselves. They had no great men in their ranks, either for learning, or talents, or wealth, or social position. Nothing in history is more barren than the annals of the Church in the first century, so far as great names are concerned. Yet in this century converts were multiplied in every city, and traditions point to the martyrdoms of those who were prominent, including nearly all of the apostles.

"In the Second Century there are no greater names than Polycarp, Ignatius, Justin Martyr, Clement, Melito and Apollonius, quiet bishops or intrepid martyrs, who addressed their flocks in upper chambers, and who held no worldly rank, famous only for their sanctity or simplicity of character, and only mentioned for their sufferings and faith. We read of martyrs, some of whom wrote valuable treatises and apologies; but among them we find no people of rank. It was a disgrace to be a Christian in the eye of fashion or power. The early Christian literature is chiefly apologetic, and the doctrinal character is simple and practical. There were controversies in the Church, an intense religious life, great activities, great virtues, but no outward conflicts, no secular history. They had not as yet assailed the government or the great social institutions of the empire. It was a small body of pure and blameless men, who did not aspire to control society. But they had attracted the notice of the government and were of sufficient consequence to be persecuted. They were looked upon as fanatics who sought to destroy a reverence for existing institutions."

"In this century the polity of the Church was quietly organized. There was an organized fellowship among the members; bishops had become influential, not in society, but among the Christians; dioceses and parishes were established; there was a distinction between city and rural bishops; delegates of churches assembled to discuss points of faith or suppress nascent heresies; the diocesan system was developed, and ecclesiastical centralization commenced; deacons began to be reckoned among the higher clergy; the weapons of excommunication were forged; missionary efforts were carried on; the festivals of the church were created; Gnosticism was embraced by many leading minds; catechetical schools taught the faith systematically; the formulas of baptism and the sacraments became of great importance; and monachism became popular. The Church was thus laying the foundation of its future polity and power.

"The Third Century saw the Church more powerful as an institution. Regular synods had assembled in the great cities of the empire; the metropolitan system was matured; the canons of the Church were definitely enumerated; great schools of theology attracted inquiring minds; the doctrines were systematized [i.e., defined, limited, and formulated into creeds and confessions of faith]. Christianity had spread so extensively that it must needs be either persecuted or legalized; great bishops ruled the growing church; great doctors [of divinity] speculated on the questions [philosophy and science falsely so called] which had agitated the Grecian schools; church edifices were enlarged, and banquets instituted in honor of the martyrs. The Church was rapidly advancing to a position which extorted the attention of mankind.

"It was not till the Fourth Century, when imperial persecution had stopped; when [the Roman Emperor] Constantine was converted; when the Church was allied with the State; when the early faith was itself corrupted; when superstition and vain philosophy had entered the ranks of the faithful; when bishops became courtiers; when churches became both rich and splendid; when synods were brought under political influence; when monachists [monks] had established a false principle of virtue; when politics and dogmatics went hand in hand, and emperors enforced the decrees of [church] councils, that men of rank entered the Church. When Christianity became the religion of the court and of the fashionable classes, it was used to support the very evils against which it originally protested. The Church was not only impregnated with the errors of Pagan philosophy, but it adopted many of the ceremonies of oriental worship, which were both minute and magnificent. The churches became, in the fourth century, as imposing as the old temples of idolatry. Festivals became frequent and imposing. The people clung to them because they obtained excitement and a cessation from labor. Veneration for martyrs ripened into the introduction of images—a future source of popular idolatry. Christianity was emblazoned in pompous ceremonies. The veneration for saints approximated to their deification, and superstition exalted the mother of our Lord into an object of absolute worship. Communion tables became imposing altars typical of Jewish sacrifices, and the relics of martyrs were preserved as sacred amulets. Monastic life also ripened into a grand system of penance and expiatory rites. Armies of monks retired to gloomy and isolated places, and abandoned themselves to rhapsodies and fastings. ...

"The clergy, ambitious and worldly, sought rank and distinction. They even thronged the courts of princes and aspired to temporal honors. They were no longer supported by the voluntary contributions of the faithful, but by revenues supplied by government, or property inherited from the old [pagan] temples. Great legacies were made to the Church by the rich, and these the clergy controlled.

These bequests became sources of inexhaustible wealth. As wealth increased and was intrusted to the clergy, they became indifferent to the wants of the people,—no longer supported by them. They became lazy, arrogant and independent. The people were shut out of the government of the Church. The bishop became a grand personage who controlled and appointed his clergy. The Church was allied with the State, and religious dogmas were enforced by the sword of the magistrate.

"AN IMPOSING HIERARCHY WAS ESTABLISHED, OF VARIOUS GRADES, WHICH CULMINATED IN THE BISHOP OF ROME.

"The Emperor decided points of faith, and the clergy were exempted from the burdens of the state. There was a great flocking to the priestly offices when the clergy wielded so much power and became so rich; and men were elevated to great sees [bishoprics], not because of their piety or talents, but their influence with the great. The mission of the Church was lost sight of in a degrading alliance with the State. Christianity was a pageant, a ritualism, an arm of the State, a vain philosophy, a superstition, a formula."

Thus the great falling away from the faith, predicted by the Apostle Paul, is an established fact of history. All historians bear witness to it, even those who approve the assumption of power and eulogize the chief actors in the scheme. We regret that our space limits our quotations to some of the most pointed expressions. The falling away, covering a period of centuries, was so gradual as to be much less noticeable to those who then lived in its midst than to us who see it as a whole; and the more deceiving was it because every step of organization, and every advance toward influence and authority in the Church and over the world, was taken in the name of Christ, and professedly to glorify him and fulfill his plans recorded in Scripture. Thus was the great Antichrist developed—the most dangerous, most subtle and most persistent opponent of true Christianity, and the most fiendish persecutor of the true saints.

THE HINDRANCE REMOVED.

The Apostle Paul foretold that this iniquitous principle would work secretly for a time, while some opposing thing stood in the way, until, the hindrance being removed, it could have a free course, and progress rapidly to the development of the Antichrist. He says, "Only he that now hindereth will hinder, until he be taken out of the way" (2 Thes. 2: 7). What does history have to show in fulfillment of this prediction? It shows that the thing which hindered a rapid development of Antichrist was the fact that the place aspired to was already filled by another. The Roman empire had not only conquered the world and given it politics and laws, but, recognizing religious superstitions to be the strongest chains by which to hold and control a people, it had adopted a scheme which had its origin in Babylon, in the time of her greatness as ruler of the world. That plan was, that the emperor should be esteemed the director and ruler in religious as well as in civil affairs. In support of this, it was claimed that the emperor was a demigod, in some sense descended from their heathen deities. As such he was worshiped and his statues adored; and as such he was styled Pontifex Maximus, Chief Priest or Greatest Religious Ruler. And this is the very title claimed by and given to the pontiffs or popes of the Roman Hierarchy since this Antichrist obtained "the power and seat and great authority" of the former ruler of Rome—Rev. 13: 2.

But ancient pagan Rome and Babylon had only a mere skeleton of sacerdotal power as compared with the complex and elaborate machinery and contrivances of doctrine and practice of Papal Rome, the triumphant successor to their scheme, who now, after centuries of cunning and skill, has its power so entrenched that even today, when its power is outwardly broken and it is shorn of civil dominion, it rules the world and controls kingdoms secretly, under cover, more thoroughly than the Roman emperors ever ruled the kings subordinate to them.

To their credit be it recorded that not one of the Roman emperors, as Pontifex Maximus or Chief Religious Ruler, ever exercised the tyranny of some of their successors on the Papal throne. On this point Gibbon says:* "It must be allowed that the number of Protestants who were executed in a single province and a single reign, far exceeded that of the primitive martyrs in the space of three centuries and of the Roman empire." According to the custom of their day they did favor the most popular gods, but wherever their armies went, the gods and worship of the conquered people were generally respected. This was illustrated in Palestine, in which, though under Roman control, religious liberty and freedom of conscience were generally respected by the imperial Pontifex Maximus, who as religious ruler thus showed his clemency toward the people, and his harmony with all the popular gods.

So, then, we see that what hindered the early development of Antichrist was the fact that the coveted seat of spiritual supremacy was filled by the representatives of the strongest empire the world had yet known; and that for any to have attempted an open display of ambition in this direction would have exposed them to the wrath of the masters of the world. Hence this iniquitous ambition at first worked secretly, disclaiming any intent to gain power or authority, until a favorable opportunity was presented—after the nominal Church had become large and influential and the imperial power was shattered by political dissensions and was beginning to decay.

The power of Rome was rapidly failing, and its strength and unity were divided among six claimants to the imperial honors, when Constantine became emperor. And that, in part at least, he adopted Christianity to strengthen and unify his empire, is a reasonable supposition. On this point history says:

"Whether Constantine embraced it [Christianity] from conviction of its truth, or from policy, is a matter of dispute. Certain it is, that this religion, though receiving from the Roman power only silent obloquy, or active persecution, had extended among the people, so that Constantine strengthened himself in the affection of the soldiers by adopting it ... Worldly ambition pointed to the course which the emperor pursued in declaring himself a Christian, and not the spirit of Christ, who said, My kingdom is not of this world. Constantine made it the religion of the empire, and thenceforth we find its influence sullied with earthly things ... No particular bishop was regarded as head of the whole Church, but the emperor was such in point of fact. In this capacity he called the Council of Nice, having in the controversy between Athanasius and Arius taken sides against the latter. The council agreed with the emperor."*

"Whatever advantages might be derived from the acquisition of an imperial proselyte, he was distinguished by the splendor of the purple, rather than the superiority of wisdom or virtue, from the many thousands of his subjects who had embraced the doctrines of Christianity. ... The same year of his reign in which he convened the Council of Nice was polluted by the execution of his eldest son. The gratitude of the Church has exalted the virtues and excused the failings of a generous patron who seated Christianity on the throne of the Roman world."†

Here, then, under Constantine's reign, the opposition of the empire to Christianity gave way to favor, and the Imperial Pontifex Maximus became the patron of the professed but really apostate Church of Christ; and, taking her by the hand, he assisted her to a place of popularity and splendor from which she was able afterward, as the imperial power grew weak, to put her own representatives upon the religious throne of the world as Chief Religious Ruler, Pontifex Maximus.

But it is a mistake to suppose, as many do, that the Church at this time was a pure, virgin, church, suddenly lifted into a dignity and power which became her snare. Quite the contrary is true. As already stated, a great falling away had occurred, from primitive purity and simplicity and freedom into creed-bound, ambitious factions, whose errors and ceremonies, resembling those of the pagan philosophies, garnished with some truths and enforced and clinched with the doctrine of everlasting torment, had drawn into the church a vast horde, whose numbers and influence became valuable to Constantine and were respected and used accordingly. No such worldly man ever thought seriously of espousing the cause of the humble, Christ-like little flock, the truly consecrated Church, whose names are written in heaven. The popularity with his soldiers, mentioned by the historians, is very different from popularity with real soldiers of the cross.

In proof of this let us here quote from history, regarding the state of religious society under Diocletian, the predecessor of Constantine, who, toward the close of his reign, believing that Christians had attempted to destroy his life, became embittered against them and persecuted them by ordering the destruction of Bibles, the banishing of bishops, and finally by decreeing the death of such as opposed these enactments. Gibbon* says of this era:

"Diocletian and his colleagues frequently conferred the most important offices on those persons who avowed their abhorrence for the worship of the gods, but who displayed abilities proper for the service of the state. The bishops held an honorable rank in their respective provinces, and were treated with distinction and respect, not only by the people, but by the magistrates themselves. Almost in every city, the ancient churches were found insufficient to contain the increasing number of proselytes; and in their place more stately and capacious edifices were erected for the public worship of the faithful. The corruption of manners and principles, so forcibly lamented by Eusebius, may be considered as not only a consequence but a proof of the liberty which the Christians enjoyed and abused under the reign of Diocletian. Prosperity had relaxed the nerves of discipline. Fraud, envy and malice prevailed in every congregation. The proselytes aspired to the episcopal office, which every day became an object more worthy of their ambition. The bishops, who contended with each other for ecclesiastical pre-eminence, appeared by their conduct to claim a secular and tyrannical power in the church; and the lively faith which still distinguished the Christians from the Gentiles was shown much less in their lives than in their controversial writings.

"The story of Paul of Samosata, who filled the metropolitan see [bishopric] of Antioch while the East was in the hands of Odenatus and Zenobia, may serve to illustrate the condition and character of the times [A.D. 270]. Paul considered the service of the church a very lucrative profession. His ecclesiastical jurisdiction was venal and rapacious: he extorted frequent contributions from the most opulent of the faithful, and converted to his own use a considerable part of the public revenues. [It is claimed by critics, says Gibbon, that Paul held the office of Imperial Ducenarius, or procurator, with an annual salary of two hundred Sestertia,—$77,000]. By his pride and luxury, the Christian religion was rendered odious in the eyes of the Gentiles. His council chamber, and his throne, the splendor with which he appeared in public, the suppliant crowd who solicited his attention, the multitude of letters and petitions to which he dictated his answers, and the perpetual hurry of business in which he was involved, were circumstances much better suited to the state of a civil magistrate than to the humility of a primitive bishop. When he harangued his people from the pulpit, Paul affected the figurative style and the theatrical gestures of an Asiatic sophist, while the cathedral resounded with the most extravagant acclamations in the praise of his divine eloquence. Against those who resisted his power, or refused to flatter his vanity, the prelate of Antioch was arrogant, rigid and inexorable, but he relaxed the discipline and lavished the treasures of the church on his dependent clergy."

Thus under Constantine's reign all hindrance was finally removed, and, as we shall find, the organization of Papacy, the church nominal under the headship of the bishop of Rome as pope, was speedily effected.

RAPID DEVELOPMENT OF ANTICHRIST.

The rapid development of the Papal Hierarchy after the accession of Constantine is a very remarkable feature of its history. "The prince of this world" was true to his promise to give power and dominion as a reward for worshiping and obeying him (Matt. 4: 8, 9). By the edict of Milan, Constantine gave legal security to the possessions of the Church, and Christians recovered lands formerly forfeited. A second edict, A.D. 321, granted the liberty of bequeathing property to the Church, while Constantine himself set an example of liberality and lavished wealth upon the Christian clergy unsparingly. This example of the Emperor was followed by thousands of his subjects, whose offerings during life and whose bequests in the hour of death flowed into the ecclesiastical treasury. White says:*

"The church of Rome began early to assume authority over the others [over the churches of other cities and countries], as well from the numbers and wealth of its converts as from its position in the capital city. Many circumstances concurred to augment the influence of its bishop, although his usurpation and ambition were for a time vigorously repelled. The transference of the seat of power [by Constantine, from Rome to Constantinople, A.D. 334] increased the power of the western church by conferring the chief magistracy on the bishop. To this must be added the sanction given by Gratian and Valentinian to the custom of appeals to Rome, and the frequent pilgrimages to the tombs of St. Peter and St. Paul and other martyrs."

After the death of Constantine the varied fortunes of the Roman Empire seemed to co-operate for the advancement of the apostate church and the development of Antichrist; for a union under one head or pope, esteemed the representative or vicegerent of Christ, had not yet been effected. The emperors succeeding Constantine, down to Theodosius, continued to regard themselves as the heads of the Church, in whom centered divine authority. Though no one of the eighteen hundred bishops of the empire was yet prepared to demand recognition as the head, or pope, several had their eyes on that prize, and the emperors were shown the shallowness of their claims to the title Pontifex Maximus, in the argument that since they worshiped dead saints they owed a similar respect to their living representatives, the bishops. Nevertheless, the emperors in their edicts repeatedly referred to the empire as a divine hierarchy and to themselves as divine personages.*

The power and headship of the bishop of Rome came on apace: within fifty years from the time Christianity was legally established, his wealth and dignity, as the bishop of the capital and chief city of the world, were very great. Ammianus, a contemporary historian, describing his wealth and ostentation, says, "He surpassed kings in splendor and magnificence, rode in the stateliest chariots, was arrayed in the finest attire, and was distinguished by his luxury and pride." The removal of the seat of empire to Constantinople, the exposure of the city of Rome to the invasion of the barbarians from the north, the continual changes of generals and governors in the now fast falling empire, left the bishop of the church at Rome the most permanent and most honored official there; and his gradually increasing prestige was heightened as well by the removal of the rival splendors of the imperial court to Constantinople as by the reverence attaching to the very name of Rome, among all the peoples of the world.

As an illustration of this, we note that when, in 455, the city of Rome was invaded and plundered by the Vandals, and all around was distress and desolation, Leo, the bishop of Rome, improved the opportunity for impressing upon all, both barbarians and Romans, his claim of spiritual power. To the rude and superstitious barbarians, already greatly impressed by what they saw about them, of Rome's greatness and wealth, Leo, arrayed in his pontifical robes, exclaimed: "Beware! I am the successor of St. Peter, to whom God has given the keys of the kingdom of heaven and against whose church the gates of hell cannot prevail; I am the living representative of divine power on the earth; I am Caesar, a Christian Caesar, ruling in love, to whom all Christians owe allegiance; I hold in my hands the curses of hell and the benedictions of heaven; I absolve all subjects from allegiance to kings; I give and take away, by divine right, all thrones and principalities of Christendom. Beware how you desecrate the patrimony given me by your invisible king; yea, bow down your necks to me and pray that the anger of God may be averted."

The veneration for the place and name was actively taken advantage of by the bishop of Rome, who soon claimed a superiority to all other bishops, governors and rulers. Soon he claimed not only ecclesiastical dominion of the world, but also civil dominion: that the right to crown and uncrown, to make and degrade any and all rulers of the old Roman Empire was the right and inheritance of the Church of Rome, which, it was claimed, God had thus invested with the dominion of earth. These claims were made repeatedly, and repeatedly denied by opposing bishops, so that to fix an exact year as the date of its beginning would be impossible. As for itself, Papacy claims that it was organized in the days of the apostles, and that Peter was the first pope; but this is not only without proof, but is most positively contradicted by all history, which shows that though the iniquity of ambition worked secretly for a long time, it was hindered from developing into Antichrist, and from making such open claims, until the Roman Empire began to disintegrate.

Henceforth we deal with the Antichrist, whose gradual development and organization from secretly working ambition are a fitting prelude to the terrible character displayed after the coveted power had been grasped, from 539 to 1799, 1260 years. Of this period the first three hundred years mark the rise of this temporal power; the last three mark its waning under the influences of the Reformation and civilization; and the intermediate period of seven centuries embraces Papacy's glory-time and the dark ages of the world, full of frauds and deceptions in the name of Christ and true religion.

A Roman Catholic writer fully corroborates our findings on this subject, and we present his words regardless of their gloss, as corroborative testimony. Giving, with glowing enthusiasm, a description of the rise of the Papacy to temporal power, describing it as a plant of heavenly origin, and therefore of rapid growth and high exaltation in the world, he says:

"The rise of the temporal power of the Popes presents to the mind one of the most extraordinary phenomena which the annals of the human race offer to our wonder and admiration. By a singular combination of concurring circumstances a new power and a new dominion grew up, silently and steadily, on the ruins of that Roman Empire which had extended its sway over, or made itself respected by, nearly all the nations, peoples and races that lived in the period of its glory. That new power, ... soon exercised a wider authority, than the empire whose gigantic ruins it saw shivered into fragments and mouldering in dust. In Rome itself the power of the successor of Peter grew side by side with, and under the protecting shadow of, that of the emperor; and such was the increasing influence of the popes, that the majesty of the supreme Pontiff was likely ere long to dim the splendor of the purple.

"The removal by Constantine of the seat of empire from the West to the East, from the historic banks of the Tiber to the beautiful shores of the Bosphorus, laid the broad foundation of a sovereignty which in reality commences from that momentous change. Practically, almost from that day, Rome, which had witnessed the birth, the youth, the splendor, and the decay, of the mighty race by whom her name had been carried with her eagles to the remotest regions of the then known world, was gradually abandoned by the inheritors of her renown; and its people deserted by the emperors, and an easy prey to the ravages of the barbarians whom they had no longer the courage to resist, beheld in the bishop of Rome their guardian, their protector, their father. Year by year the temporal authority of the popes grew into shape and hardened into strength, without violence, without bloodshed, without fraud, by the force of overwhelming circumstances, fashioned, as if visibly, by the hand of God."

While Roman Catholics thus represent the rise of the Papacy on the ruins of Pagan Rome as a triumph of Christianity, those who are acquainted with the true spirit of Christianity look in vain to see any trace of that spirit in the prostitution of the Church and her unholy alliance with the world. Neither can the true Christians see in the advantages furnished by ignorance, superstition, calamities, and the various circumstances of the times of which the Church of Rome took advantage, any evidence of divine interposition in her favor. Nor yet can they discover, in the exaltation of the Church of Rome to earthly power and glory, any verification of the Lord's promise to the true Church, to exalt her in due time, after the Antichrist has come and gone; for the exaltation of the true Church is not to be to a blood-stained and crime-polluted throne, such as the throne of the Papacy has been from its very beginning: neither will the true Christ ever need to call upon earthly kings to establish or defend his power. The marks which distinguish the counterfeit from the real kingdom of Christ are easily recognizable by those acquainted, through the Scriptures, with the real Christ and his body, the true Church, with the principles upon which his kingdom is to be established, and with the object for which it is to be set up.

But let no one suppose that the real Church of Christ, even in those corrupt times, was either extinguished or lost sight of. The Lord knoweth them that are his in every age and under every condition. As wheat they were permitted to grow in the midst of a field overrun with tares; as gold they were in the furnace, being tried and purified and "made meet for the inheritance of the saints in light." True, the course of the multitude, who called themselves Christians, occupies the most prominent place on the pages of history; but undoubtedly a faithful few through all the persecutions, and in the midst of all the deceptive arts of the Mystery of Iniquity, walked worthy of their high calling, were laid to rest and recorded of God as heirs to the crown that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for them.

Thus, clearly, on the pages of history, the fact is pointed out that this Man of Sin, Antichrist, was born in Rome; and, though at first opposed, he gradually raised himself up to power; or, as expressed in Daniel's prophecy, as a little horn it came up out of the head of that old Roman beast, that great and terrible beast, for which Daniel could find no name, which had such power to hurt and to destroy. And, as we proceed, we shall find that Antichrist's history corresponds exactly, not only with Daniel's prophecy, but with all the prophecies recorded concerning him.

ANTICHRIST'S CHARACTER IN HISTORY.

Having located Antichrist, we next proceed to compare the character of Papacy with the prophecies recorded, descriptive of the character and deeds of the Antichrist or Man of Sin.

Some may query whether it be right to pass over the emperors of Rome, who claimed to be Supreme religious rulers, without calling their system Antichrist, and to apply that title complete and entire to the organized Papal system. We answer, This is certainly right; and we refer the reader again to the definition of Antichrist already given, as used in the Scriptures, in the place of, instead of, i.e., to be a spiritual empire: it must claim to rule the kingdoms of earth by this spiritual authority; it must thus be not only an antagonist but a counterfeit, misrepresenting and pretending to be Christ's kingdom, and exercising what will in God's due time be the authority of the true Christ, the church glorified and complete under the only true Head and Lord, the real Pontifex Maximus.

Not only does Papacy claim to be the glorified kingdom of Christ promised by the Lord, the apostles and the prophets, but it applies to itself and its successive heads (the popes, who, it claims, take the place of Christ, as Pontiff, Chief or King of this kingdom) all those passages of the prophets which describe the Millennial glory of the Christ. And, deceiving and being deceived themselves by their false theories, developed slowly by sinful ambition for greatness, during centuries, the popes have piece by piece arranged the titles of all associated in the hierarchy, their gorgeous clothing, their imposing ceremonials, their grand cathedrals with solemn, awe-inspiring services, on a scale to correspond as nearly as possible with their claims—the gorgeous surroundings and clothing and ceremonies matching, as best they can make them match, the glories and grandeur portrayed by the prophets.

For instance, Psalm 2: 12 reads, Kiss the Son, O ye kings of the earth, lest he be angry, and ye perish by the way, when his anger is kindled but a little. This is not a command to kiss literally, but to yield willing, cheerful submission to our Lord, and applies to the present hour, when, preparatory to the great and true Millennial reign of the true Christ, the kings or great ones of earth, politically, socially, financially and ecclesiastically, are being tested by their willingness or unwillingness to bow to the righteous regulations now due to go into operation. Those who resist righteousness resist the scepter of this King of glory, and all such shall be overthrown in the great time of trouble which ushers in the Millennial reign of the new King: all who would not have him reign shall be slain (Luke 19: 27). His enemies shall lick the dust, be vanquished.

Misapplying this prophecy to his counterfeit kingdom, Antichrist's representative head, the pope, in the palmy days of his prosperity caused kings and emperors to bow before him, as before Christ, and to kiss his great toe, applying the same as the fulfillment of this prophecy.

Claims like these are very generally passed over lightly by prophetic students and writers, while they search out and specially notice immoralities; but herein they greatly err, for criminalities have been plentiful enough in every age, and would need no such special, prophetic delineations as are given of Antichrist. Could it be proved that those connected with the papal system have been very models of morality, it would be none the less identical with the character noted in Scripture as the great Antichrist, the counterfeit which has arrogated to itself the titles, privileges, powers and reverence belonging to the Lord's Anointed. As a counterfeit, it has also misrepresented the plan of God with reference to the selection of a little flock, or Church, in the present time; and it has entirely set aside the real hope of the Church, and the Lord's provision for the blessing of the world during the Millennial reign of Christ, which it represents as fulfilled in its own reign.

The ill effects of such perversion and misrepresentation of God's plan can scarcely be estimated. They have been the direct source from which sprang all the corrupt doctrines which, one after another, were introduced to support the claims and add to the dignity of Antichrist. And though the Reformation, three centuries ago, ushered in an era of Bible study and liberty of thought, and led to the rejection of many evils and errors, yet the counterfeit was on so elaborate a scale, so complete in all its parts and arrangements, and had so thoroughly deceived the whole world that, even after Luther and many others had recognized Papacy as the outcome of the great falling away, the Antichrist of prophecy, they, while denouncing it as a system, held firmly to the false theory which led to its peculiar errors of doctrine and practice. To this day the great majority of Protestants of all denominations support the theory of Antichrist, that Christ's Kingdom has been set up. Some have endeavored to do as Papacy did, to organize their church under some one person as its head, while others supply the place of this head with a council or synod; but all are under the delusion imposed by the false and misleading interpretations of Scripture doctrines started by Antichrist—that now, and not at a future time, is the reign of Christ's Kingdom; and, denying the coming age, as the Antichrist does, they, like that system, are careless of the full development of holiness among believers and are zealous rather for the accomplishment now of the work of the next age, the conversion of the world, so much so, that they are often willing to misrepresent God's plan and Word, and to invent theories to frighten and drive the world into a profession of godliness; and willing also to resort to questionable and worldly methods to add to their attractions, to make their various systems the more enticing to the unconverted, whom they, like Antichrist, are willing to count in for pride's sake and to make a good showing.

Such find it difficult to see that Papacy is Antichrist. How could they, while faith is not yet free from the poison, and reason is still greatly blinded by the very essence of Antichrist's error. The greatness, the grandeur and the necessity of Christ's Millennial Kingdom and its work of blessing all the families of the earth must be seen, before the greatness of the Antichrist counterfeit can be appreciated, or its havoc to the truth and its desolating and defiling influence in the nominal church or temple of God can be rightly estimated.

None need be surprised at the completeness of this counterfeit, when we reflect that it is Satan's workmanship, and has been patterned after the types and illustrations of future glory presented in the Scriptures. Seeing that the time for the selection of the Church had come, and that the truths planted by the Lord and the apostles had gained rapid headway against all the heathen religions, seeking out the meek wherever it went, the great adversary sought to destroy the purity of the Church and to turn into other and false channels that which he could not stop. Thus the triumph of Antichrist, as well as its present power, has really been Satan's success. But here we behold the wisdom of God; for while the success of Antichrist seemed to presage the defeat of God's plan it was really, though unwittingly, co-operating to insure the success of his plan; for by no other means could the truly consecrated have been so thoroughly tried, and their faithfulness to God's Word so thoroughly tested, as by the permission of this great counterfeit.

The accompanying table will serve to show how complete has been the counterfeit of the future organization of Christ's kingdom in Papacy, and how it was drawn from the Jewish typical priesthood.

Mosheim, explaining the rise of the hierarchical system in the Church, very clearly shows this counterfeiting, in these words, Vol. 1, p. 337:

"Whilst the least probability remained that Jerusalem might at one time or other again rear its head from the dust, the Christian teachers and elders assumed to themselves no titles or distinctions, at least none but the most modest and humble ones; but when the fate of that city had been sealed by Hadrian [A.D. 135], and not the most distant hope could any longer be entertained by the Jews, of seeing their ancient government re-established, these same pastors and ministers conceived a wish to have it believed by their flocks that they themselves had succeeded to the rights of the Jewish priesthood. The bishops, therefore, made it their business to inculcate the notion that they were invested with a character resembling that of the great High Priest of the Jews, and were consequently possessed of all those rights which had been recognized as belonging to the Jewish Pontiff. The functions of the ordinary Jewish priest were, in like manner, stated to have devolved, though under a more perfect form, on the presbyters of the Christian Church: and finally the deacons were placed on a parallel with the Levites, or inferior ministers."

THE HEAD AND MOUTH OF ANTICHRIST.
HIS GREAT SWELLING WORDS.

The pope (each pope in his turn) is the head of the false church, which is his body, even as Christ Jesus is the head of the true Church, which is his body. Since the head is the representative of the body, and its mouth speaks for the body, we find, as we should expect, this feature of Antichrist prominently referred to in the Scriptures. In Daniel 7: 8, 11, 25, and Rev. 13: 5, 6, the mouth of Antichrist is brought specially to our notice as a leading characteristic. Daniel says this horn had eyes like the eyes of man, symbolic of intelligence and a far-sighted policy. This horn was to be different from all the other powers; it was to be more wise, more cunning, than other empires which attempted to rule the world; its power was to be that of its mouth, utterance, guided by its eyes, knowledge, rather than that of physical force. And no one acquainted with the history of Papacy can deny that the figures used to illustrate its power and methods are strikingly good.

"And there was given unto him a mouth speaking great things. And he opened his mouth in blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tabernacle, and them that dwell in heaven." "And he shall speak great words against the Most High"—Rev. 13:5, 6; Dan. 7: 8, 25.

It should not be forgotten that these are figurative expressions descriptive of the character and claims of a symbolic beast, government, and horn, power, out of the old Roman beast or empire. In some respects, Papacy was a new government, beast, distinct from the old Roman empire; and in others, it was a horn or power among others out of that empire, which for a time held superior control over the other horns or powers. It is presented in symbol from both these standpoints so as most thoroughly to locate and designate it.

Antichrist's great swelling words, or blasphemies, cover the whole period of his long career. The expression blasphemy, in our day, is usually given only a coarse meaning, as if it related to the most vulgar forms of cursing and profanity only. But, in its true significance, the word blasphemy is applicable to any indignity offered to God. Bouvier defines it thus: "Blasphemy is to attribute to God that which is contrary to his nature, and does not belong to him,—and to deny what does."—See Webster's Unabridged Dictionary under heads of Blasphemy and Blasphemously. And in evidence that this is the sense in which the word blasphemy is used in the Scriptures, notice the manner in which our Lord and the Pharisees used it: "The Jews answered, For a good work we stone thee not, but for blasphemy; and because thou, being a man, makest thyself God." Jesus answered them, "Say ye of him whom the Father hath sanctified, and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest, because I said, I am the Son of God?"—John 10: 33, 36; Mark 14: 61-64.

With this, the proper definition of "blasphemy," before us, how evident it must be to the simplest minds that Papacy's great swelling words and boastful claims have, one and all, been blasphemies. The establishment of a counterfeit Kingdom of God was a libel upon God's government, a gross blasphemy, and a misrepresentation of his character and plan and word. God's character, his name, was blasphemed in the thousand monstrous edicts, bulls and decretals issued in his name, by the long line of those who claimed, as vice-gerents, to represent his Son; and God's tabernacle, the true Church, was blasphemed by the false system which claimed to take its place, which claimed that its faithful were the true and only tabernacle or Church of God. But we must let history tell us of these great swelling words, these blasphemous assumptions, which successive popes, as the head of Antichrist, uttered and approved.

In a work entitled, The Pope the Vicar of Christ, the Head of the Church, by the celebrated Roman Catholic,

Monsignor Capel, is a list of no less than sixty-two blasphemous titles applied to the pope; and, be it noticed, these are not mere dead titles from the past, for they were arranged by one of Papacy's foremost living writers. We quote from the list as follows:

Most Divine of all Heads.
Holy Father of Fathers.
Pontiff Supreme over all Prelates.
Overseer of the Christian Religion.
The Chief Pastor—Pastor of Pastors.
Christ by Unction.
Abraham by Patriarchate.
Melchisedec in Order.
Moses in Authority.
Samuel in the Judicial Office.
High Priest, Supreme Bishop.
Prince of Bishops.
Heir of the Apostles; Peter in Power.
Key-bearer of the Kingdom of Heaven.
Pontiff Appointed with Plenitude of Power.
Vicar of Christ.
Sovereign Priest.
Head of all the Holy Churches.
Chief of the Universal Church.
Bishop of Bishops, that is, Sovereign Pontiff.
Ruler of the House of the Lord.
Apostolic Lord and Father of Fathers.
Chief Pastor and Teacher.
Physician of Souls.
Rock against which the proud gates of hell prevail not.
Infallible Pope.
Head of all the Holy Priests of God.

In addition to the long list of titles of which the above are instances, the author gives the following quotations from a letter which St. Bernard, Abbott of Clairvaux

[in France], wrote to Pope Eugenius III, A.D. 1150:

"Who art thou?—The High-Priest, the Supreme Bishop. Thou art the Prince of Bishops, thou art the Heir of the Apostles. Thou art Abel in Primacy, Noah in government, Abraham in the patriarchal rank, in order Melchisedec, in dignity Aaron, in authority Moses, Samuel in judicial office, Peter in power, CHRIST IN UNCTION. Thou art he to whom the keys of heaven are given, to whom the sheep are intrusted. There are indeed other door-keepers of heaven, and other shepherds of the flocks; but thou art the more glorious in proportion as thou hast also, in a different fashion, inherited before others both these names. ... The power of others is limited by definite bounds: thine extends even over those who have received authority over others. Canst thou not, when a just reason occurs, shut up heaven against a bishop, depose him from the episcopal office, and deliver him over to Satan? Thus thy privilege is immutable, as well in the keys committed to thee as in the sheep intrusted to thy care."

All these blasphemously flattering titles have been applied to and received by the Roman pontiffs with complacency and marked satisfaction, as rightfully theirs.

From Pope Boniface VIII, we have the following decree, which is still extant in the common law: "We declare, say, define, pronounce it necessary to salvation for every human creature to be subject to the Roman pontiff." Pope Gregory VII, who in the year 1063 ordained that the pope should be called father of fathers, draws the following from Gen. 1: 16, to support papal pretensions: "God made two great lights in the firmament of heaven; the greater light to rule the day and the less to rule the night; both great, but one the greater. 'In the firmament of heaven,' that is, the universal church, 'God made two great lights'; that is, he instituted two dignities, which are the pontifical authority and the regal power; but that which presides over the day, that is, the spiritual, is the greater; but that which presides over carnal things is the less; for as the sun differs from the moon, so do popes differ from kings." Other popes have adopted this interpretation, which has done much to enforce the idea of papal supremacy.

St. Antonius, Archbishop of Florence, after citing Psalm 8: 4-8, "Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels," etc., and applying it to Christ, transfers it to the pope in the following words: "And because he left us in his bodily presence, he left his vicar [substitute] on the earth ... the pope. For the pope, as Hostiensis saith, is greater than man but less than an angel, because he is mortal; yet he is greater in authority and power. For an angel cannot consecrate the body and blood of Christ, nor absolve or bind, the highest degree of which power belongs to the pope; nor can an angel ordain or grant indulgences. He is crowned with glory and honor; the glory of commendation, because he is called not only blessed, but most blessed. Who shall doubt to call him blessed whom the very top of such great dignity hath exalted? He is crowned with the honor of veneration, so that the faithful may kiss his feet. A greater veneration cannot exist. 'Adore his footstool.' (Psa. 99: 5). He is crowned with the magnitude of authority, because he can judge all persons, but can be judged of none, unless he be found to deviate from faith [the faith of Antichrist, of course]. Hence he is crowned with a triple, golden crown, and is 'placed over all the works of his hands,' to dispose of all inferiors. He opens heaven, sends the guilty to hell, confirms empires, regulates the whole clergy."

The Council of Lateran in its first session gave to the pope the appellation of Prince of the Universe; in its second session it called him Priest and King, who is to be adored by all people, and who is very like unto God; and in its fifth session it referred prophecies of Christ's glorious reign to Leo X in these terms: "Weep not, daughter of Zion, for behold, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the root of David: behold, God hath raised thee up a savior."

From Ferraris' Ecclesiastical Dictionary, a standard Roman Catholic authority, we quote the following condensed outline of papal power as given under the word papa:

"The pope is of such dignity and highness that he is not simply a man but, as it were, God, and the vicar [representative] of God. ... Hence the pope is crowned with a triple crown, as king of heaven, of earth and of hell. Nay, the pope's excellence and power are not only about heavenly, terrestrial and infernal things, but he is also above angels, and is their superior; so that if it were possible that angels could err from the faith, or entertain sentiments contrary thereto, they could be judged and excommunicated by the pope ... He is of such great dignity and power that he occupies one and the same tribunal with Christ; so that whatsoever the pope does seems to proceed from the mouth of God ... The pope is, as it were, God on earth, the only prince of the faithful of Christ, the greatest king of all kings, possessing the plenitude of power; to whom the government of the earthly and heavenly kingdom is entrusted." He further adds: "The pope is of so great authority and power that he can modify, declare or interpret the divine law." "The pope can sometimes counteract the divine law by limiting, explaining, etc."

Thus, Antichrist not only endeavored to establish the Church in power before the Lord's time, but it was audacious enough to attempt to "counteract" and "modify" divine laws to suit its own schemes. It thus fulfilled the prophecy which over a thousand years before declared, "He shall think to change times and laws"—Dan. 7: 25.

In a bull, or edict, Sixtus V declares:

"The authority given to St. Peter and his successors by the immense power of the eternal King, excels all the power of earthly kings and princes. It passeth uncontrollable sentence upon them all. And if it find any of them resisting God's ordinance, it takes more severe vengeance on them, casting them down from their thrones, however powerful they may be, and tumbling them down to the lowest parts of the earth as the ministers of aspiring Lucifer."

A bull of Pope Pius V, entitled "The damnation and excommunication of Elizabeth, queen of England, and her adherents—with an addition of other punishments," reads:

"He that reigneth on high, to whom is given all power in heaven and in earth, committed one holy, catholic and apostolic church (out of which there is no salvation) to one alone upon earth, namely, to Peter, the Prince of the apostles, and to Peter's successor, the bishop of Rome, to be governed in fullness of power. Him alone he made prince over all people and all kingdoms, to pluck up, destroy, scatter, consume, plant and build."

St. Bernard affirms that "none except God is like the pope, either in heaven or on earth."

"The Emperor Constantine," says Pope Nicholas I, "conferred the appellation of God on the pope; who, therefore, being God, cannot be judged by man."

Said Pope Innocent III—"The pope holds the place of the true God;" and the canon law, in the gloss, denominates the pope—"our Lord God."

Innocent and Jacobatius state that "the pope can do nearly all that God can do," while Decius rejects the word nearly, as unnecessary. Jacobatius and Durand assert that "none dare say to him any more than to God—Lord, what doest thou?" And Antonius wrote:

"To him [the pope] it belongs to ordain those things which pertain to the public good, and remove those things which prevent this end, as vices, abuses which alienate men from God ... And this according to Jeremiah 1: 10 [Here again appropriating to Antichrist a prophecy which belongs to Christ's Millennial reign]: 'Behold, I have placed thee over the nations and kingdoms, to root up and destroy, to scatter and disperse,' that is, as it regards vices:

'to build up and plant,' that is, as it regards virtues. ... In regard to the power of the pope over those in hell, who are designated by the fishes in the sea (Ps. 8), because, as the fishes are continually agitated by the waves of the sea, so those in purgatory are continually exercised by the afflictions of punishment, God hath subjected to the pope also the fishes of the sea, that is, those who are in purgatory, to relieve them by indulgences.

"Pagans are subject to the pope, who presides in the world in the place of Christ. But Christ hath full power over every creature. The pope is the vicar of Christ, and no one can lawfully withdraw himself from his obedience, as no one can withdraw himself lawfully from obedience to God. ... The pope can punish pagans and barbarous nations.... And though pagans cannot be punished with the spiritual punishment of excommunication and the like, yet they can be punished by the church with pecuniary punishment, and by princes with corporeal punishment also. ... The church can punish, indirectly, the Jews with spiritual punishment, by excommunicating Christian princes to whom the Jews are subject, if they neglect to punish them with temporal punishment when they do anything against Christians.... If the conversion of some should be desired, they may be compelled by terrors and stripes, not indeed to receive faith, but that they should present no obstacle to faith by an obstinate will. For the conversion of infidels, the judgment of God ought to be imitated."

Here is an illustration of how error of doctrine produces unrighteousness. Men may speedily be led into every form of cruelty and oppression, if first they can convince themselves that in the exercise of such depravities they are the more like God—imitators of God. The wonder is that men are as kind and moderate as we find them, with all the terrible, false ideas and doctrines concerning God's plan for mankind, with which Satan has blinded and deluded them through the papal fountain of error, leading them in a course congenial to their fallen nature. Continuing, the same writer adds:

"The power of the pope is exercised over heretics and schismatics, denoted also by oxen, because they resist the truth with the horn of pride. God hath subjected these also under the feet of the pope to be punished in a fourfold way, viz., by excommunication, deposition, the deprivation of temporal goods and military persecution. But then they are only to be taken for heretics when they refuse to reform their pestiferous doctrines, and are ready pertinaciously to defend them ... The pope can choose or elect the emperor. The emperor is the minister [servant] of the pope, in this, that he is the minister of God, whose place the pope fills; for God hath deputed the emperor as the minister of the pope ... I suppose it to be said as a truth, that the pope, the vicar of Christ, hath universal jurisdiction of spiritual and temporal things, in the whole world, in the place of the living God."

The following utterances of the popes, culled from Fox's Acts and Monuments, by H.G. Guinness, an English writer of note, deserves a place of prominence; and we can sympathize heartily with this writer's comment on the system whose mouth gives forth such utterances, "If 'he that exalteth himself shall be abased,' what degradation can be commensurate with such self-exaltation as this?"

"Wherefore, seeing such power is given to Peter, and to me in Peter, being his successor, who is he then in all the world that ought not to be subject to my decrees, which have such power in heaven, in hell, in earth, with the quick and also the dead ... By the jurisdiction of which key the fullness of my power is so great that, whereas all others are subjects—yea, and emperors themselves ought to subdue their executions to me—only I am subject to no creature, no, not to myself ... whom all persons ought to obey and follow, whom no man must judge or accuse of any crime, no man depose but I myself. No man can excommunicate me, yea, though I commune with the excommunicated; for no canon bindeth me: whom no man must lie to, for he that lieth to me is a heretic, and an excommunicated person. Thus, then, it appeared that the greatness of priesthood began in Melchisedec, was solemnized in Aaron, perfectionated in Christ, represented in Peter, exalted in the universal jurisdiction, and manifested in the Pope. So that through this pre-eminence of my priesthood, having all things subject to me, it may seem well verified in me, that was spoken of Christ, 'Thou hast subdued all things under his feet.'

"And, likewise, it is to be presumed that the bishop of that church is always good and holy. Yea, though he fall into homicide or adultery, he may sin, but yet he cannot be accused, but rather excused by the murders of Samson, the thefts of the Hebrews, etc. All the earth is my diocese, and I am the ordinary of all men, having the authority of the King of all kings upon subjects. I am all in all, and above all, so that God himself, and I, the vicar of God, have both one consistory, and I am able to do almost all that God can do. In all things that I list my will is to stand for reason, for I am able by the law to dispense above the law, and of wrong to make justice in correcting laws and changing them. Wherefore, if those things that I do be said not to be done of man, but of God, What can you make me but God? ... It is in my power to change time and times, to alter and abrogate laws, to dispense with all things, yea, with the precepts of Christ; for where Christ biddeth Peter put up his sword, and admonishes his disciples not to use any outward force in revenging themselves, do not I, Pope Nicholas, writing to the bishops of France, exhort them to draw out their material swords? ... And whereas Christ was present himself at the marriage in Cana of Galilee, do not I, Pope Martin, in my distinction, inhibit the spiritual clergy to be present at marriage-feasts, and also to marry? Moreover, where Christ biddeth us lend without hope of gain, do not I, Pope Martin, give dispensation for the same? What should I speak of murder, making it to be no murder or homicide to slay them that be excommunicated? Likewise, against the law of nature, item against the apostles, also against the canons of the apostles, I can and do dispense; for where they, in their canon, command a priest for fornication to be deposed, I through the authority of Sylvester, do alter the rigor of that constitution, considering the minds and bodies also of men now to be weaker than they were then ... If ye list briefly to hear the whole number of all such cases as properly do appertain to my Papal dispensation, which come to the number of one-and-fifty points, that no man may meddle with but only I myself alone, I will recite them [Here follows the list].

"After that I have now sufficiently declared my power in earth, in heaven, in purgatory, how great it is ... I will speak now a little of my riches and of my great possessions, that every man may see my wealth and abundance of all things—rents, tithes, tributes; my silks, my purple mitres, crowns, gold, silver, pearls and gems, lands and lordships. For to me pertaineth first the imperial city of Rome; the palace of Lateran; the kingdom of Sicily is proper to me; Apula and Capua be mine. Also the kingdoms of England and Ireland, be they not, or ought they not to be, tributaries to me? To these I adjoin also, besides other provinces and countries, in both the Occident and the Orient, from the north to the south, these dominions by name. [Here follows a long list]. What should I speak here of my daily revenues, of my first-fruits, annates, palls, indulgences, bulls, confessionals, indults and rescripts, testaments, dispensations, privileges, elections, prebends, religious houses, and such like, which come to no small mass of money? ... whereby what vantage cometh to my coffers it may partly be conjectured. ... But what should I speak of Germany, when the whole world is my diocese, as my canonists do say, and all men are bound to believe. Wherefore, as I began, so I conclude, commanding, declaring, and pronouncing, to stand upon necessity of salvation, for every human creature to be subject to me."

It is presumed by many today that these boastings of the Papacy belong only to the distant past, and that a great change has come over that system in later times; but a little reflection and observation prove that these sentiments of the Papacy are still unchanged. We should bear in mind, too, that the constant claim of Papacy is that its doctrines are unchangeable: that the decrees of its popes and councils are infallible; and that those decrees, breathing out blasphemy against God, and persecution against his saints, are still held sacred by the Roman Catholic Church of the present day. The change in Papacy is merely the loss of power brought about by the awakening of the Reformation. The will is still possessed, but the power to do is curtailed by the increase of knowledge and liberty in which the Bible has been the principal factor. Antichrist is being gradually rendered powerless by the true Christ, by the spirit of his mouth, his Word. Soon the bright shining of Immanuel's presence will utterly destroy the vainglorious counterfeit, and wholly free the world from the chains of its delusive claims and errors.

For an illustration of latter time assumptions, note the fact that the present pope, upon ascending the papal throne, took the title of Leo XIII, and shortly after subscribed himself "Leo de tribus Juda," i.e., "The Lion of the tribe of Judah," one of the titles of the true Head. Surely in presumptuous claims, therefore, he is not behind those who held the same office during the dark ages.

The following, called The Adoration, is still a part of the ceremony connected with the installation of a new pope. The new pope, clad in white, studded with many brilliant gems, and wearing red shoes with large gold crosses for buckles, is conducted to the altar, where he kneels. Then "The pope rises, and, wearing his mitre, is lifted up by the cardinals and placed by them upon the altar-throne to sit there. One of the bishops kneels, and the singing of Te Deum [We praise thee, O God] begins. Meantime the cardinals kiss the feet and hands and face of the pope." A coin representing this ceremony, struck in the Papal mint, bears the words, "Whom they create, they adore."

Cardinal Manning, Papacy's chief representative in England, endorses and draws public attention to the following clause of the Catholic faith:

"We declare, affirm, define, and pronounce it necessary to salvation, for every human creature to be subject to the Roman Pontiff." And in a published discourse he represents the pope as saying, "I claim to be the Supreme Judge and Director of the consciences of men; of the peasant that tills the field, and the prince that sits on the throne; of the household that lives in the shade of privacy, and the Legislature that makes laws for kingdoms. I am the sole, last, Supreme Judge of what is right and wrong."

Surely, too, in observing modern instances of Papacy's great swelling words of vanity, we should not overlook the notable decree of the Ecumenical Council, held in Rome in 1870, declaring the infallibility of the Pope. True, it had been claimed now and then in the past, by supercilious popes, that they were infallible; and bishops and princes desirous of flattering their pride had virtually so pronounced them, in the declaration, "Thou art another god, on earth"; but it remained for a Papal Council in this enlightened nineteenth century to coolly and deliberately inform the world how great this "god on earth" is,—that he is almost as perfect as the other God, in heaven; that he cannot err more than the other; that in his ex cathedra utterances the pope is infallible, unerring.

The vote of the council was taken July 13, 1870, and on the 18th the decree was formally promulgated, with ceremony, at the great St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome. The following description of the event, by Dr. J. Cummings, of London, will be read with interest. He says:

"The Pope had a grand throne erected in front of the eastern window in St. Peter's, and arrayed himself in a perfect blaze of precious stones, and surrounded himself with cardinals and patriarchs and bishops in gorgeous apparel, for a magnificent spectacular scene. He had chosen the early morning hour and the eastern window, that the rising sun should flash its beams full upon his magnificence and by it his diamonds, rubies and emeralds be so refracted and reflected that he should appear to be not a man, but what the decree proclaimed him, one having all the glory of God ... The pope posted himself at an early hour at the eastern window... but the sun refused to ... shine. The dismal dawn darkened rapidly to a deeper and deeper gloom. The dazzle of glory could not be produced. The aged eyes of the would-be God could not see to read by daylight, and he had to send for candles. Candle-light strained his nerves of vision too much, and he handed the reading over to a cardinal. The cardinal began to read amid an ever blackening gloom, but had not read many lines before such a glare of lurid fire and such a crash burst from the inky heavens as was never equaled at Rome before. Terror fell upon all. The reading ceased. One cardinal jumped trembling from his chair, and exclaimed, 'It is the voice of God speaking, the thunders of Sinai.' "

Among the blasphemous pretensions of Antichrist should be remembered several of its doctrines, particularly the doctrine of the Mass, which we will notice in a subsequent volume. Passing over the worshiping of saints and of Mary, we note some of the still more grievous errors.

Church infallibility was one of the first, and paved the way to others. It was claimed before the office of Pope was acknowledged. It has been a most serious error, and has barred the way against the rectifying of errors when afterward discovered. It has placed the decrees of church councils beyond contradiction or questioning, either by reason or Scripture, and has made human ignorance and weaknesses and misconceptions the standards of faith instead of God's word, the Bible; for, once conceded that the voice of the church council was infallible, everything must be forced to conform thereto; and each council felt bound to render no decisions contrary to preceding councils; and those which did otherwise were liable to be repudiated.

So an error once affirmed could not be denied nor even dropped, and the Bible and reason had to be interpreted and twisted to match the infallible decrees of fallible men. No wonder it was found that it required a very expert theologian to interpret the Scriptures so as to make them agree with the so-called infallible decrees. No wonder either that, from expediency, Antichrist—

Proscribed the Bible. The history of Papacy shows clearly that, while professing to reverence the Bible as the Word of God, it has kept it in the background and its own infallible words in the front. Not only so, but it has proscribed God's Word entirely, as unfit to be read and dangerous to the people, that its own infallible word might have full control. It well knew that the Bible was dangerous to its power, and a constant denouncement of its blasphemous pretensions.

In the days of Papal power, the possession or reading of the Bible by the people was treated as a criminal offence. The art of printing and the general revival of learning resulting therefrom, about the sixteenth century, secured the resurrection of the Bible from the sepulcher of dead languages where Antichrist had long kept it hidden, forbidding the translating of it under severe penalties. And when an awakening spirit of independence began to scatter it in living languages among the people, Bible-burning was no uncommon thing; and long and loud were the merciless curses that issued from the Vatican against the presumptuous sinners who dared to translate, publish or read the Word of God.

When Wiclif published his translation, Pope Gregory sent a bull to the Oxford University condemning the translator as "run into a detestable kind of wickedness." Tyndale's translation was also condemned; and when Luther published his German translation, Pope Leo X. issued a bull against him. Nevertheless, the work went grandly and steadily forward: the Bible was to have a complete resurrection, and was destined to shed light upon men of every nation and language. Slowly the Church of Rome came to realize this, and resolved, therefore, to permit the translation of the Scriptures into modern languages, by Catholic translators, accompanied with Catholic notes. These, however, were not to be given to the people, except where there was danger of their receiving the Protestant translations. The Rhemish translation declares this.

The following show the character of some of the Notes of the Reims-Douay version, that latterly has been superseded by the Chaloner version, called the Douay Bible, very similar, but with less pointed notes. A note on Matt. 3 reads: "Heretics may be punished and suppressed; and may, and ought, by public authority, either spiritual or temporal, to be chastised or executed." One on Gal. 1: 8 reads: "Catholics should not spare their own parents, if heretics." On Heb. 5: 7 the note reads: "The translators of the Protestant Bible ought to be translated to the depths of hell." And on Rev. 17: 6 the comment reads: "But the blood of Protestants is not called the blood of saints, no more than the blood of thieves, man-killers, and other malefactors, for the shedding of which, by the order of justice, no commonwealth shall answer."

The following are some of the restrictions imposed when it was found that the reading of the Bible could not be entirely prevented. The fourth rule of the Index Expurgatoris says:

"If any shall have the presumption to read or possess the Bible without written permission, he shall not receive absolution until he have first delivered up such Bible to the ordinary. Book-sellers who shall sell or otherwise dispose of Bibles in the vulgar tongue, to any person not having such permission, shall forfeit the value of the books, ... and be subjected by the bishop to such other penalties as the bishop shall judge proper, according to the quality of the offence."

Said the Council of Trent, in its session A.D. 1546:

"In order to restrain petulant minds, the council decrees that in matters of faith and morals, and whatever relates to the maintenance of Christian doctrine, no one, confiding in his own judgment, shall dare to wrest the sacred Scriptures to his own sense of them, contrary to that which hath been held, and still is held, by the holy mother church, whose right it is to judge of the true meaning."

From the bull of Pius VII, against Bible Societies, issued June 29, 1816, to the Primate of Poland, we quote:

"We have been truly shocked at this most crafty device ... Having, because of the great importance of the subject, conferred in council with our venerable brethren, the cardinals of the holy Roman Church, we have, with the utmost care and attention, deliberated upon the measures proper to be adopted by our pontifical authority, in order to remedy and abolish this pestilence as far as possible ... Of your own accord you have already shown an ardent desire to detect and overthrow the impious machinations of these innovators; yet, in conformity with our office, we again and again exhort you that whatever you can achieve by power, provide by counsel, or effect by authority, you will daily execute with the utmost earnestness ... The Bible printed by heretics is to be numbered among other prohibited books, conformably to the rules of the Index."

The same pope in 1819 issued a bull against the use of the Scriptures in the schools of Ireland. We quote:

"Information has reached the ears of the sacred congregation that Bible Schools, supported by the funds of the heterodox, have been established in almost every part of Ireland; in which the inexperienced of both sexes are invested with the fatal poison of depraved doctrines. ... Every possible exertion must therefore be made, to keep the youth away from these destructive schools ... Do you labor with all your might to keep the orthodox youth from being corrupted by them, an object which will, I hope, be easily effected by the establishment of Catholic schools throughout your diocese."

Here we have a candid admission of the real object of the establishment of Catholic parochial schools in Great Britain and North America, viz.: to protect their lines. Antichrist has no other object in offering education to the common people. Ignorance and superstition are Papacy's bulwarks; and the centuries of its power, including what is known as the dark ages, prove this. The education of the clergy under restrictions was not neglected; but, that no provision was made for the education of the people, the dense ignorance of all old Roman Catholic countries is strong proof. Schools and Bibles have ever been Antichrist's unendurable enemies, and would not be tolerated, except as they became necessities, upon which a false light must be thrown for the preservation of Antichrist's existence.

From a bull by Leo XII to the Roman Catholic clergy of Ireland, A.D. 1825, we quote:

"It is no secret to you, venerable brethren, that a certain society, vulgarly called the Bible Society, is audaciously disseminating itself through the whole world. After despising the traditions of the holy fathers, and in opposition to the well known decree of the Council of Trent, this society has collected all its forces, and directs every means to one object:—to the translation, or rather to the perversion, of the Bible into the vernacular languages of all nations."

Even the late Pope Pius IX expressed his anguish of heart at the triumph on every hand of this great enemy of Antichrist, the Bible. He said, "Accursed be those very crafty and deceitful societies called Bible Societies, which thrust the Bible into the hands of the inexperienced youth."

True, it was decreed at the Roman Catholic Plenary Council of Baltimore, A.D. 1886, that an approved Bible shall be permitted in Catholic schools of the United States. This, however, betokens no change in the real sentiment of Antichrist; it is but another stroke of its far-sighted policy, in deference to the spirit of liberty in this country, which abhors such restraints. They well knew, however, that the liberty and not the Bible was wanted; and inquiry discovers that now, two years after, the Bible is not to be found in Catholic schools hereabouts.

The doctrine of the natural, inherent immortality of man (that a human existence once begun can never cease) was another fruitful error, borrowed from Grecian philosophy. And, being admitted, it led naturally to the conclusion that if existence must continue forever, then the Bible expressions concerning the destruction of finally wilful sinners, the second death, etc., must be construed to mean the opposite of what they say, everlasting life, in some condition. Next, it was easy to decree that to the wicked it must be a life of suffering; and the torments were frequently pictured upon the walls of the churches as well as by the words of zealous priests and monks. This error was the more easily impressed upon the converts because the Greek philosophers (then the leaders of the world in matters of science, religion and philosophy, whose ideas, as Josephus shows, had even begun to tincture Judaism) had long held and taught a punishment for the wicked in death. To their credit, however, be it noted that they never descended to the horrible blasphemies of God's character and government taught to the world by Antichrist. Next, it was in order to fix a place for this torment and call it hell, and to seek passages of Scripture referring to sheol and hades and gehenna which describe the real wages of sin, the first and second deaths, and dextrously to apply these and the parables of our Lord and the symbols of Revelation, so as to delude themselves and the whole world on this subject and most grievously to malign and blaspheme the character and plan of God, our all-wise and gracious Heavenly Father.

Purgatory was brought in, to relieve and make endurable this terrible dose of doctrine, and withal to give Antichrist a firmer hold upon the people. It claimed to hold the keys of heaven and hell and to have power to remit the pains of purgatory: not only the Adamic penalty, and the weaknesses inherited thereby, but also the penalties of willful, deliberate sins. What a leverage of power this gave, over an ignorant people, can be easily imagined—especially when the emperors and chief men of earth acknowledged and bowed before the deceiver.

Masses for the dead followed; and rich and poor alike felt it a duty to pay, and liberally, too, to have these. The efficacy of masses, for the relief of purgatorial sufferings, is claimed to be omnipotent, so that not even Jehovah or Christ could interfere with it. This became a source of great income to Antichrist; for the priests were not slow to remind the dying, if wealthy, of the propriety of leaving liberal bequests for masses for themselves, lest those who inherited their wealth should neglect the matter. And, indeed, within the present year warnings of a similar kind have appeared in the Roman Catholic journals, urging that less money be spent upon funeral flowers, that the more might be spent for masses for the dead.

Indulgences came in, some time before the Crusades: we know that indulgences were offered, as a bounty, to secure volunteers for these Crusades, "Holy Wars." By Papal edict, whoever would engage in these holy wars would not only have forgiveness for sins past, but also merit to offset sins future; and thus be guaranteed against certain purgatorial sufferings. These indulgences, Roman Catholics tell us, are not designed to be licenses to commit sins, but are rewards of merit which offset or cancel a certain number of days or years of purgatorial anguish: so that if a man's sins made him liable to one thousand years of suffering, and he, at one time, or at various times, secured indulgences to the amount of one thousand years, either for money, or for services rendered to Papacy, or by penances done, he would go free; if he had to his credit nine hundred years indulgence, he would have to endure one hundred years of suffering; and if indulgences were reckoned to much overbalance his penalties, he would probably be accounted a saint, of special influence in heaven, to be prayed to and adored. Of this order Louis, king of France, the Crusader, would be an example. He was canonized, and is now adored and prayed to as Saint Louis.

There is indeed a difference between this view of Indulgences and a license to commit sins; and yet it is very slight; for Papacy affixed to various common sins a certain amount of suffering, and not only could sins past be thus offset and cancelled, but those who had reason to think that they might commit certain sins, in the future, could thus provide beforehand merit to cancel them. Besides this, some, called plenary [full] indulgences, are certainly understood to cover all sins, past and future.

The practice even at the present day seems scarcely credible. Romanists have certain prayers, a repetition of which constitutes a ground for indulgence for a limited period; and many added together, they claim, will protect from wrath a long time. Thus, those who say the Hail, Holy Queen are granted forty days of indulgence, while for saying the Litany of the Blessed Virgin there is an indulgence of two hundred days; and for those who say the Blessed be the Holy, Immaculate and Most Pure Conception of the Virgin Mary one hundred years indulgence is granted, etc., etc. In the darker ages, when indulgences were freely offered for money and for services in the persecution of infidels and heretics, it may readily be imagined to what corruption this blasphemous doctrine led.

To crimes generally committed by the rich, who could pay liberally, enormous penalties were affixed, while the basest violations of justice, more common among the poorer classes, were lightly excused. Thus, marriage with a first cousin cost $5,000, while wife-murder or parricide cost only $20. Spanheim says: "The institution of Indulgence was the mint which coined money for the Roman Church; the gold mines for the profligate nephews and natural children of the popes; the nerves of the Papal wars; the means of liquidating debt, and the inexhaustible fountain of luxury to the popes."

To regulate this traffic a graded scale of penalties was affixed to various sins—so many days or years in purgatory for each; and a scale of prices was also arranged to correspond, so that those obtaining indulgence for a murder or a theft, for infanticide, or adultery, or perjury, or other sins, could be charged at different rates. By this means penances were canceled and the torments of purgatory mitigated or ended, at the pleasure of Antichrist's agents. We cannot wonder that the people speedily got to understand that so much money paid for so much sin.

To such an extent was crime increased by these indulgences, that the indignation of the better classes of society was aroused to rebellion against the church. Men's eyes began to be opened, and they saw the clergy, from the highest dignitaries of the church down to the lowest orders of officials, steeped in iniquity.

As the darkest hour precedes the storm, so just before the great Reformation movement was, morally, the darkest hour of Antichrist's dark reign. There the open and shameful traffic in indulgences produced nausea, and led Luther and other zealous papists to question and examine the entire system, both in its moral, and afterward in its doctrinal, aspects. Finally, Luther struck the true idea—that Papacy was indeed the Antichrist. And, having discovered this, he fearlessly pointed out some of the symbols of Revelation, and showed their applicability and partial fulfillment in the Papal Hierarchy.

On this subject we quote the following from the pen of the well known clergyman, Lyman Abbott. He says:

"Among other conditions, for which indulgences were formerly granted more than now, was the contribution of money to the church. This traffic reached its height in the beginning of the sixteenth century, under Leo X, who published indulgences to all who would contribute toward the erection of St. Peter's [Cathedral] at Rome. His chief agent for the sale of indulgences in Germany was one John Tetzel. The notorious vices of Tetzel did not prevent him from being selected as the bearer of these pardons to other purer souls, and no extravagance seemed to him too great, so that it brought money to his coffers. He declared that the red cross, which accompanied him wherever he went, had as great efficacy as the cross of Christ—that there was no sin so great that he could not remit it. 'Indulgences save not the living alone, they also save the dead. The very moment that the money chinks against the bottom of the chest, the soul escapes from Purgatory and flies free to heaven.' Such were some of his blasphemous declarations. A regular scale of prices was established. 'Polygamy cost six ducats; sacrilege and perjury, nine; murder, eight; witchcraft, two.' It was this open and shameless traffic which, more than anything else, led to the Reformation. Indulgences continued to be granted, not only for acts of worship, but also for contributions in money to the church; but the public and open sale of indulgences is now banished, for the most part, from the Church of Rome."

Another writer quotes Tetzel's language further, thus:

"Draw near and I will give you letters duly sealed, by which even the sins you shall hereafter desire to commit shall be all forgiven you. There is no sin so great that indulgence cannot remit. Pay, only pay largely and you shall be forgiven. Ye priests, ye nobles, ye tradesmen, ye wives, ye maidens, ye young men, hearken to your departed parents and friends, who call to you from the bottomless abyss,

'We are enduring horrible torment; a small alms would deliver us. You can give it. Will you not?' With ten groschen you can deliver your father from purgatory. Our Lord God no longer deals with us as God—He has given all power to the Pope."

The following is handed down as a copy of the blanks used by Tetzl, filled out with the name of the purchaser, his sins, etc.:

"Our Lord Jesus Christ have mercy on thee. ..., and absolve thee by the merits of his most holy sufferings. I, in virtue of the Apostolic power committed to me, absolve thee from all ... excesses, sins and crimes that thou mayest have committed, however great and enormous they may be, and of whatever kind, ... I remit the pains thou wouldst have had to endure in purgatory, ... I restore thee to the innocence and purity of thy baptism, so that, at the moment of death, the gates of the place of torment shall be shut against thee, and the gates of paradise open to thee. And if thou shouldst live long, this grace continueth unchangeable till the time of thy end. In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, Amen. The brother, John Tetzl, commissary, hath signed this with his own hand. —

As to the immediate present we cannot say, but we know that, only a few years since, printed indulgences with prices affixed were kept on sale, at tables, in some of the large Roman Catholic churches of Mexico and Cuba.

IT WAS GIVEN HIM TO MAKE WAR WITH THE SAINTS AND TO OVERCOME THEM—TO WEAR OUT THE SAINTS OF THE MOST HIGH.

Did the papal counterfeit kingdom hold and exercise power over the truly consecrated children of God, and overcome them, "wear them out" by a long period of oppression, or crushing, as the Hebrew text implies? We answer, Yes: every means that could be thought of was employed to crush out the very spirit of true Christianity (John 8: 36; Gal. 5: 1; 2 Cor. 3: 17), and to substitute the spirit, doctrines and forms of Antichrist. It was at first less of an open attack on the faithful than of a slow, persistent, crushing oppression, dealing more particularly with opposing teachers; and wearing out the patience and also the faith of many. This persistent worrying, and wearing out, are well illustrated in the institution of the Confessional, in which Antichrist not only took cognizance of every criticism and every word of objection to that system, uttered in the hearing of the confessing one, but under threat of future penalties compelled him to confess and repent of any opposing thoughts or acts of his own. This, too, was soon so backed by the civil power that to utter any protest against the church could be construed as treason against the civil power, which was upheld by papal authority.

In the first flush of papal exaltation, the people as a whole were nominally members of the church or else pagans; and all who professed Christ were expected to conform to the usages and regulations of the gradually self-exalting hierarchy. Error, always more popular than truth, when exalted to influence and power, hunted down, proscribed and made disreputable the truth, and all who held it. This was the time when, as pictured in Revelation, the true Church, woman, fled into the wilderness, into solitude (Rev. 12: 6), an outcast because of her fidelity to the truth, and to the true Lord and Head of the Church. In this time, when apostates were being exalted as princes, the true, humble saints were experiencing what the Lord had warned them, and all who will live godly in this present time, to expect, persecution. The mother-in-law was against the daughter-in-law, father against son, and brother against brother; and a man's foes were often indeed they of his own household. Could anything be conceived of more likely to wear out or crush the saints of the Most High than such a course, persisted in for centuries?

To gain an idea of the ferocity and relentlessness of this persecution, we must again turn to the pages of history.

The persecutions of the Christians under Pagan Rome were not worthy of comparison with those under Papal Rome, being less frequent, more limited in extent and much less severe. It is stated, on the authority of the early Christians, that the majority of the Roman magistrates who exercised in the provinces the authority of the emperor, or of the senate, and in whose hands was the power of life and death, behaved like men of polished manners and liberal education, who respected the rules of justice. They frequently declined the odious task of persecution, dismissed charges against the Christians with contempt, as Pilate and Herod attempted to do in the case of our Lord (Luke 23: 14-16, 20, 22; Matt. 27: 24), or suggested to accused Christians some legal evasion. When possible, they used their power much oftener for the relief than for the oppression of Christians; and the Pagan tribunals were often their surest refuge against their Jewish accusers.* The cruel persecution under the execrable tyrant Nero, who burned some of the Christians to divert public suspicion from himself, forms one of the darkest pages in the history of Pagan Rome; but his victims were comparatively few. The victims of Pagan persecution were not communities generally, but prominent individuals. These persecutions of leading representatives, even, were not so much a fixed, persistent determination of opposition on the part of the government as a result of uncontrollable popular clamor, awakened by superstition, which it seemed to the rulers necessary to satisfy in the interest of peace and order. Several instances illustrative of this are found in the career of the Apostle Paul, as well as of other apostles (Acts 19: 35-41; 25: 24-27; 26: 2, 3, 28). Even the more general persecutions, under the Roman emperors, lasted for but brief periods, except that under Diocletian, which continued with varying severity for ten years. Between these persecutions were often long periods of peace and quiet. Under the emperors, though greatly harassed, Christianity was not worn out, but, as we have seen, it greatly prospered.

How different the persecutions of Papacy, which laid hold not only of prominent opposers but of all, and whose persecutions lasted not for a few months only, but incessantly! What under Pagan emperors had been a passing rage or frenzy, under the popes was reduced to a regular system, animated by religious fanaticism and scheming ambition—and inspired with a Satanic zeal, energy and cruelty unparalleled in the annals of history. The apostate church laid aside the sword of the spirit, and, grasping the arm of the empire, turned its carnal weapons with relentless fury upon every weaker opponent that stood in the way of its ambition; while it courted, flattered and deceived those in authority until it gained their confidence and usurped their place and power.

Both heathenism and heresy then became the subjects of persecution—especially the latter. The so-called Christian clergy, says Edgar, "misapplied the laws of the Jewish theocracy, and the transactions of the Jewish annals, for the unchristian and base purpose of awakening the demon of persecution against the mouldering remains of Grecian and Roman superstition ... They dissolved the ancient fabric of Polytheism and transferred its revenues to the use of the church, the state and the army ... Gentilism was expelled from the Roman territory ... Coercion in general was substituted for conviction, and terror for the gospel. One blushes to read of a Symmachus and a Libanius, two heathen orators, pleading for reason and persuasion in the propagation of religion, whilst a Theodosius and an Ambrosius, a Christian emperor, and a Christian bishop, urge violence and constraint."

Upon the accession of Constantine to the sovereignty of Rome, he was inclined to tolerate all religions, as was shown by the celebrated edict of Milan, which granted religious freedom to every individual of the Roman empire. Such a measure should have been hailed with joy by the Christian Church, which had so longed for liberty under previous persecutions; but such was not the case. The true spirit of Christianity had departed, and now the ambition of the church was to exalt itself as rapidly as possible by crushing out every spark of liberty and subduing all things to itself. Accordingly, says Gibbon,* "His [Constantine's] ecclesiastical ministers soon contrived to reduce the impartiality of the magistrate, and to awaken the zeal of the proselyte ... and he extinguished the hope of peace and toleration, from the moment that he assembled three hundred bishops within the walls of the palace." The emperor was there persuaded to declare that those who resisted the judgment of this clerical body in matters of faith should prepare themselves for immediate exile. And their decisions were declared to be of divine authority. This spirit of intolerance soon ripened into bitter and relentless persecution. Constantine issued two penal laws against heresy, and his example was followed by succeeding emperors, Valentinian, Gratian, Theodosius, Arcadius and Honorius. Theodosius published fifteen, Arcadius twelve, and Honorius no less than eighteen of these statutes. These are recorded in the Theodosian and in the Justinian codes, to the disgrace of their priestly and imperial authors.

What Antichrist was pleased to call heresy, much of which was truth and righteousness endeavoring to hold a footing, was classed as worse than infidelity, and both were opposed by kings, emperors and theologians; and both were persecuted, especially the former, by the Inquisition. When, about the beginning of the thirteenth century, there came a revival of learning, and men began to awaken from the sleep and troubled dreams of the dark ages, those from whose minds the truth had not been entirely eradicated were stimulated, and the standard of truth was raised in opposition to the grosser errors of Antichrist. Then the persecuting spirit of Antichrist was aroused to furious action, to crush out the opposition.

Kings and princes who trembled for the security of their crowns, if they to any extent incurred the pope's displeasure, and whose realms might be laid under a dreaded interdict, should they or their people refuse to render absolute obedience to the pope's commands, were sworn to exterminate heresy, and admonished to purify their provinces from heretical perversity, on the pain of having their dominions wrested from them; and those barons who neglected to aid in the work of persecution forfeited their estates. Kings and princes, therefore, were not tardy in their efforts to comply with the mandates of the Papacy, and the barons and their retainers were at their service, to aid in the work of destruction.

Even before this awakening, as early as the year 630, the Council of Toledo compelled the king of Spain, on his accession to the throne, to swear to tolerate no heretical subjects in the Spanish dominions; and it was declared that the sovereign who should violate such oath would "be accursed in the sight of the everlasting God, and become the fuel of eternal fire." But the awful import of such demands was much more fully realized when the awakening began, and when Antichrist had obtained the maximum of his power.

The Council of Oxford in 1160 consigned a company of Waldenses, who had emigrated from Gascony to England, to the secular arm for punishment. Accordingly, King Henry II ordered them, men and women, to be publicly whipped, branded on the cheek with a red-hot iron, and driven, half-naked, out of the city in the dead of winter; and none were permitted to show them pity or to grant them the slightest favor.

Frederick, the emperor of Germany, A.D. 1224, sentenced heretics of every description, alive, to the flames, their property to confiscation, and their posterity, unless they became persecutors, to infamy. Louis, king of France, A.D. 1228, published laws for the extirpation of heresy, and enforced their execution. He forced Raymond, Count of Toulouse, to undertake the extermination of heresy from his dominions without sparing friend or vassal.

From the earliest encroachments of the power which by degrees developed into the papal system, resistance was made; but that resistance was offered only by a faithful few, whose influence made little impression on the overwhelming tide of worldliness that swept in upon the church. Gradually, as they discerned the error, some quietly withdrew themselves from the great apostasy, to worship God according to the dictates of conscience, even at the risk of persecution. Notable among these were some, afterward called Waldenses, Albigenses, Wycliffites and Huguenots. These, though called by several names had, so far as we can judge, a common origin and a common faith. "Waldensianism," says Rainerous (3.4), the noted Inquisitor of the thirteenth century, "is the ancientest heresy; and existed, according to some, from the days of [pope] Sylvester, and according to others, from the days of the apostles." Sylvester was pope when Constantine was emperor and confessed Christianity; and thus we see that the truth was not without its adherents from the first, who, though humble and unpopular, resolutely resisted Papacy and the papal doctrines of purgatory, image-worship, invocation of saints, worship of the Virgin Mary, prayer for the dead, transubstantiation, celibacy of the clergy, indulgences, mass, etc., and discountenanced pilgrimages, festivals, the burning of incense, sacred burial, the use of holy water, sacerdotal vestments, monachism, etc., and held that the teaching of the Sacred Scriptures should be received, in opposition to the traditions and claims of the Church of Rome. They regarded the pope as the head of all errors, and claimed that the remission of sins is obtained through the merits of the Lord Jesus, only.

The faith and works of this people were a stand for reformation, and a protest against error, long before the days of Luther; and they, and other opposers of Romanism, were hunted and hated and persecuted with pitiless fury, by papal emissaries. The Waldenses and Albigenses were the most numerous bodies of Protestants against Papacy; and when the literary awakening of the thirteenth century came, it was mainly from these that the truth shone out, though reflected and intensified in utterance by Wycliffe, Huss, Luther, and others. And their doctrines, backed by simplicity and morality, shone out with the greater luster in contrast to the pompous pride and flagrant immoralities of the then exalted Papacy.

Then it was that popes, councils, theologians, kings, crusaders and inquisitors combined their fiendish powers to exterminate every opponent, and to extinguish the faintest rays of dawning light. Pope Innocent III first sent missionaries to the districts in which the doctrines of the Albigenses had gained foothold, to preach Romanism, work miracles, etc.; but, finding these efforts unavailing, he proclaimed a crusade against them and offered to all who would engage in it the pardon of all sins and an immediate passport to heaven without passing through purgatory. With full faith in the pope's power to bestow the promised rewards, half a million men, French, German and Italian, rallied around the standard of the cross, for the defence of Catholicism and the extinction of heresy. Then followed a series of battles and sieges covering a space of twenty years. The city of Beziers was stormed and taken in 1209, and the citizens, without regard for age or sex, perished by the sword to the number of sixty thousand, as reported by several historians. The blood of those who fled to churches, and were murdered there by the holy crusaders, drenched the altars and flowed through the streets.

Lavaur was besieged in 1211. The governor was hanged on a gibbet, and his wife was thrown into a well and crushed with stones. The citizens were without discrimination put to death, four hundred being burned alive. The flourishing country of Languedoc was devastated, its cities burned, and its inhabitants swept away by fire and sword. It is estimated that one hundred thousand Albigenses fell in one day; and their bodies were heaped together and burned.

All this rioting in blood and villainy was done in the name of religion: professedly for the glory of God and the honor of the church, but really to uphold Antichrist, sitting in the temple of God [the church], showing himself that he is a god—a powerful one—able to conquer and destroy his enemies. The clergy thanked God for the work of destruction, and a hymn of praise to God for the glorious victory at Lavaur was composed and sung. The dreadful carnage at Beziers was accounted as the visible judgment of heaven on the heresy of Albigensianism. The crusaders attended high mass in the morning, and proceeded throughout the day to waste the country of Languedoc and murder its inhabitants.

Be it remembered, however, that these open crusades, against the Albigenses and Waldenses, were undertaken merely because the so-called heresy had gained a strong hold upon large portions of these communities. It would be a great mistake to suppose that the crusades were the only persecutions: the quiet, steady crushing of individuals, in the aggregate numbering thousands, all over Papacy's wide domain, went steadily on, wearing out the saints of the Most High.

Charles V, Emperor of Germany and King of Spain and the Netherlands, persecuted the friends of the Reformation throughout his extensive dominions. Supported by the Diet of Worms, he proscribed Luther, his followers and his writings; and condemned all who should aid Luther or read his books, to the confiscation of their property, the ban of the empire and the penalty of high treason. In the Netherlands the men who followed Luther were to be beheaded, and the women buried alive or if obstinate to be committed to the flames. Though this wholesale law was suspended, the work of death in all its horrid forms proceeded. The Duke of Alva boasted of the execution of 18,000 Protestants in six weeks. Paolo reckons the number who in the Netherlands were executed on account of their religion at 50,000; and Grotius gives the list of the Belgic martyrs at 100,000. Charles, with his dying breath, exhorted his son, Philip II, to carry on to completion the work of persecution and extermination of heresy which he had begun, which advice Philip was not slow to follow. With fury he stimulated the spirit of persecution, consigning Protestants to the flames without discrimination or pity.

Francis and Henry, the French kings, followed the example of Charles and Philip in their zeal for Catholicism and the extermination of heresy. The massacres of Merindol, Orange and Paris are forcible illustrations of their zeal in the cause of Antichrist. The massacre of Merindol, planned by the French king and approved by the French parliament, was committed to the president, Oppeda, for execution. The president was commissioned to slay the population, burn the towns and demolish the castles of the Waldenses, large numbers of whom resided in that section. Roman Catholic historians admit that in compliance with this commission thousands, including men, women and children, were massacred, twenty-four towns were ruined, and the country was left waste and desolate. Men, women and children fled to the woods and mountains for safety and were pursued and put to the sword. Many who remained in the towns met the same or a worse fate. Five hundred women were thrown into a barn which was set on fire, and when any leaped from the windows they were received on the points of spears. Women were violated and children were murdered in sight of their parents, who were powerless to protect them. Some were dashed over precipices and others were dragged naked through the streets.

The massacre of Orange, 1562, was of a similar character to that of Merindol, and is described with precision by Catholic historians. The Italian army sent by Pope Pius IV. was commanded to slay men, women and children; and the command was executed with terrible cruelty. The defenseless heretics were slain with the sword, precipitated from rocks, thrown on the points of hooks and daggers, hanged, roasted over slow fires and exposed to shame and torture of every description.

The massacre in Paris on St. Bartholomew's day, August 24, 1572, equaled in cruelty, but exceeded in extent, the massacres of Merindol and Orange. This has also been detailed by Catholic historians, one of whom, Thuanus, stigmatizes it as "a ferocious cruelty, without a parallel in all antiquity." The tolling of the tocsin at midnight, August 23, gave the signal of destruction, and the dreadful scenes of Merindol and Orange began to be re-enacted against the hated Huguenots. The carnival of death lasted seven days; the city flowed with human blood; the court was heaped with the slain on which the king and queen gazed with extreme satisfaction. The body of Admiral Coligny was dragged through the streets; and the river Seine was covered with floating dead bodies. Accounts of the number killed vary from 5,000 to 10,000. The work of destruction was not confined to Paris, but extended very widely through the French nation. On the preceding day special messengers were dispatched in every direction ordering a general massacre of the Huguenots. The same scenes were accordingly enacted in nearly all the provinces, and estimates of the number slain vary from 25,000 to 70,000.

In these dreadful scenes of carnage Antichrist found extreme satisfaction. The pope and his court exulted at the victory of Catholicism over Waldensianism at Merindol, and the impious Oppeda was styled "The defender of the faith and the hero of Christianity." The French king went to mass, and returned solemn thanks to God for the victory over and massacre of the Huguenots at Paris. This carnage, sanctioned by the French king and parliament and Roman Catholic subjects, was probably at the direct instigation of the pope and the Papal Hierarchy. That it was highly approved, at least, is evident from the fact that at the Papal Court the news was received with great rejoicing. The pope, Gregory XIII, went in grand procession to the church of Saint Louis to render thanks to God for the signal victory. He at once proclaimed a jubilee, and sent a nuncio to the French court, who in the pope's name praised "the exploit so long meditated and so happily executed for the good of religion." A medal was struck by the king in memory of the massacre, bearing the inscription, "Pietas Excitavit Justitiam," Piety Aroused Justice.

Medals commemorative of the event were also coined in the Papal mint by order of the pope. One of these is now on exhibition in Memorial Hall, Philadelphia, Pa. Its face presents a raised figure of the pope and the abbreviated inscription, Gregorius XIII, Pontifex Maximus Anno I, the first year of his pontificate, A.D. 1572. On the reverse side of this medal is a representation of a destroying angel, bearing in the left hand a cross, and in the right hand a sword, before whom, prostrate and fleeing, a band of Huguenots, men, women and children, is represented, whose faces and figures express horror and despair. Under this are the words, Ugonottorum Strages 1572, which signifies, The slaughter of the Huguenots, 1572.

A picture of the St. Bartholomew Massacre was hung in the Vatican. It had a scroll at the top, on which was inscribed, in Latin, words signifying, The Pontiff approves the fate of Coligny. Coligny was a prominent leader of the Huguenots and one of the first to fall. After he was killed, his head was severed from his body and sent to the queen (who had it embalmed and sent as a trophy to Rome), while his body was dragged by the populace through the streets of Paris. The king was shortly afterward seized with the horrors of remorse from which he never recovered. It is recorded that to his confidential physician he said, "I know not what has happened to me, but in mind and body I am shaking as in a fever. It seems to me every moment, whether waking or sleeping, that mangled bodies present themselves to me with hideous faces and covered with blood." He died in great agony, covered with a bloody sweat.

In 1641 Antichrist proclaimed a war of religion in Ireland, and called on the people to massacre the Protestants by every means in their power. The deluded people heard the command as the voice of God, and were not slow to execute their commission. Protestant blood flowed freely throughout Ireland, houses were reduced to ashes, towns and villages were almost destroyed. Some were forced to murder their own relatives, and then to take their own lives, the last words that fell upon their ears being the assurances of priests, that their dying agonies were but the beginnings of eternal torment. Thousands died of cold and hunger, while endeavoring to emigrate to other lands. In Cavan, the road for twelve miles together was stained with the bloody tracks of wounded fugitives; sixty children were abandoned in the flight, by parents fiercely hunted, and it was declared that any who should in any way help these little ones should be buried by their sides. Seventeen adults were buried alive at Fermaugh, and seventy-two at Kilkenny. In the province of Ulster alone, over 154,000 Protestants were either massacred or expelled from Ireland.

O'Niel, the primate of Ireland, pronounced this a pious and lawful war, and Pope Urban VIII issued a bull dated May 1643, granting full and absolute remission of all their sins to those who had taken part in "gallantly doing what in them lay, to extirpate and wholly root out the pestiferous leaven of heretical contagion."

THE INQUISITION OR "HOLY OFFICE."

To Dominic, the leading spirit in this crusade, is ascribed the honor of inventing the infernal Inquisition, though Benedict, who is zealous in ascribing to Saint Dominic the honor of being the first Inquisitor General, is doubtful as to whether the idea first suggested itself to Pope Innocent or to Saint Dominic. It was first established by Pope Innocent III, in 1204.

St. Dominic was a monster, devoid of every feeling of compassion, who seemed to find his chief delight in scenes of torture and misery. During the crusade against the Albigenses, with a crucifix in his hand he led and encouraged the holy warriors to deeds of death and destruction. The Inquisition or Holy Office is today a tribunal in the Roman Catholic Church for the discovery, repression and punishment of heresy and other offences against the Church of Rome.* But in Dominic's day it had no legal tribunal, nor were the instruments of torment brought to the perfection exhibited in later days. Nevertheless, Dominic, without such machinery, found abundant means of torture, in dislocating joints, tearing nerves, and lacerating the limbs of his victims, and in burning at the stake those whose convictions were unshaken by other means, and who would not renounce their faith and liberties.

Under his commission from Pope Innocent, to punish with confiscation, banishment and death the heretics who would not receive his gospel, Dominic stimulated the civil magistracy and populace to massacre the heretical Waldenses; and he at one time committed one hundred and eighty Albigenses to the flames. It was for such faithfulness in the service of Antichrist that he was canonized a saint, and is today adored and prayed to by Roman Catholics. The Roman Breviary (somewhat like a Prayer Book), referring to St. Dominic, lauds "his merits and doctrines which enlightened the church, his ingenuity and virtue which overthrew the Tolossan heretics, and his many miracles which extended even to the raising of the dead." The Roman Missal, which embraces the service connected with the administration of the Lord's supper, eulogizes his merits, and prays for temporal aid through his intercession. Thus Antichrist still upholds and honors its faithful heroes.

*The Chair of St. Peter, page 589.

It would be impossible briefly to convey any adequate conception of the horrors of the Inquisition, or of the dreadful fear which it inspired among the people. Those not loud in their praise of Antichrist, or who ventured a criticism of his methods, were suspected of heresy; and such persons, without warning or redress, were liable to imprisonment in a dungeon for an indefinite time until a convenient season for trial, both the accuser and the accusation often being equally unknown to them. The proceedings of these trials were conducted secretly, and tortures were often employed to extort confessions. The tortures inflicted were almost too appalling to be credited in this age and land of freedom, yet their reality is confirmed by evidence which even Catholic historians cannot deny; and their fruitless attempts to apologize for them only tend to substantiate the evidence. Instruments of torture, relics of the Inquisition, are still in existence which would render denial unavailing. The "Holy Office" even employed physicians to watch the process of torture and stop it when death seemed likely to relieve the sufferer; and the victim was allowed partially to recover, that the torture might be applied a second or even a third time. These tortures were not always inflicted as punishments for the offence of heresy: they were in general for the purpose of compelling the accused to confess, retract or implicate others, as the case might be.

Even within the present century, after the Inquisition had lost many of its horrors, it was still terrible. The historian of Napoleon's wars, describing the capture of Toledo by his army, incidentally mentions the opening of the Inquisition prison, and says:

"Graves seemed to open, and pale figures like ghosts issued from dungeons which emitted a sepulchral odor. Bushy beards hanging down over the breast, and nails grown like bird's claws, disfigured the skeletons, who with laboring bosoms inhaled, for the first time for a long series of years, the fresh air. Many of them were reduced to cripples, the head inclined forward and the arms and hands hanging down rigid and helpless. They had been confined in dens so low they could not rise up in them, and in spite of all the care of the [army] surgeons many of them expired the same day. On the following day General Lasalle minutely inspected the place, attended by several officers of his staff. The number of machines for torture thrilled even men inured to the battle field, with horror."

"In a recess in a subterranean vault, contiguous to the private hall for examinations, stood a wooden figure made by the hands of monks and representing the Virgin Mary. A gilded glory encompassed her head, and in her right hand she held a banner. It struck all at first sight as suspicious that, notwithstanding the silken robe, descending on each side in ample folds from her shoulders, she should wear a sort of cuirass. On closer scrutiny it appeared that the fore part of the body was stuck full of extremely sharp nails and small narrow knife-blades, with the points of both turned toward the spectator. The arms and hands were jointed, and machinery behind the partition set the figure in motion. One of the servants of the Inquisition was compelled by command of the General to work the machine as he termed it. When the figure extended her arms, as though to press some one lovingly to her heart, the well-filled knapsack of a Polish grenadier was made to supply the place of a living victim. The statue hugged it closer and closer, and when the attendant, agreeably to orders, made the figure unclasp her arms and return to her former position, the knapsack was perforated to the depth of two or three inches, and remained hanging on the points of the nails and the knife blades."

Racks of various sorts were invented, and applied as means of torture. One of the simplest methods is explained thus: The victim, stripped of all clothing, had his arms fastened behind his back with a hard cord, with which, by the action of a pulley, he was raised off his feet, to which weights were attached. The sufferer was several times let fall, and raised with a jerk, which dislocated the joints of his arms and legs, while the cord by which he was suspended penetrated the quivering flesh to the very bone.

A reminder of such outrages in the name of Christ came to public notice recently. A Bible Society's printing-office in Rome being crowded for space, it rented a large room near the Vatican. A large and peculiar ring in the ceiling attracted attention, and inquiry discovered the fact that the room in which they are now busy printing the Bible, "the sword of the spirit, which is the Word of God," by which Antichrist has already been rendered powerless to oppress and wear out the saints, is the very room once used by the Inquisition as a torture-chamber; the pulley-ring having probably been used to rack many a poor, gagged sufferer.

Those convicted of heresy were sometimes sentenced to what was called an Act of Faith. The ecclesiastical authority transferred the condemned to the secular power, while the clergy, in pretense of mercy, implored the magistracy to show compassion to the condemned, and, holding up the cross, pleaded with the victim to recant and save his present and future life. The magistrates knew well their part, and showed no mercy except to recanters; thus gaining the blessings and titles of Defender of the Faith, and Exterminator of Heretics. The condemned heretic, dressed in a yellow coat variegated with pictures of dogs, serpents, flames and devils, was led to the place of execution, tied to the stake and committed to the flames.

Torquemada, another famous Inquisitor General, furnished a marked illustration of the spirit of Antichrist. Roman Catholic writers admit that he caused ten thousand two hundred and twenty persons, men and women, to be burned alive. Llorente, who was for three years the Secretary General of the Inquisition, and had access to all the documentary evidences, in his Reports, published in 1817 (4 vols.), shows that between the years 1481 and 1808, by order of this "Holy Office" alone, no less than 31,912 persons were burned alive, and nearly 300,000 tortured and condemned to serve penances. Every Catholic country in Europe, Asia and America had its Inquisition.

We cannot here trace Antichrist's persecutions of everything resembling reforms, liberty of conscience or political freedom. Suffice it to say, this persecution extended to every country where Papacy had a footing: to Germany, Holland, Poland, Italy, England, Ireland, Scotland, France, Spain, Portugal, Abyssinia, India, Cuba, Mexico and some South American states. Space forbids our reciting individual cases which would serve to show that many of the martyrs were truly saints and heroes, who under the most horrible sufferings had grace sufficient, and were often enabled, while dying by inches, to sing hymns of praise and thanks to the true Head of the true Church, and, like him, to pray for their enemies who, as he had foretold, persecuted them for his sake.*

Neither will we, for the same reasons, particularize all the awful, sickening, soul-harrowing tortures, inflicted upon some of the Lord's jewels because of faithfulness to their convictions. It is estimated, by those who seemingly have given the subject thorough investigation, that Papacy, during the past thirteen hundred years, has, directly or indirectly, caused the death of fifty millions of people. And it may safely be said that human and Satanic ingenuity were taxed to their utmost to invent new and horrible tortures, for both the political and religious opponents of Antichrist; the latter, heretics, being pursued with tenfold fury. Besides the common forms of persecution and death, such as racking, burning, drowning, stabbing, starving and shooting with arrows and guns, fiendish hearts meditated how the most delicate and sensitive parts of the body, capable of the most excruciating pain, could be affected; molten lead was poured into the ears; tongues were cut out and lead poured into the mouths; wheels were arranged with knife blades attached so that the victim could be slowly chopped to pieces; claws and pincers were made red hot and used upon sensitive parts of the body; eyes were gouged out; finger nails were pulled off with red hot irons; holes, by which the victim was tied up, were bored through the heels; some were forced to jump from eminences onto long spikes fixed below, where, quivering with pain, they slowly died. The mouths of some were filled with gunpowder, which when fired, blew their heads to pieces; others were hammered to pieces on anvils; others, attached to bellows, had air pumped into them until they burst; others were choked to death with mangled pieces of their own bodies; others with urine, excrement, etc., etc.

Some of these fiendish atrocities would be quite beyond belief were they not well authenticated. They serve to show to what awful depravity the human heart can descend; and how blind to right, and every good instinct, men can become under the influence of false, counterfeit religion. The spirit of Antichrist degraded and debased the world as the spirit of the true Christ and the power and influence of the true Kingdom of God would have elevated and ennobled men's hearts and actions, and as they will do, during the Millennium. This is to a slight extent illustrated by the advance in civilization, and the increase of justice and mercy, since the power of Antichrist began to wane, and the word of God began to be heard, and heeded, even slightly.

Truly, no device of which we can conceive could have been better calculated to deceive and oppress mankind. Advantage has been taken of every depraved disposition and weakness of fallen men; every base passion has been stimulated and appealed to, and the gratification of those passions rewarded. The vicious were thus allured and enlisted as its devotees, while those of nobler cast were engaged by other means—by an outward and hypocritical show of piety, self-denial and charity manifested in its monastic institutions, but which served only to lead many such far from the paths of virtue. The gay and the frivolous found ample satisfaction in its parade and show, its pomp and ceremony; the enterprising and chivalrous in its missions and crusades; the profligate in its indulgences; and the cruel bigot in its enterprises for oppressing its opponents.

In horror and wonder we ask ourselves, Why did kings, and princes, and emperors, and the people at large, permit such atrocities? Why did they not arise long ago and smite down Antichrist? The answer is found in the Scriptures (Rev. 18: 3): The nations were drunk (stupefied), they lost their senses in drinking the mixed wine (doctrine, false and true mixed) given them by the apostate church. They were deceived by the claims of Papacy. And, truth to tell, they are only partly aroused from their stupor yet; for though the ambassadors of kings, falling before the pope, do not as of old address him as the "Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world," nor think of him as "a God with power over all things on earth and in heaven," yet they are still far from realizing the truth, that Papacy has been, and is, Satan's counterfeit of the true Kingdom.

While kings and soldiers wearied of such inhuman work, it was not so with the holy (?) hierarchy; and we find the General Council of Sienna, A.D. 1423, declaring that the spread of heresy in different parts of the world was due to the remissness of the Inquisitors—to the offence of God, the injury of Catholicism and the perdition of souls. Princes were admonished, by the mercy of God, to exterminate heresy if they would escape divine vengeance; and plenary indulgences were granted to all who would engage in the work of destruction or provide arms for the purpose. These enactments were published in the churches every Sabbath. And Roman Catholic theologians and historians are by no means few who have wielded their pens in the unholy cause of justifying, recommending and praising the persecution of heresy. Bellarmine, for instance, declares that the apostles "abstained from calling in the secular arm only because there were in their day no Christian princes." Doctor Dens, a celebrated Roman Catholic theologian, published a work on theology in 1758, which is regarded by papists today as standard authority, especially in their colleges, where it ranks as Blackstone does on English civil law. This work breathes the spirit of persecution throughout. It condemns the patrons of heresy to confiscation of goods, banishment from the country, confinement in prison, infliction of death and deprivation of Christian burial.

One of the authorized curses published in the Romish Pontifical, to be used against Protestants, reads as follows:

"May God Almighty and all his saints curse them with the curse with which the devil and his angels are cursed. Let them be destroyed out of the land of the living. Let the vilest of deaths come upon them, and let them descend alive into the pit. Let their seed be destroyed from the earth; by hunger, and thirst, and nakedness and all distress let them perish. May they have all misery and pestilence and torment. Let all they have be cursed. Always and everywhere let them be cursed. Speaking and silent let them be cursed. Within and without let them be cursed. From the crown of the head to the sole of the foot let them be cursed. Let their eyes become blind, let their ears become deaf, let their mouth become dumb, let their tongue cleave to their jaws, let not their hands handle, let not their feet walk. Let all the members of their body be cursed. Cursed let them be, standing or lying, from this time forth forever; and thus let their candle be extinguished in the presence of God, at the day of judgment. Let their burial be with dogs and asses. Let hungry wolves devour their corpses. Let the devil and his angels be their companions forever. Amen, Amen; so be it, so let it be."

This is the spirit of Papacy; and all who possess the spirit of the true Christ should readily recognize so base a counterfeit.

Since errors of doctrine lie at the very foundation of all these errors of conduct, it cannot be doubted that if circumstances were again favorable, the doctrines being unchanged, their bad spirit and bad fruits would shortly again appear, in similar acts of injustice, oppression, superstition, ignorance and persecution; and any and all means conceivable would be resorted to, for restoring, upholding and extending the counterfeit Kingdom of God. In proof of this, let us cite a few incidents which recently chanced to come to our attention, as follows:

In Ahuehuetitlan, Guerro, Mexico, August 7, 1887, a native Protestant missionary, named Abraham Gomez, and two assistants, were murdered in cold blood by natives, at the instigation of a Roman Catholic priest, Father Vergara, who, when celebrating mass the day previous, is reported to have urged his people to "make an example of the minister of Satan" who had come among them; adding, that they might kill him with all safety, counting upon protection from the chief of police as well as the priest. The priest's word was law to the benighted people, and to the civil authorities. The mangled body of the poor missionary, shot and hacked to pieces, was dragged through the streets, subject to all sorts of indignities, a warning to others. For this no redress could be obtained.

The New York Independent having called attention to this bloody massacre, the following retort was made by the Freeman, New York Roman Catholic journal:

"They [Protestant missionaries] see honest people kneel, at the sound of the Angelus, in honor of the Annunciation and the Incarnation. The Bible, they say, will soon wipe out such 'superstition.' A light burns before an image of the Mother of God. 'Ha!' cries the missionary, 'We shall soon teach the benighted to break that symbol!' and so on. If the killing of a few missionaries of this kind would keep others like them at home, we should almost (we Papists are so wicked!) be inclined to say: 'On with the dance; let joy be unconfined.' "

A minister by the name of C. G. Moule tells a painful story, which has gone the rounds of the press, of the persecution, in Madeira, of Robert Kelley and the converts resulting from his labors, who, with their children, nearly one thousand persons in all, suffered expatriation as the penalty for receiving a crumb of truth.

In Protestant Prussia, so called, Pastor Thummel has been arrested for insulting the Roman Catholic Church. He published a pamphlet criticizing Papacy, in which one of the "insulting" remarks was to the effect that Papacy is an apostasy "built upon superstition and idolatry."

Recently the Caroline Islands were in dispute between Prussia and Spain, and the pope got himself appointed arbitrator or judge, to settle the dispute. (Much in this reminds one of his former power and policy as arbiter or supreme judge of nations.) The pope decided in favor of Spain. A man-of-war, fifty soldiers and six priests were at once dispatched by Spain; and on their arrival Mr. Doane, an American missionary, was made a prisoner and cut off from all intercourse with his converts, without cause, except that he refused to surrender his mission work and property to the priests; and because, the islands now belonging to Spain, and Spain belonging to the pope, none but the pope's religion could be tolerated.

A gentleman, formerly a Roman Catholic, and a friend of the writer, states that recently, when traveling in South America, he was assaulted with stones and obliged to flee for his life, because he would neither uncover his head nor kneel with the multitude, when the Romish priests bearing the crucifix and host passed along the streets. And a similar case, in which three Americans were struck by the priests, mobbed by the people and arrested by the police in the city of Madrid, Spain, for a like offence, is no doubt still fresh in the minds of many who read the daily papers.

The Converted Catholic quotes as follows from the Watchman, a Roman Catholic journal published at St. Louis, Mo.:

"Protestantism! We would draw and quarter it. We would impale it and hang it up for crows' nests. We would tear it with pinchers and fire it with hot irons. We would fill it with molten lead, and sink it in hell-fire a hundred fathoms deep."

In the light of the past, it is entirely probable that with such a spirit, if the power were possessed, the Editor of the Watchman would soon extend his threats beyond "Protestant-ism" to the persons of Protestants.

In Barcelona, Spain, by order of the government, a large number of copies of the Bible were recently burned—of course at the instigation of the Church of Rome. The following, translated from the Catholic Banner, the organ of Papacy there, shows that they approved and appreciated the action. It said:

"Thank God, we have at last turned toward the times when those who propagated heretical doctrines were punished with exemplary punishment. The re-establishment of the Holy Tribunal of the Inquisition must soon take place. Its reign will be more glorious and fruitful in results than in the past. Our Catholic heart overflows with faith and enthusiasm; and the immense joy we experience, as we begin to reap the fruit of our present campaign, exceeds all imagination. What a day of pleasure will that be for us, when we see Anti-clericals writhing in the flames of Inquisition!"

To encourage another crusade, this paper says: "We believe it right to publish the names of those holy men under whose hands so many sinners suffered, that good Catholics may venerate their memory:

THE PAPAL MILLENNIUM.

As the true Kingdom of the true Christ is to last a thousand years, so the Papal counterfeit looks back upon the period of its greatest prosperity, which began A.D. 800 and closed in the dawn of the present century, as the fulfillment of the Millennial reign foretold in Rev. 20. And the period since, in which Papacy has gradually lost all of its temporal power, suffered many indignities from nations formerly its supporters, and been greatly despoiled of territories, incomes and liberties long claimed and possessed, Romanists regard as the little season of Rev. 20: 3, 7, 8, at the close of the Millennium, during which Satan was to be loosed.

And the dates which mark the beginning and the close of Papacy's Millennium of ignorance, superstition and fraud are clearly shown in history. A Roman Catholic writer* thus refers to the beginning of this religious empire: "The coronation of Charlemagne as Emperor of the West, by Pope Leo, A.D. 800, was really the commencement of the Holy Roman Empire."†

Although Papacy was organized, as a religious system, long before, and was even set up in temporal power in 539, yet it was Charlemagne who first actually bestowed and formally recognized the temporal dominion of the pope. As Charlemagne was the first emperor over the Holy Roman Empire, A.D. 800, so Francis II, was the last, and he voluntarily surrendered his title in 1806.‡ As, prior to the year 800, Papacy was rising, supported by the Roman beast (people) and by its horns (powers),

*The Chair of St. Peter.

†The Holy Roman Empire was the title of the political institution of the middle ages. It had its start in Charlemagne. Fisher's Universal History, 262, describes it thus: "In theory it was the union of the world-state and the world-church, an undivided community under Emperor and Pope, its heaven-appointed secular and spiritual heads." Since the popes, as in Christ's stead, anointed the emperors, they were its real heads.

‡By the battle of Marengo, 1800, and of Austerlitz, 1805, Germany was twice laid prostrate at the feet of Napoleon. A result of the latter defeat was the erection of the Confederation of the Rhine, under the protectorate of the French ruler. This event put an end to the old German or Roman Empire, after a duration of a thousand years.—White's Universal History, 508.

so since 1800 it has been cast off from temporal authority over kings and peoples, and has been torn and pillaged by those who formerly gave it support (Rev. 17: 16, 17). Today, though still the recipient of honors, and still possessed of a wide influence over the consciences of the people, Papacy bemoans its loss of everything resembling temporal dominion.

The careful student will note four periods, more or less distinctly marked, in the development and exaltation of Antichrist, and the same number distinctly marking its fall. In its development the four dates are:

1st. In Paul's day, about 50, a beginning of the secret working of the iniquitous ambition was the start.

2nd. Papacy, the Man of Sin, was organized as a hierarchy, i.e., the church came to an organized condition, and the popes came to be recognized as the Head, representing Christ, reigning in the church and over the nations, gradually, from about 300 to 494.*

3rd. The time when the popes began to exercise civil authority and power, as will hereafter be shown, A.D. 539 (Vol. III Chap. iii).

*The popedom struggled long for mastery as the head of the church, and gradually obtained recognition and dominion. That this dominion was generally recognized by 494, is clearly shown by the Romanist writer of The Chair of St. Peter, page 128. After giving in detail acknowledgments of the Roman Bishop as supreme pontiff by various councils, bishops, emperors, etc., he summarizes thus:

"These words were written as far back as the year of our Lord 494 ... On the whole, then, it is clear, from the foregoing authentic evidence, that the primacy of the Chair of St. Peter had so far developed itself in the fifth century, that the pope was then universally regarded as the center of Christian unity—the Supreme Ruler and Teacher of God's church, the Prince of Bishops, the Final Arbiter of appeals in ecclesiastical causes from all parts of the world, and the Judge and Moderator of General Councils."

4th. The time of exaltation, A.D. 800, when, as already shown, the Holy Roman Empire was formed, and the pope, crowning Charlemagne emperor, was recognized as himself King of kings, Emperor of emperors, "another God, on earth."

The four periods of the fall of papal influence are as follows:

1st. The period of the Reformation, which may be said to have had its start in 1309, in the writings of Marsiglio, followed by Wiclif, Huss, Luther, etc.

2nd. The period of Napoleon's success, the degradation of the popes, and the casting aside finally of the title "Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire," by Francis II, A.D. 1800-1806.

3rd. The final rejection of the pope as ruler over Rome and the so-called Papal States of Italy, by the pope's subjects and the King of Italy, 1870, by which Antichrist is left without the slightest temporal authority.

4th. The final extinction of this counterfeit hierarchy, near the close of the "Day of Wrath" and judgment already begun, which will close, as shown by the "Times of the Gentiles," with the year 1914.

IS THERE ROOM FOR DOUBT?

We have traced Antichrist's rise, out of an apostasy or falling away in the Christian Church; we have heard its blasphemous claim to be Christ's Kingdom and that its pope is Vicegerent of Christ, another God, on earth; we have heard its great swelling words of blasphemy, arrogating to itself titles and powers belonging to the true Lord or lords and King of kings; we have seen how terribly it fulfilled the prediction, He shall wear out the saints; we have seen that the truth, crushed and deformed, would have been completely buried under error, superstition and priestcraft, had not the Lord, at the proper moment, prevented by raising up reformers, thus helping his saints, as it is written, "They that understand among the people shall instruct many; yet they shall fall by the sword, and by flame, by captivity, and by spoil, many days. Now when they shall fall, they shall be holpen with a little help"—Dan. 11: 33, 34.

In view of all this testimony, is there room for doubt that it was concerning Papacy that the apostles and prophets were inspired to write, describing minutely as they do its prominent characteristics? We think there should remain no doubt in any unbiased mind that Papacy is the Antichrist, the Man of Sin; and that no one man could possibly fulfill the predictions. Papacy's unparalleled success, as a counterfeit Christ, deceiving the whole world, has amply fulfilled our Master's prediction, when, after referring to his own rejection, he said, "If another shall come in his own name, him ye will receive"—John 5: 43.

It will be observed, no doubt with surprise, by many, that in our examination of the subject we have in general omitted reference to villainies, gross immoralities, on the part of the popes and other officials, and to the dark deeds of expediency practiced by the Jesuits and other secret orders, who do all sorts of detective work for Papacy. We have omitted these intentionally, not because they are untrue, for even Roman Catholic writers acknowledge many of them; but because our line of argument does not require these evidences. We have shown that the Papal Hierarchy (even if it were composed of the most moral and upright of men, which is not the case, as all history testifies) is the Man of Sin, the Antichrist, the counterfeit and misrepresentative of Christ's Millennial Kingdom, skillfully arranged so as to deceive.

The words of Macaulay, the English historian, serve to show that some without special prophetic light can see Papacy's wonderful system:—the counterfeit of the most wonderful of all systems, the Kingdom of God, yet to come.

He says: "It is impossible to deny that the polity of the Church of Rome is the very masterpiece of human [we would say Satanic] wisdom. In truth, nothing but such a polity could, against such assaults, have borne up such doctrines. The experience of twelve hundred eventful years, the ingenuity and patient care of forty generations of statesmen, have improved that polity to such perfection, that among the contrivances of political ability it occupies the highest place."

ANTICHRIST'S FINAL END.

We have traced Papacy to the present time, to the Day of the Lord—the time of Immanuel's presence. This Man of Sin has been developed, has done his awful work, has been smitten with the sword of the Spirit—the Word of God. The spirit of Christ's mouth has rendered him powerless to persecute the saints openly and generally, no matter how strong the desire; and now we ask, What next? What says the Apostle concerning Antichrist's end?

In 2 Thes. 2: 8-12, the Apostle Paul declares concerning Antichrist: "Whom the Lord Jesus will consume with the spirit of his mouth, and annihilate with the bright shining of his presence." The light of truth is to penetrate every subject. By exposing rights and wrongs it will lead into the great struggle between these principles, and between the human exponents of each, causing the time of trouble and wrath. In this struggle, wrong and evil shall fall, and right and truth shall triumph. Among other evils now to be finally and utterly destroyed is Antichrist, with which nearly every evil, of theory and practice, is more or less directly connected. And it will be this bright-shining, this sunlight from the Lord's presence, which will produce the day of trouble, because of and in which Antichrist, with every other evil system, will be destroyed. "Whose presence is with [accompanied by or during] an energetic operation of Satan [Satanic energy and action] with all power, and signs, and lying delusions, and with every iniquitous deception for those perishing; because they did not receive the love of the truth, that they might be preserved. And for this reason God will send to them a deluding power, that they might believe the error: so that all not believing the truth, but taking pleasure in iniquity, may be judged" unworthy to share the Millennial Kingdom as joint-heirs with Christ.

We understand these words to imply that in the time of the Lord's presence (since 1874), through this Antichrist system (one of the principal of Satan's agencies for deceiving and controlling the world), as well as through all his other agencies, the devil will make a most desperate resistance to the new order of things about to be established. He will take advantage of every little circumstance, and all the inherited weaknesses and selfishness of the human family, to enlist their hearts and hands and pens in this final struggle against liberty and the full elucidation of truth. Prejudices will be enkindled where, if the truth were clearly seen, none would exist; and passionate zeal will be evoked, and partisan unions formed, which will deceive and mislead many. And this will be so, not because God has not made the truth clear enough to guide all the fully consecrated, but because those who will be deceived were not sufficiently in earnest in seeking out and using the truth provided as meat in due season. And thus it will be manifested that the class misled received not the truth in the love of it, but rather through custom, formality or fear. And the Apostle's assurance seems to be that, in this final death-struggle of Antichrist, notwithstanding he shall seem to gain increased power in the world by new stratagems, deceptions and combinations, yet the true Lord of earth, the King of kings, in the time of his presence, will prevail; and shall finally, during the great time of trouble, utterly annihilate Antichrist and destroy forever his power and deceptions.

As to the exact form in which this closing struggle should be expected, we can only make suggestions, based largely upon the symbolic views of the same, given in Revelation. We anticipate the gradual formation throughout the world of two great parties—from both of which the faithful, overcoming saints will stand separate. These two great parties will be composed on the one side of Socialists, Free-thinkers, Infidels, discontents, and true liberty-lovers whose eyes are beginning to open to the facts of the case as they relate both to political and religious mis-government and despotism: on the other side will be gradually associated the opponents of human liberty and equality: Emperors, Kings, Aristocrats; and in close sympathy with these will stand the counterfeit of God's Kingdom, Antichrist, supporting and being supported by earth's civil despots. We expect, too, that Antichrist's policy will be somewhat modified and softened to seek to win back into sympathy and practical co-operation (not actual union) extremists of all Protestant denominations, who even now are panting for a nominal union with each other and with Rome, forgetful that the only true union is that produced and continued by the truth, and not by creeds, conventions and laws. Improbable as this co-operation of Protestants and Catholics may seem to some, we see unmistakable signs of its rapid approach. It is being hastened by the secret workings of Papacy among its people, whereby such politicians as are willing to co-operate with Papacy are assisted into prominent positions in governmental affairs.

Laws may be expected soon through which, gradually, personal liberty will be curtailed, under the plea of necessity and the public welfare; until, one step after another being taken, it will finally be necessary to formulate some simple law of religion; and thus Church and State may be in a measure united, in governing the United States of America. These laws, simple as they can be made, to suit all so-called orthodox, i.e., popular religious views, will be calculated to repress and prevent further growth in grace, and in the knowledge now meat in due season. The plea will probably be, the prevention of socialism, infidelity, and political eruption, of the lower and the independent classes.

Evidently, in the near future, as a part of its trouble, and even before the severity of the great trouble of this day of wrath has burst upon the world and wrecked the entire social fabric of earth (preparatory to the new and better one promised under the true Christ), there will be a severe hour of trial and testing of the truly consecrated Church, much as it was in the days of Papacy's triumph; only now the methods of persecution will be more refined and will comport better with the more civilized methods of the present day: the spikes and pincers and racks will have more the form of sarcasm and denunciations, restrictions of liberties, and social, financial and political boycotting. But concerning this, and the new combinations which Antichrist will form in this final struggle against the establishment of the true Millennial Kingdom, more anon.

In concluding this chapter we desire to again impress our readers with the fact that Papacy is the Antichrist, not because of its moral obliquity, but because it is the counterfeit of the true Christ and the true Kingdom. It is because of a failure to realize this fact that many Protestants will be deceived into co-operation with Papacy in opposition to the true King of Glory.

FAITHFUL UNTIL DEATH.

"Am I a soldier of the cross,
A follower of the Lamb?
And shall I fear to own his cause,
Or blush to speak his name?"

"Must I be borne to Paradise
On flowery beds of ease,
While others fought to win the prize,
And sailed through bloody seas?"

"Are there no foes for me to face?
Must I not stem the flood?
Is this vain world a friend to grace,
To help me on to God?"

"Sure I must fight if I would reign.
Increase my courage, Lord.
I'll bear the toil, endure the pain,
Supported by thy Word.

"Thy saints in all this glorious war
Shall conquer, though they die.
They see the triumph from afar,
By faith they bring it nigh.

"When thine illustrious day shall rise,
And all thy saints shall shine,
And shouts of vict'ry rend the skies,
The glory, Lord, be thine."

STUDY X.

THE TIME IS AT HAND.

NOTHING INTERVENES. THE ESTABLISHMENT OF CHRIST'S KINGDOM, THE WORK NOW IN PROGRESS. THE TESTIMONY OF PROPHECY CONCURS. THE WORLDLY-WISE SEE MUCH. THE WATCHING SAINTS SEE MORE DISTINCTLY. THE IMPORTANCE TO ALL, OF OPEN EYES IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION.

THE TIME IS AT HAND for the establishment of the Redeemer's Kingdom. This is the concurrent testimony of the foregoing chapters. Nothing intervenes. We are already living in the seventh millennium since Oct. 1872. The lease of power to the Gentile kingdoms must terminate with the year 1914. The great antitypical Jubilee, the Times of Restitution of all things, had its beginning in the year 1874, when the presence of the great Restorer was also due. The manner of his return and the character of his work up to the present time are in exact correspondence with the details of prophecy thus far. The closing features of this dispensation, now observed, are in perfect accord with those of its Jewish type. The Elias has come, and is received as foretold; and the predicted curse, the time of trouble, is already impending. The Man of Sin has been revealed in all his hateful deformity, and has almost run his predicted course. The establishment of the long promised Kingdom of Messiah is therefore the great event just before us. Not only so, but its establishment is now in progress. The necessary undermining and overturning of the kingdoms of this world under the prince of darkness, the prince of this world, are now visible to some extent even to the natural eye of the children of this world, but are much more clearly seen, as they should be, by those who look upon transpiring events through the field-glass of God's Word, which at proper focus brings distant matters and results close to view, and enables God's children to recognize the minutiae which the natural eye cannot discern, as well as the leading features which the world's statesmen and philosophers see in but dim outline. Even the worldly-wise can discern the social trouble fomenting, as the dominance of ignorance gives place to greater general knowledge and personal independence. And though they vainly hope for some unknown and unexpected favorable turn of affairs to occur, yet, as described in the Scriptures, their hearts are failing them for fear and for looking after the things coming upon the earth, because they see the shaking of the symbolic heavens now in progress, and perceive that with such a shaking and removal of the power of error, superstitions and religious restraints from the masses of the people, violence and anarchy must result.

But, from God's standpoint, from which the waking ones of the household of faith are privileged to look, not only the severity of the trouble is more distinct, but also the blessed results, which under God's providence it shall subserve by ushering in the Millennial Kingdom. And this is a comfort, and more than an offset for all the tribulation, even though we or our dearest ones may share it.

That we might now have the comfort of this knowledge, and not be in doubt and perplexity, was but part of the object in the giving of the time-prophecies. Another object was, that, as the representatives of that kingdom among men, we should be aware of the great dispensational changes now in progress, and able to bear testimony before the world, regarding God's plan, etc., which, though unheeded now, will greatly benefit them by and by, and help them the sooner to recognize the Lord's presence in the great day of wrath, drawing on. Another object is, that the faithful, thus armed and strengthened by God's Word, may be enabled to stand firm, when so many will be falling into infidelity and various other deceptive errors, which will soon sweep over Christendom. Another object is, to give force and point to the entire Plan of the Ages; for it is a general experience that, while the first glimpse of God's gracious plan for blessing the whole world through the Church, during the Millennial age, fills the hearts and enlists the zeal of his faithful children to the utmost, yet as their efforts to enlighten others are coldly received, and they find that only a very few, comparatively, have "an ear to hear," the tendency is to settle down to the quiet enjoyment of the precious knowledge, in such a manner as will bring the least reproach and opposition.

Seeing this, our natural weakness, the Lord has provided time-prophecies as a spur, to quicken and awaken us fully, and keep us active in his service. Being already in the "harvest" time, harvest work should engage the time, service and thoughts of the Lord's servants, who now, like the disciples at the first advent, are to do the reaping work (John 4: 35-38). Let us each seek to do what our hands find to do, in obedience to the instructions of the great Chief Reaper. But, with reference more particularly to the time and order of events in this harvest, we must refer the reader to the succeeding volume of this series, wherein the conclusions of the foregoing and other time prophecies are brought to a focus, and the various foretold signs and corroborative testimonies of the Master's presence and the progress of his work are marked, proving: that the Time of the End has come; that the Days of Waiting for the Kingdom are fulfilled; that the Cleansing of the Sanctuary is accomplished; that the great Harvest Work is in progress; that the Re-gathering of Israel is apparent; that the Battle of the Great Day of God Almighty is impending; and that the complete establishment of the glorious Kingdom of God at the time appointed, the end of the Times of the Gentiles, is an unquestionable certainty; and showing, further, the work of the saints during the harvest; marking the close of the "high calling," and the "change" of those saints who "are alive and remain"; and showing, also, that the Great Pyramid of Egypt is one of God's Witnesses (Isa. 19: 19, 20), whose wonderful message is a full and complete corroboration of God's plan of the ages, together with its times and seasons.

MILLENNIAL DAWN

"All things are onward moving!—Let the blessed time begin!
The Old is swiftly passing, and the New is coming in!
The golden bells are ringing, and the pageant sweeps along Like an army that is speeding to the measure of a song.

"Dark theories now are waning: they are weak to build upon;
The light is on the hill-tops, and Truth is marching on:—
Many landmarks are but shadows, which now fade and flee away
Before the mighty forces that are coming in today.

"O brother, why this waiting? And sister, why so mute?
Up with the early sunshine! Watch for the golden fruit!
O poet, why this sorrow? O minstrel, why this hush?
And painter, why so long delay the heavenly tint and blush?

"Up with the larks of morning! Up with the rising sun!
Waiting not for noon-day, nor halting when begun!
For everything is moving; let the blessed time begin!
The Old is swiftly passing, and the New is coming in!

"The heavenly light is spreading,—spreading at the King's command!
It is spreading in its glory, speeding onward through the land.
Human creeds are downward tending; let them droop and fade away.
Following in the dawning sunlight, we can see a better way.

"Oh, let us all be ready for the work we have to do,— Toiling late and early, for the laborers are few!
Reaping, as instructed, in the morning light;
Reaping in the harvest field,—toiling for the RIGHT!

"All things are onward moving! Let earth's Jubilee begin!
The Old is swiftly passing, and the New is coming in!
It is coming! Oh 'tis coming! My raptured eyes behold!
The light is on the hill-tops, the Shepherd with his Fold."

APPENDIX.

NOTE 1—FOR PAGES 33-62

THE following letter, written at Chicago, Ill., June 7, 1914, to our Pastor by the Editor, is here given to refute some criticisms alleged as proofs that our Pastor's chronology, particularly as it relates to the Times of the Gentiles, is wrong:

Dearly Beloved Brother and Pastor: As you are aware, there is considerable difference of opinion as to whether Oct. 1914 is the end of the Times of the Gentiles. When noticing that in fixing the date of Jesus' birth and the length of the parallel dispensations you counted the fractions of years before and after A.D., that is, the 3 months before and the 9 months after January A.D. 1 as totaling one year, and not two years as in some other connections you do, in January, 1904, I called your attention to the fact that from Oct. 606 B.C. to Oct. 1914 is a period of 2519, not 2520 years, since Oct. 606 B.C. would be 605 $\frac{1}{4}$ years from Jan. 1, A.D. and Oct. 1914 would be 1913 $\frac{3}{4}$ years from Jan. 1, A.D. Ever since, until very recently, it has seemed to me that Oct. 1915 would be the end of the Times of the Gentiles, and that, one year after the end of the Harvest in 1914. Just recently a way of maintaining (by counting the fractions of the years as fractions and not as full years) that Oct. 1914 is the proper date for the end of the Times of the Gentiles has come to mind; and believing that you would desire it, I present it to you. The fact that the seven measurements given in Vol. 2 of the Great Pyramid Passages prove that 607 B.C. is the beginning, and that 1914 Oct. is the end of the Times of the Gentiles incited me to study the question of harmonizing our chronology with the date Oct. 607 B.C. as the beginning of the Times of the Gentiles. This study resulted in the views set forth in this letter. The method of treating the fractions of years as such and not as full years is the one that you use, and that rightly, to compute the 1845 years of the parallel dispensations and the date of Jesus' birth—B 60, 61, 232.

I will first very briefly state and then give proofs of the various steps. Please, for the sake of our troubled brethren, let me ask you not to let the fact that several changes in dates and fractional changes in periods are suggested, move you not to follow the proofs to the end. As far as I can see, these proofs are well founded; and if the position is true, it enables us to maintain strictly our whole line of prophetic periods against attacks of those who claim that the fractions require one year yet to the end of the Times of the Gentiles, as well as the attacks of those who take 587 or 586 as the date for the beginning of the Times of the Gentiles.

THE CHIEF CHRONOLOGICAL PERIODS

The changes are the following:

- I. Israel's return to Palestine Oct. 537, not 536 B.C.
- II. Beginning of the Times of the Gentiles Oct. 607, not 606 B.C.
- III. Length of the period of the Kings $513\frac{1}{2}$, (See PT '40 p. 183, par. 1) not 513 years.
- IV. From the Exodus to the division of the land $46\frac{1}{2}$, not 46 years.*
- V. Length of the period of the Judges $448\frac{1}{2}$,(See PT '40 p. 183, par. 1) not 450 years.
- VI. From the end of the flood until Covenant with Abraham about $426\frac{5}{12}$, not 427 years.
- VII. From Adam's creation to the end of the flood about $1657\frac{2}{12}$, not 1656 years.
- VIII. Artaxerxes' decree for rebuilding of Jerusalem and its walls going into effect Oct. 455, not 454 B.C.

The points follow in the order numbered: I. Proof that the first year of Cyrus was from Oct. 538 B.C. to Oct. 537 B.C. and Israel's arrival in Palestine was Oct. 537. A. Scriptural proof: Dan. 1: 18-21, comp. Dan. 10: 1. (1) Dan. 1: 21 states that Daniel continued until the first year of King Cyrus. This, according to Dan. 10: 1, cannot mean that Daniel died in the first year that Cyrus became king of Babylon; for Dan. 10: 1 tells us that in Cyrus' third year as Babylon's king Daniel had the revelation given him recorded in Dan. chapters 10-12. The connection in Dan. 1: 17-21 rather gives the thought that Daniel continued to be the chief adviser of the Babylonian monarch in matters of wisdom, understanding, visions and dreams until the first year of Cyrus as king of Babylon. Therefore the end of the Babylonian empire and the beginning of the first year of Cyrus occurred in the same year.

*Note: Chronological periods IV and V are reversed in order from the 1937 edition, to make them agree with the text on page 375.

B. Historical and Biblical proof blended according to Dan. 11: 1, 2. In addition to the Persian king then reigning there would be yet four kings of Persia (the last one being Xerxes) until Greece would be attacked by Persia. Xerxes is the one who made this attack. Tracing these kings backward, they are Xerxes 485-474 B.C., Darius Hystaspes 521-485 B.C., the False Smerdis 522-521 B.C., Cambyses 529-522 B.C. Cyrus, according to Ptolemy's Canon, reigned 9 years as king of Babylon, dying in 529 B.C. Accordingly, his first year as Babylon's king began 538 B.C. Ptolemy gives us this same year as that of the fall of Babylon and states that Cyrus was the conqueror of Babylon, just as Isa. does. Dan. 5: 30, 31 shows that Darius the Mede took (literally, reached) the kingdom the same night that Belshazzar was killed. Accordingly, the first year of Darius the Mede and the first year of Cyrus began in the same year, 538 B.C., Darius' reign beginning about 4 months before that of Cyrus. I have consulted a dozen encyclopedias and all except three give 538 B.C. as the date. The article in the new edition of the Britannica gives 539 as the date of Babylon's fall, and this view is copied in Nelson's and the New International Encyclopedias. I think "539" in the Britannica article is a misprint for "538" since they contend, though written by higher critics, for the correctness of Ptolemy's Canon and state that 538 B.C. is the first year of Cyrus as king of Babylon in the articles on Cyrus and the Bible. I have consulted many historians, all of whom give 538 B.C. as the date that Cyrus overthrew the Babylonian empire. As for all non-higher critical authors, they admit that 538 is the date of Babylon's fall. However, following a guess of Josephus who reasons that since a first year of Darius the Mede is mentioned, he must at least have had a second year, they have dated the first year of Cyrus as 536 B.C. Since 1880 when the tablets of Nabonidus, Babylon's last sovereign, and the tablets of Cyrus, commemorating his victories over Nabonidus and Belshazzar, were discovered and later were translated, and more particularly since the revision of the translations in 1891, they give us the needed data whereby this difficulty has been solved.

What misled the older writers was a guess of Josephus (who has been prolific in mothering many historical errors, as you show) that Darius was the real king and Cyrus was his general and that this Darius was another name for a certain Synaxeres II, who Josephus' supposed reigned since 550 B.C. over Medo-Persia, 2 years as king of Babylon and then at his death was succeeded by Cyrus in 536 B.C. Josephus further guesses that this Synaxeres secluded himself during this whole reign, leaving the affairs of the kingdom in Cyrus' hands. Against these guesses it may be said that none of the ancient historians mentions such a king. Cyrus is always set forth since 550 B.C. as the sole king of Medo-Persia. Nabonidus' annals, extending from 554-538, name Cyrus as the exclusive ruler of Medo-Persia after the latter overthrew Astyages in 550 B.C. This is also stated in the tablets of Cyrus. Neither the annals nor the tablets mention a Synaxeres. These annals and tablets are found to be in harmony with Daniel's statement and Isaiah's prophecy. According to these annals and tablets, Cyrus invaded Babylon from the south early in 538 B.C. His troops were divided into two armies, one commanded by Cyrus in person, the other by Cyrus' leading general, Gobryas, Greek form for Gabru of the annals. Several years before Nabonidus associated with himself as viceroy his son Belshazzar whom he stationed at Babylon, while Nabonidus made Sippora his capital. This does not contradict Dan. 5: 2, 11, 18, where Belshazzar is called the son of Nebuchadnezzar, since Scripturally descendants to many generations are called sons of remote ancestors ("Jesus, thou son of David"). On the contrary, according to Jer. 27: 7, Nebuchadnezzar was to have a son and a grandson who, like him, would continue supreme and unconquered. Then afterward Babylon would fall. The son and grandson were Evil Merodach, mentioned in the annals as well as in the Bible, and Tigla Pileser. His son was Nabonidus in whose days Babylon's fall occurred.

To return to Cyrus and Gobryas, the annals and tablets state that Cyrus attacked Nabonidus at Sippora, and, defeating him, took his capital June 14, 538 B.C. Two days later Gobryas, whose army operated against Belshazzar at Babylon, took the city without a battle, according to the annals and tablets. This accords with Dan. 5: 30, 31, and is implied in the symbolic statement of Rev. 16: 12, the diverting of the Euphrates. The tablets then go on to say that Gobryas proceeded at once to exercise kingly power as Cyrus' viceroy and appointed many governors in the provinces (See Dan. 6: 1-3). If Belshazzar as his father's viceroy is called king of Babylon, Gobryas could with equal propriety as Cyrus' viceroy be so called. These facts, therefore, prove that the first year of Cyrus as king of Babylon was 538. It was in October that Cyrus entered the city of Babylon and began there to reign.

Thus as the first and third years of Belshazzar (Dan. 7: 1; 8: 1) do not mean that Nabonidus was not supreme as king; but as the annals show were contemporaneous with part of Nabonidus' reign, so the expression "first year of Darius" would not mean that Cyrus was not supreme as king of Babylon; the contrary was the case; for nearly four months after Babylon's fall, i.e., in Oct. 538 B.C., Cyrus, according to the annals and tablets, came to Babylon; and while Darius, i.e., Gobryas still acted as king, Cyrus' viceroy, his authority was simply a delegated one. Cyrus' authority in all things was supreme. The tablets further state that Cyrus shortly afterward issued edicts in the various languages of the people altered to suit each case, forwarding the religions of all his subjects in their respective lands. Among others the Jews according to the Bible were given liberty to return to Palestine, there to forward their religion. Some time, therefore, between Oct. 538 and Oct. 537 B.C. is the time of Cyrus' decrees. When Vol. 2 was written these annals and tablets were as yet little known. Your not using them likely implies that you did not know of them. Accordingly, you could not be expected to have incorporated their findings in Vol. 2, and quite naturally took the view of practically all writers on Biblical chronology, giving 536 B.C. as the date of Israel's return. The above-mentioned facts can be gathered from Larned's History For Ready Reference, Vol. 4, 2577 [first edition; the following give more detailed accounts and are from the second edition, The New Larned, etc.: Vol. 1, 796, 797; Vol. 8, 6629, 6630].

C. Proof from Parallel Dispensations:

The parallel dispensations enable us to locate the month and year of the decree by which Cyrus gave the Israelites permission and help to return to the land. The parallel event, as you pointed out in brackets when correcting, in Z. '05, 183, par. 5, a statement in an article from our dear Bro. John Edgar, was the removal of the papacy to Avignon. This was in March 1309. (See article in the Britannica on Clement V.) March 1309 was 1308 $\frac{1}{4}$ years since A.D., and March 537 B.C. was 536 $\frac{3}{4}$ years before A.D. The sum of these gives us the 1845 years of the parallel. This fixes the decree as having been issued in March 537. As the land was desolated in October the "fulfilling" of the 70 years of desolation required the return of the people in October. This would be in the seventh month and in the year the decree was issued (Ezra 3: 1). The following will account for these seven involved months. According to Ezra 7: 8, 9, it took Ezra and his associates four months to make the same journey; presumably it took Zerubbabel and his associates the same length of time. The other three months were doubtless used in agitating the question of returning, adjusting the affairs of the departing Israelites, gathering the vessels of the sanctuary and the supplies for the journey and assembling themselves to depart as one company. These facts and Scriptures seem to warrant the thought that Oct. 537 B.C., and not 536 B.C., is the date when Israel came back to their land, thus ending its 70 years of desolation.

II. Proof that the "Times of the Gentiles" began 607 B.C.

A. The first proof follows from the one just given; for if Oct. 537 B.C. is the date of Israel's return, which ended the desolation of the land, the seventy years of desolation and the Times of the Gentiles beginning at the same time, the Times of the Gentiles began 70 years before Oct. 537, therefore Oct. 607 B.C.

B. The length of the Times of the Gentiles. Assuming that 1914 is the end of the Gentile Times, 2520 full years before that date would be Oct. 607 B.C. Thus Oct. 1914 A.D. is 1913 $\frac{3}{4}$ years after Jan. A.D. 1; and Oct. 607 B.C. is 606 $\frac{1}{4}$ years before Jan. A.D. 1, the sum of these two being 2520.

C. The first set of seven times, which began with the end of the First Adam's day and ended in Oct. 607 B.C., also proves this. While the Edgar charts do not, as they stand, show this, the Pyramid measurements and figures that they give in Vol. 2 of their work repeatedly do. Repeatedly in their measurements they show, contrary to the figures on their charts, that the First Adam's day began $4126\frac{1}{4}$ years before A.D. This, of course, would be Oct. 4127 B.C. In measuring the length of time from the end of the first Adam's day ($3126\frac{1}{4}$) until the end of the first 7 times, we are brought to $606\frac{1}{4}$ years before A.D. 1. This, of course, is Oct. 607 B.C. The following considerations prove the date of the beginning of the First Adam's day: If Oct. 1874 is the end of the 6000 years of evil, Oct. 4127 B.C. is its beginning $1873\frac{3}{4} + 4126\frac{1}{4} = 6000$ years. Again, in their chart showing that from the end of the First Adam's day until the flood began were 654 years, and giving properly 2472 B.C. as the flood's end, they date 654 years before its start as 3126 B.C., and the end of the First Adam's day. It should be 3127 B.C., thus: $2473 + 654 = 3127$. They made no mistake in this connection in assigning 2 years instead of one year to the state of innocence, which should have resulted from their taking the fractions $\frac{3}{4} + \frac{1}{4}$ of a year as 2 years from October B.C. 1 to October A.D. 1. Several measurements that they give in Vol. 2. of their work show that the fall occurred as they put it, $4126\frac{1}{4}$ years before A.D., which is Oct. 4127 B.C. The chronology also shows that the First Adam's day began Oct. 4127 B.C., for the 6000 years from Oct. 4127 B.C. bring us to Oct. 1874 thus: $1873\frac{3}{4} + 4126\frac{1}{4} = 6000$. Hence, the 6000 years of evil began Oct. 4127 B.C. There are a few other slight mistakes in these truly excellent and helpful charts. The date 4127 B.C. being the date of the fall, i.e., the beginning of the First Adam's day, the end of that day was 3127 B.C. The first seven times beginning here would end Oct. 607 B.C., thus: Oct. 3127—2520 = Oct. 607.

D. Six of the seven measurements that they give to prove Oct. 1914 to be the end of the Gentile Times begin prior to Oct. 607; and thus prove Oct. 607 as being the end of the first and the beginning of the second set of 2520 years. One measurement that their book gives covering both "seven times," i.e., 5040 years, starts from the north end of the basement sheet as the end of Adam's day and reaches the end of the grand gallery as the end of the High Calling. This proves very conclusively that the first of these seven times ends and the second begins Oct. 607 B.C.

THE PERIOD OF THE KINGS

III. Length of the period of the kings, 513½* years.

In Vol. 2 commenting on the fact (Jer. 52: 6-8) that Zedekiah had actually reigned 10 years and six months you state that, ignoring the fraction of a year that occurs there, you count the period 11 full years, believing that the fractions in the chronology neutralize one another. In view of the fact that through Josephus' guess all non-higher critical Bible scholars considered 536 B.C. as the date of Israel's return, and the further fact that from many fulfilled prophecies you knew that 1874 was the date of our Lord's return, such a way of accounting for the fractions was surely the spirit of true faith which trusts where it cannot trace. But since in the providence of the Lord historical facts by the discovery of Nabonidus' annals and Cyrus' tablets have given us in conjunction with the Scriptures 537 B.C. as the proper date, we find it necessary accurately to reckon these fractions. Facts require us, therefore, to count the days of Zedekiah's reign 10½ years. His dethronement and the desolation of the land were synchronous, i.e., in the seventh month. Jer. 41: 1 and the following chapters show that the land was desolated in the seventh month.

Two weeks (see amended translation of Jer. 52: 30 in P '21, 88, par. 2, near middle of second column) after the 10th day of the fifth month when the temple began to be burned and the walls to be broken down (Jer. 52: 13, 14), which work must have taken about 2 weeks, the captives were begun to be carried away on the 23rd day of the fifth month (Jer. 52: 15, 24-27) to Riblah. This march, using the time of Ezra's journeying as a basis for calculation, took about five weeks; for the distance is nearly 500 miles the way the roads ran, though about 320 miles by an air line. On arrival here Zedekiah, who reigned as Nebachadnezzar's vassal, was dethroned by the king's judgment (Jer. 52: 9-11, 24-27). Thus Zedekiah's reign was actually 10½ years. Accordingly, the period of the Kings lasted 513½* years, as strict counting of fractions shows.

IV. From the Exodus to the division of the land, 46½ years.

In treating of this period you correctly say that it was a year and a fraction from the Exodus until the spies returned and the Lord promised Caleb his portion, which, exactly 45 years after the promise was given, Caleb claimed and received. This fraction is just ½ of a year. According to Num. 13: 20, the spies started out at the time of the first ripe grapes, which is near the beginning of August. Forty days later, when they returned, would be about the 7th month. Their bringing back not only the ripe grapes but also other fruits (Num. 13: 23-25) proves that it was about fall when they returned. Thus since Israel left Egypt in spring, the fall of the next year was a year and a half afterward. Accordingly from the Exodus until the division of the land were 46½ years.

THE PERIOD OF THE JUDGES

V. The period of the Judges, 448½* years.

To prepare the way to prove this point I must refer to a statement in Vol. 2 of the Great Pyramid Passages wherein it is said that regardless of the time that an Israelitish king died his successor's reign began to count on the first day of the first month of the next year, perhaps because the king's induction into office was deferred till then. Therefore the years of the various kings' reigns as given in Kings and Chronicles are full years unless the Bible should say they were not. In this way only could we have certainty in the chronology, which in the time of the end as part of the "vision" was "to speak and not lie." Again this follows from the proof given above for the Times of the Gentiles, desolation of the land and dethronement of Zedekiah. This is also manifest from the fact that, except in the case of but one king, the length of the reign of every one is stated in cardinal, not in ordinal, numerals, and that where a correction was required, as in Zedekiah's case, it was made. Thus Saul, David and Solomon reigned "40 years" each. It is not said they died in the 40th year of their reigns. The exception is in the case of Asa (2 Chron. 16: 13) where it is said Asa died in his 41st year. This exception also with the correction in Zedekiah's case proves the rule. You have correctly counted his 41st year as 41 full years; for his successor filled out this time before the years of his reign began to count; otherwise we would have to cut down this period. Many chronological parallels as well as Pyramid measurements prove that these years are exact years; and from the case of Zedekiah we see that the time of the reigns of the kings began in each case to count with the first month of the year, Nisan, i.e., in Spring.

This being true, since Caleb got his portion of the land in fall along with the rest of the Israelites, the period of the Judges did not consist of a full number of years. It must have been a certain number of years plus a half of another. This becomes doubly manifest from a consideration of 1 Kings 6: 1 and 2 Chron. 3: 2. These passages state that Solomon began to build the temple in the 2nd day of the second month in the fourth year of his reign in the month Zif. 1 Kings 6: 1 also states that it was in the 580th year of the Exodus, i.e., 579 full years and a fraction. The Exodus occurring on the 14th of the first month, the 2nd day of the 580th year afterward was just 579 years and 16 days after the Exodus, therefore in the spring. The following proves that the period of the Judges was 448½* years:

From the Exodus to the division of the lands	46½ years
Saul's space	40 years
David's space	40 years
Solomon's reign until the beginning of the temple was about one month more than	4* years
	130½* years

The rest of the 579 years was the period of the Judges. Accordingly it was 448½* years. This view requires us to give "hos [Greek, about] 450 years" in Acts 13: 20 as "about 450 years." This also seems to be clear.

VI. From the end of the flood until the Abrahamic Covenant about 426⁵/₁₂ years:

The flood began in the fall of one year on the 17th day of the second month and ended the next fall on the 27th day of the second month. The deluge was dated according to the civil, not the ecclesiastical year; for only first from the Exodus onward did Israel begin the year in spring, i.e., the ecclesiastical year (Ex. 12: 2). The Covenant was made with Abraham on the 14th day of Nisan, as it was on its 430th anniversary that Israel was delivered (Ex. 12: 40-51). Consequently the period from the end of the flood to the Abrahamic Covenant was not one of a full number of years. It was a period of a certain number of years plus 5 months. While for a number of years I have believed that this period lacked about 6 months from being 427 exact years, knowing during that time that the period from the Exodus until the division of the land was $46\frac{1}{2}$ years, my mental comment was: these fractions neutralize one another and therefore never gave them any closer attention from a chronological standpoint. But lately while studying this whole question and noticing that in Vol. 2 of the Great Pyramid Passages, p. 249 in the note, says that this period is shown to be between 426 and $426\frac{5}{12}$ years, I have gone carefully over the matter and found that Abram was said to be 75 years on leaving Haran, which was about 4 months before entering Canaan. This would from the standpoint of the chronology of Vol. 2 be about $427\frac{1}{2}$ years.

I believe I see a way in harmony with the chronology to prove that this period is one of about $426\frac{1}{2}$ years; i.e., to interpret the words, "Shem begat Arphaxad two years after the flood" to mean not two years after the flood ended, but two years after the flood began. To one used to the English language alone such an interpretation seems at first thought unnatural; but you are well aware of the fact that both in the Old and the New Testaments frequently when telling how long after a certain period another event happened, that period is included as a part of the time; but it is at times ignored. As examples of each kind please note Matt. 17: 1 and Luke 9: 28. This interpretation therefore agrees with Biblical usage, the chronological parallels, the first 7 times, the time of the flood baptism and of Christ's baptism and the Pyramid measurements requiring about $426\frac{5}{12}$ years here. Still farther this interpretation is favored by the fact that Abraham is not said to have been 75 years old on entering Canaan, but at the time he left Haran (Gen. 12: 4). The length of Ezra's journey from Babylon to Jerusalem, i.e., 4 months will help us here. Ezra's journey, about twice as far, was not impeded by flocks and herds as was Abraham's; for Ezra was given money with which to buy in Palestine sheep and cattle for sacrifice (Ez. 7: 16, 17, 22). The Journey of Abraham, impeded with cattle, and doubtless beginning immediately after the customary month's mourning for his father, would seem to have taken about 4 months. Thus the month's mourning and about a 4 months' journey yield about 5 months. Interpreting the two years after the flood to mean two years from the flood's beginning, from its end to Terah's death would be 426 years, hence about $426\frac{5}{12}$ years from the end of the flood until Abraham entered the land, i.e., until the covenant was made with Abraham.

Not to interpret the expression, "2 years after the flood," as above would make this period about $427\frac{5}{12}$ years and thus would work mischief in the chronology, Parallels, Pyramid measurements, etc. This view of the matter results in no addition of time to our chronology, but by changing the dating of certain events enables us, through counting strictly the fractions at their actual length, to hold every chronological parallel and prophetic period as ending exactly as Vols. 2 and 3 give them. The 8 months' shortening in the last period is made up as follows: Approximately two months added to the period from Adam's creation to end of flood (the earth drying the 2nd month, 27th day, i.e., two days short of two months) and the six months added to the period from the Exodus to the division of the land. Thus the date of the entrance of the land, Oct. 1576 B.C., stands proven, as also the Flood date, Nov. 2473 B.C. The year added to the time of Cyrus' decree and the return to the land and the beginning of the Times of the Gentiles is neutralized by subtracting $\frac{1}{2}$ year each from the periods of the Kings and Judges. This will throw all the dates from Zedekiah's to Saul's ascension to the throne six months earlier in the chronology and this is required by the parallels in every case. I have for years wondered why some of the parallels that Bros. Edgar have given us require in some cases the adding of the fractions and in others do not. This solves every difficulty where they have construed the parallel properly. In several cases where this did not prove true, I found that they did not have the parallel event. E.g., Josiah's great passover which they say typifies the resurrection of the sleeping saints. The parallel date is Apr. 1879, and doubtless refers to the glorious feast on the ransom (Christian Passover, 1 Cor. 5: 7) given the brethren then and a little later by the Tower, started July 1879 for the defense of the ransom against Mr. Barbour's and others' attacks.

There is a point that one might think is endangered by this view of matters: the great cycle leading up to the antitypical Jubilee; for by this method of dating, the last Jubilee is made earlier by one year. It would be from 627 B.C. to Oct. 626 B.C. instead of from Oct. 626 B.C. to Oct. 625 B.C. But even this is fully secured against assault in the following way: Israel entered the land east of the Jordan, which was a part of the land given them (Lev. 25: 2), in Oct. 1576 B.C. The Jubilee year was, therefore, made to begin Oct. 1576. By counting these 6 months also as belonging to the year of entering the land as the first year everything comes out nicely, and this is the logical thing to do as they were to count to the fiftieth year from entering the land and yet begin the Jubilee on the 10th day of the 7th month. Either these six months would have to count as of the fifty years or they could not begin to count with their entering the land and begin the Jubilee in October. Therefore the year that was counted as the first year of the first Jubilee cycle began Oct. 1576 B.C. and 950 years later the last Jubilee would be over, i.e., Oct. 626 B.C. Hence the great cycle, beginning there, ended Oct. 1875 A.D., for $625\frac{1}{4} + 1874\frac{3}{4} = 2500$ years; and, as you point out in Vol. 2, this would have been the end of the typical Jubilee had it persisted; and since a time antitype displaces a time type at the time the type would have come had it persisted, the antitypical Jubilee began Oct. 1874 A.D.

[VII. From Adam's creation to the end of the flood about $1657\frac{2}{12}$ not 1656 years.]

[As indicated by our brackets, the preceding and the following statements are not a part of the original letter here given; but they are now added for completeness' sake. It will be noted that the Bible does not say that Noah was 600 years old at the end of the flood, i.e., when it was dried up. He was 600 when it began, as a comparison of Gen. 7: 6 and 11 shows. The pertinent part of v. 11 is literally translated as follows: "In the year of the 600 years of Noah's life, etc." Noah had 600 years in his 600 years of life so far lived. The meaning of v. 11 is that in the last of his 600 years the flood began, not in that of his 599 years of life so far lived. This statement compared with v. 6, which says that "Noah was 600 when the flood of waters was upon the earth," not after it was dried up, i.e., not after it ceased to be upon the earth, proves that he was 600 years old when the flood began. Hence the flood began $1656\frac{1}{12}$ + years after Adam's creation, and ended exactly a solar year later, which is about 10 days longer than a lunar year. Hence from Adam's creation to the end of the flood was $1657\frac{1}{12}$ + years. The following will help in tracing the main dates prior to A.D. 1:]

VIII. The date on which Artaxerxes' commandment was carried out in the rebuilding of the wall of Jerusalem is about Oct. 455. Since the commandment was issued in Nisan, April (Neh. 2: 1-8), and the chronology shows that our Lord's anointing occurred in October, the expression "from the going forth of the commandment" in Dan. 9: 25 cannot mean its issuance, but doubtless means its execution. The wall was finished the 25th of Elul, i.e., 5 days before the first day of the seventh month, approximately Oct. 1 (Neh. 6: 15). This was in the 20th year of Artaxerxes (Neh. 2: 1). Artaxerxes began to reign in 474 B.C. For proof of this please see The Great Pyramid Passages, Vol. 2, 315-327 [first edition; 295-306, second edition]. Accordingly, Artaxerxes' 20th year, i.e., full 19 years and a fraction, was 455 B.C. This is evidently correct; for our Lord's anointing occurred Oct. 29, i.e., 28³/₄ years after Jan. A.D. 1, and Oct. 455 B.C. was 454¹/₄ years before Jan. A.D. 1. 454¹/₄ + 28³/₄ = 483 = the years in the symbolic 69 weeks (69 X 7 = 483) from the completion of Jerusalem's walls until Jesus' anointing (Dan. 9: 25). This point being proved, all seven points mentioned in the early part of this letter have now been proved.

It goes, my dear Brother, without saying that the above is no unkind criticism of your chronological views. I love you too much to think of so criticizing you. It is rather an attempt, and

I believe a successful one, to defend your chronological results and to make them invulnerable to attacks from certain standpoints which unfriendly critics, who might insist on complete exactness in details, would only too gladly make against them, if they knew of these slight inaccuracies. You expressly state that in certain cases you were ignoring the involved fractions (though in the two cases above-mentioned you strictly used them), believing that they neutralize one another. The above shows that they do indeed neutralize one another. That your results are correct, despite the few slight inaccuracies, is only another evidence, among many, that the Lord Jesus is using your mind as the channel of communicating the Truth as due in this reaping time. I will be glad to have your thoughts on the above, whenever you find it convenient to give me them.

With Christian love and assurance of prayers I am,
Your brother in the Lord,
PAUL S. L. JOHNSON.

The writer of the above letter saw our Pastor about three weeks after sending it to him, and received from him the assurance that the points brought up in the letter were well taken; and the latter expressed pleasure that the data therein given secured the date of 1914 as that of the end of the Gentile Times, which date he said must be held. The outbreak of the war about a month later gave the Divine seal to that date. Doubtless the many changes that the corrections would have required to be made in the plates prevented their being made.

NOTE II—FOR PAGES 246, 247

VARIOUS repudiations of the parallel dispensations occasion the following article. To help to clearness on the subject we must remember that in the parallel dispensations two features must agree: (1) the times and (2) the acts, i.e., parallel acts must come at the parallel times. An infrequent error occurring in this matter is paralleling non-corresponding acts with one another and non-corresponding times with one another. The most marked instance of this was done in paralleling the end of the Gospel-Age reaping in 1914, a grace feature, with the overthrow of Jerusalem in 70, a wrath feature. Of course grace and wrath features do not correspond; nor do 1914 and 70 correspond, the former being 40 years after the beginning of the Gospel Harvest in 1874 and the latter being 41 years after the beginning of the Jewish Harvest in 29. This mistake was discovered in 1903 and corrected in 1904 in the following way: On account of the many changes that this feature required to be made in the plates, making these many changes prohibitive, a paragraph (the second on page 245, Vol. II) was inserted, giving the date 69 as the end of the 40 years of the Jewish Harvest as against the date 70. The flight of the brethren in 69 from Jerusalem and Judea seems to be the sign marking the end of the Jewish Harvest (Luke 21: 20, 21). There were two encompassings of Jerusalem, one from afar, which was finished in the fall of 69 and one from near which occurred in the spring of 70. As the latter precluded a flight, being, as it was, connected with an air-tight siege, the former evidently is the one meant by Jesus in the text just cited, since the surrounding was varyingly from 20 to 40 miles away, and, not being air-tight, permitted the brethren to make a safe flight to Pella beyond Jordan near Mt. Hermon.

Another mistake in the use of the parallels is making the course of Jewry undergoing wrath from 33 to 73 parallel the course of the true Christian Church both in flesh and spirit from 1878 to 1918, the real parallel in this case being in its second member the course of Christendom undergoing wrath from 1878 to 1918. Still another not infrequent mistake in the use of parallels is the failure to keep the Harvests' parallels 29 to 69 and 1874 to 1914 separate and distinct from the dispensations' parallels. While these are parallel from Oct. 29 to April 33 and Oct., 1874, to April, 1878, from April 33 to Oct. 69 (when the Harvest parallel ended, while the dispensation parallel went on for nearly four years) and April, 1878, to Oct., 1914 (when the Harvest parallel ended, while the dispensation parallel went on for nearly four years) they are not parallel. In the Harvest parallels throughout grace acts must be paralleled with grace acts, wrath acts with wrath acts, in the true Christian Church alone; while wrath acts must be paralleled with wrath acts in Jewry from April 33 to July 73 and in Christendom from April, 1878, to July, 1918, there being no grace acts at all to these in the parallel dispensations within the pertinent sets of years. From the facts that Christ's First Advent in 29 parallels His Second Advent in 1874 and His resurrection in 33 parallels the resurrection of the sleeping saints in 1878, we conclude that what our Lord did in the Jewish Harvest from 33 onward toward the true Church and Jewry parallels what Jesus and the Church beyond the veil did in the Gospel Harvest toward the true Church in the flesh and to Christendom; but we are not to parallel the acts of Jewry from 33 to 69 with the acts of the true Church either in the spirit or in the flesh from 1878 to 1914. The cautions above given, if heeded, will keep one from the main abuses to which the parallels have been subjected.

The many parallels brought to attention by Bros. John and Morton Edgar, beside the harvest and dispensation parallels brought to attention in their books, certainly deserve careful study. The Editor during the summer of 1914 watched the fulfillments of the 2520 years' parallel, the main features of which have already been set before the reader. During the years 1915 to 1918, especially during the spring and summer of 1915 and the spring of 1918 he watched carefully the events of the World War, and found the wrath features of the parallel dispensations fulfilling in Jerusalem's lunar time whenever in 70 to 73 the dates were given by Josephus. These observations showed that the Allies corresponded to the Jews and the Central Powers to the Romans in the Romano-Jewish war waged in 70 to 73; for on the dates (Jerusalem lunar time) that the Jews acted, prevailed or suffered reverses, 1845 years afterward to the day (Jerusalem lunar time) the Allies in similar ways acted, prevailed or suffered reverses; and on the dates that the Romans acted, prevailed or suffered reverses, 1845 years afterwards to the day (Jerusalem lunar time) the Central Powers acted, prevailed or suffered reverses. Just after nearly all the involved parallels of 1915 were enacted, the Editor brought at the Hershey Convention Sept. 5-12 some of the parallels of 70 and 1915 to our Pastor's attention, mentioning the fact that seemingly the parallel would work on at least until the summer of 1918. Our Pastor was pleased at this corroboration of his view of the parallel dispensations.

The dates and events from early spring 70 to early summer 73 we have gotten from Josephus' Wars Of The Jews and the corresponding dates and events from early spring 1915 to early summer 1918 we have gotten from the 12th edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica, Vols. 30-32, in the articles entitled, Carpathians, Battles Of the; Caporetto, Battle Of; Dunajec-San, Battles of the; Eastern European Front Campaigns; Narew, Battles Of the; Niemen, Battles of the; Brest Litovsk, Battles of; Serbian Campaigns; Western Front Campaigns. The following European War articles of the Encyclopedia Americana in Vol. 28 on Military Operations, Western Front; Eastern Front; Italian campaign, also were used. The datings for both of the parallels were made according to lunar time at Jerusalem, as those of 70-73 were in that time; and the nature of the case required that time for the 1915-1918 events. In only one month, Nisan, in 1918 did the Jewish Calendar differ from that based on the new moon at Jerusalem and in this the date of the Jerusalem new moon proved correct according to the events in 1918, it being one day ahead of the Jewish Calendar for the days of that month. Thus as already shown before in the case of the 2520 years' parallels, the 1845 years' parallels show that God now reckons the lunar months as beginning with Jerusalem's new moon days. In the parallels this is evidently the case since in both parallels, that of 2520 years and that of 1845 years, Jerusalem's time was the time of the first members of both parallels, i.e., Jerusalem in 607 B.C. and in 70-73 A.D. We will for clearness' sake and for the better help of the reader arrange the parallels in parallel columns:

70 A.D.	1915 A.D.
Nisan 14—Titus arrives at Jerusalem and begins to erect his camp before the city.	March 29—Von Hindenburg begins to collect troops for a heavy blow at Russia in Galicia. At the same time, the Russian attempt to break through the Carpathians into Hungary against the Central Powers' army is repulsed and the Russians are held at bay.

| Nisan 24—The Siege of Jerusalem begins. | April 8—Russians are defeated and checked in their long battle with the Central Powers' third army in the Carpathians, resulting in the start of a hemming in of the Russians. |
| Iyar (2nd month) 8—Jerusalem's first wall is broken through by the Romans. | April 21—The Russians' further advance in the Carpathians is brought to a final stop by the Central Powers' third army, which, among other things, nearly exhausting the Russians' munitions, breaks through their first wall of defense, which weakens their Galician front. |
| Iyar 12—Jerusalem's second wall is broken through by the Romans. | April 25—The Germans break through the Russian lines, possessing themselves of Latvia and Courland in the northern sector of the Eastern Front. |
| Iyar 12—The Romans erect banks against the upper city and the tower of Antonia. | April 25—The Central Powers complete assembling their armies for the great blow on the Dunajec. |
| Iyar 16—The Romans make further progress against the Jews at Jerusalem. | April 29—The armies of the Central Powers take their positions for the forthcoming battle of Dunajec in Galicia. |

- Iyar 29—The Romans finish their banks against the Tower of Antonia.
- Sivan (3rd month) 1(?)—(Josephus is not quite clear on this date, but the parallel suggests Sivan 1 as correct. This remark also applies to the two following dates). The Jews cause a part of the bank before the tower of Antonia to collapse through undermining.
- Sivan 3(?)—Two days later other parts of the Roman banks were destroyed.
- Sivan 4-6—In 3 days the Romans build an intrenchment around the whole of Jerusalem.
- Sivan 1-29—The Romans rebuild all their banks over against the tower of Antonia.
- May 12—The Central Powers' victory (May 1-12) in Dunajec-San battles gives them an advantageous position against various parts of the Russian line in Galicia, especially against the Russian fortress of Przemysl.
- May 14—The Central Powers' army under Gen. Pflanzer gives way under Russian pressure in the south-eastern sector of the line in Galicia and retreats to the Pruth in the neighborhood of Kolomea.
- May 16—The German army just south of the extreme northern section of the battle line is checked by the Russians and is compelled to give up its gains and retreat to its former positions.
- May 17-19—The Central Powers make preparation for the battle of Przemysl, which they first set to begin May 20, but which was delayed until May 24.
- May 14-June 12—The Central Powers' successes in Galicia set up for them a series of strong positions against the opposing Russians in Galicia.

- Nisan 14 to Tamuz (4th month) 1—Jewish losses at Jerusalem from fighting, famine and pestilence are so great as to make one gate the exit out of which 115,880 bodies were carried, beside numerous others carried out of other gates.
- Tamuz 1—The desperate Jewish attacks on the banks over against the tower of Antonia are disastrously repulsed.
- Tamuz 2—Part of the Roman bank at the tower of Antonia falls down through undermining.
- Tamuz 3—Various groups of Roman soldiers scale the wall of Antonia and enter the temple, but are forced to retreat.
- Tamuz 4, 5—While unable to possess themselves of the temple the Romans secure possession of the Tower of Antonia.
- Tamuz 17—The Romans begin to dig up the foundations of the tower of Antonia.
- March 29-June 13—The Russians in Galicia lose 391,000 men as prisoners, at least that many killed and wounded, 304 guns, 763 machine guns and vast amounts of other war material.
- June 13—The desperate attacks of the Russians to break through the Central Powers' lines about Stryj in order to save Lemberg for themselves are disastrously repulsed.
- June 14—A corps of the Central Powers' southern army in Galicia which had broken through the Russian line and crossed, June 12, the Russian frontier, meets hard resistance.
- June 15—This corps is compelled under stiff resistance to return to Galicia.
- June 16, 17—The battles of these two days give the Central Powers a strangle hold on the Russian positions before Lemberg, which led to its fall five days later.
- June 29—The Central Powers' blows delivered by Von Mackensen's armies northward against the retreating Russians after Lemberg's fall begin to crush the Russians' lines of defense for Warsaw in Poland at its southwestern and southern bend eastward.

Sokal and Krasnostaw battles force the evacuation of Warsaw to begin (though not completed until Aug. 5).

Ab 8, 9—The Romans burn the remaining temple cloisters, driving the Jews into an inner court of the temple.

July 19, 20—The Central Powers' victories under Von Mackensen during the Sokal and Krasnostaw battles destroy the Russian positions over a large front, forcing a retreat over a wide area.

Ab 9—The Jews sally forth from an inner court in an attack on the Romans in the outer court, but suffer a disastrous repulse.

July 20—The Russians make heavy counter attacks on the Central Powers' armies in the Sokal and Krasnostaw battles, but are completely repulsed.

Ab 10—The temple itself is fired by the Romans on the 676th anniversary of its burning by Nebuchadnezzar, whereby a large part of the Jews in Jerusalem are put out of the war.

July 21—Von Mackensen's armies disastrously defeat the Russians on a wide-flung front, making Warsaw's fall inevitable and more and more making the great retreat of the Russians eastward to the Pripet Marshes necessary, with all the losses in men and munitions therein involved, whereby the Russians were in a large measure put out of the war.

Ab 20—The Romans begin to erect banks against the upper city.

July 31—Ludendorff as Von Hindenburg's chief of staff begins to organize the attempt from the north to encircle the retreating Russians.

- Elul (6th month) 7—The banks against the upper city finished and its walls broken through by the Romans.
- Elul 7, 8—Fearful massacre of Jews in, and destruction of, the upper city begins.
- Elul 9 to Heshvan (8th month) 1—(This second date is uncertain; but is concluded from the parallel). The Romans systematically destroy the buildings, walls and towers of Jerusalem, leaving only three of the last standing, as well as round up the Jews who had hidden themselves in Jerusalem's underground caverns, passages, vaults, cisterns, etc.
- Tishri (7th month) 29 to Kislev (9th month) 30—The Romans in a punitive expedition besiege and take Herodion, massacring all the soldiers and citizens and destroying the city and fortress. (Josephus gives no
- Aug. 17—Ludendorff begins the first stage of this attempt by securing the line for this through fixing his line firmly from Riga to immediately north of Kovno, whose siege began Aug. 8.
- Aug. 17, 18—The final assault on Kovno, Aug. 17, accompanied by fearful Russian losses and leveling of its forts, lead to its surrender Aug. 18.
- Aug. 19 to Oct. 7—The Central Powers take and destroy all the Russian fortresses in Poland, drive in many battles the Russian armies eastward, until their lines run in almost straight direction southward from the Riga sector in the north to the Cernowiec sector in the south and past the Pripet Marshes as the center sector, and capture immense numbers of fleeing Russians, whose losses in prisoners alone since spring were over 2,000,000.
- Oct. 5 to Dec. 4—The Central Powers carry out a punitive expedition against Serbia, overthrowing the Serbian army and driving it and the bulk of the Serbian people out of Serbia into Albania amid much destruction of time indication for this event, except that it occurred just after Jerusalem's overthrow. The exact time is inferred from the parallel).

71 or 72 A.D.—Macherus (where John the Baptist was beheaded) is besieged and taken by Romans under Bassus. (Josephus does not even give the year of this event, which is inferred from the parallel.)

72 A.D.—(Dates not given in Josephus, but inferred from the parallel.) The Romans under Bassus undertake an expedition against thousands of Jerusalem's and Macherus' fugitives in the forest of Jarden east of the Dead Sea, where they utterly defeat and destroy these fugitives.

Nisan 9-15, 73 A.D.—Masada is besieged and taken by the Romans. (Josephus does not give the date of the siege's beginning, which is inferred from the parallel).

Spring of 73—Massacre of Jews at Alexandria, Egypt, takes place. Josephus gives no date for this, but introduces its account immediately after describing the fall of Masada).

soldiers, civilians and property.

1916, 1917—Rumania is completely crushed by the Central Powers under Von Mackensen, losing almost all its territory, most of its army and immense numbers of its civil population and wealth.

Oct. and Nov. 1917—The Central Powers inflict a disastrous defeat on the Italians, forcing them to retreat on a wide front from Caporetto in the Alps to and along the Piave River from Pederobba to the sea.

March 21-27, 1918—The first phase of the great Picardy battle is fought, resulting in almost one entire, and in a large part of another, British army being wiped out by the Germans.

April 9-16, 1918—The Germans inflict a severe defeat on the British and Portuguese along the Belgian front.

- 73 A.D.—The first massacre in Cyrenaica of the Jews who followed the incapable Jonathan into the desert of Cyrenaica (Roman province west of northern Egypt) takes place. (Josephus gives no dates for this and the next event; but narrates these two massacres immediately after that of Alexandra, and that as the last events of the Romano-Jewish War.)
- 73 A.D.—The second massacre in Cyrenaica of the Jews takes place in Cyrene, the capital. This is the last action of the Romano-Jewish war and with it the Jewish-Age member of the 1845 years' parallel ends.
- May 17-June 15, 1918—In a far-flung battle line having Rheims as nearly a center, the Germans inflict a disastrous defeat on the French.
- July 10 to 17—The Germans for the last time inflict a defeat on the French with the Marne as the battle's center. With this battle the Gospel-Age member of the 1845 year parallel ends.

The facts of the case proving that in the parallels the Romans from 70 to 73 and the Central Powers from 1915 to 1918 and the Jews from 70 to 73 and the Allies from 1915 to 1918 are parallels, moved the writer to expect the war to end in the favor of the Central Powers, even as the Romano-Jewish war ended favorably to their parallels. His drawing this conclusion was natural enough from the premises, but was a mistaken one, and that because, unknown to him at the time, the parallel ended about the middle of July 1918. Shortly after that time on the western front the war, which previously was as a whole favorable to the Central Powers, took a turn favorable to the Allies, largely due to the decreasing man-power and munition and provision supplies of the Central Powers and the advent and participation of Americans with large re-enforcements of man-power and resources, and ended differently from his expectations. It will be noted in some of the above data that the events coming at the end of the Gospel-Age parallel were much longer in transaction than those of their parallels in the end of the Jewish-Age parallel, e.g., the duration of Herodion's siege and fall as against the crushing of Serbia, and the duration of Macherus' siege and fall as against the crushing of Rumania, in fact in every case where no specific dates or years are given for the events in the Jewish part of the parallel. This is to be accounted for on the principle that in some cases the beginnings, and in others the endings of the Jewish parallels are indicated by the beginnings of the Gospel-Age parallels above brought to the reader's attention. The above parallels certainly lend strong confirmation to the veracity of the parallel dispensations, as of 1845 years duration, with the parallel wrath period following, and their coming out to a day in exactness manifests God's exactness as a time-keeper. And the above-given facts, like those connected with the 2520 years' parallels prove that God counts the lunar months (and consequently the lunar years) as beginning on the pertinent days that the moon news at Jerusalem, which fact enables one to locate the proper place for fixing the date for the Passover.

NOTE III—FOR PAGES 246, 247

IN THE Berean Bible Manual, Part IV, p. 15 (just before the Concordance), based upon the fact that the Times of the Gentiles began with the uncrowning of Zedekiah, 607 B.C., a number of the parallels in the 2520 years' parallels are given. These are especially interesting just now in view of certain ones repudiating 607 B.C. as the year of Zedekiah's uncrowning. They are, of course, in striking refutation to the repudiations. We suggest that these parallels be re-read. We desire to add to them a few others that we noted during Jan., 1915, that are connected with the siege of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, and that find their parallels exactly 2520 years to the day in the years 1912 and 1914. In order to understand these parallels let us remember that Nebuchadnezzar in the type represents Satan, the god of this evil world; that Jerusalem represents Christendom; and that Zedekiah represents the civil powers of Christendom. Satan brought about the conditions leading up to the World War in a deliberate attempt to divert the Radicals from their purpose of changing his order of affairs; and in this scheme he especially used the Central Powers to carry forward his purpose, doubtless reasoning that it would be better to have a weakened kingdom of his spirit than a strong one of another.

In the type it will be recalled that Nebuchadnezzar on the tenth day of the tenth month, in the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign, laid siege to Jerusalem (Jer. 52: 4). In the ninth day of the fourth month in Zedekiah's eleventh year the walls of the city were broken down, the men of war fled (Jer. 52: 6, 7), were pursued, and were later scattered by the Babylonians. In the seventh day of the fifth month Nebuzar-adan, Nebuchadnezzar's general, returned to the city (2 Kings 25: 8), and on the tenth he entered and began to destroy the city and the temple (Jer. 52: 12-14). On the twenty-third of this month (Jer. 52: 15, 26, 27, 30; see amended translation of verse 30 in P. '21, 88, par. 2, near middle of second col.) he led away the captives, after leaving some Israelites, under Gedaliah as governor, in the land (Jer. 52: 6). The murder of Gedaliah on the first day of the seventh month led, on the second day of this month (Jer. 41: 1-4), to the scattering of the people from their homes (Jer. 41: 1-18), i.e., made them cease to be inhabitants of the land; thereupon they went to Egypt. Since the uncrowning of Zedekiah and the desolating of the land were contemporaneous (PRESENT TRUTH '21, 92, par. 1), it was on the second day of the seventh month that both events occurred, Zedekiah being uncrowned at Riblah (Jer. 52: 9, 10, 27), which was perhaps reached by a leisurely five weeks' journey from Jerusalem, whence he departed on the twenty-third of the fifth month (Jer. 52: 30), the arrival at Riblah perhaps taking place on the first day of the seventh month, the day of Gedaliah's death (Jer. 41: 1, 4). For two reasons we understand that the expression "on the second day" (Jer. 41: 1, 4) means the second of the seventh month, as well as the day after Gedaliah's murder: (1) Since Zedekiah's uncrowning and the land's desolation were synchronous, and since these two events were the most important in the whole series of events with which Nebuchadnezzar's third unsheathing of his sword was accompanied, we ought to find their definite date given in the Bible; and this passage, if understood as above, is the only place where their definite date is given. (2) The parallel of these two events occurred Sept. 21, 1914, just 2520 years after. This proves our understanding of the datings of Jer. 41: 1, 4 to be correct. All of these events find their parallels exactly 2520 years to a day by lunar reckonings in the end of this Age. These lunar reckonings, however, are not based upon the present incorrect Jewish calendar; but upon the months beginning with the day of the moon's newing at Jerusalem. Our data for these new moons for 1912 and 1914 we have taken from Whitaker's Almanac, a Standard British Authority. Jerusalem is 35°, 13', 30" East Longitude; and therefore its time is 2 hours, 20 minutes, 54 seconds ahead of Greenwich time.

What were the date and event exactly 2520 years after the tenth day of the tenth month in Zedekiah's ninth year? The date was from 6 P. M., Dec. 17, to 6 P. M., Dec. 18, 1912; for the moon newed for the ninth month at Jerusalem Dec. 8, 1912, at 7:28 P. M. The event was connected with the first meeting of the Ambassadorial Conference of the six great European Powers, which was called by the Powers to solve the Balkan war situation. This Conference assembled for the first time on Dec. 17, 1912, in London, in the British Foreign Office; and that evening Austria's greedy purpose (the Entente diplomats called it "Austria's swine-policy") then announced by her ambassador, to checkmate for her own aggrandisement Serbia's aspirations for a seaport on the Adriatic, laid the foundations for the World War, which began the overthrow of Christendom, just exactly as 2520 years to a day before Nebuchadnezzar's laying siege to Jerusalem laid the foundation for Jerusalem's overthrow. Austria's "swine-policy" stirred up such resentment in Serbia as ultimately led to the murder of the Archduke of Austria, the direct occasion of the World War. Hence through Austria's stand, which was supported by Germany and Italy, Satan as antitypical Nebuchadnezzar began to besiege Christendom exactly 2520 years to a day after his type began to besiege Jerusalem, the type of Christendom.

The next event that calls for our attention is breaking through the walls of Jerusalem on the ninth day of the fourth month in Zedekiah's eleventh year. What date and event correspond to these? The date was June 30 from 6 P.M. to 6 P.M. July 1, 1914; for the moon newed at Jerusalem for the fourth month June 23 at 5:54 P.M. The following is the event, which occurred in connection with the Archduke's funeral: According to papers that the Allies since the war have obtained from the German Archives, through the aid of the German revolutionists, the German and Austrian General Staffs held meetings the night of June 30 to the day of July 2, 1914, at which it was decided that the opportune time, "the Day," so long feared and expected by European statesmen, had come for the great War; and these General Staffs then and there decided to force it on. This was a breaking through of the walls of Christendom's arrangements and powers, represented among others in the Hague tribunal, for safeguarding its peace and welfare, even as the parallel event occurred to a day exactly 2520 years before, when the arrangements and powers for safeguarding Jerusalem's peace and welfare, its walls were broken through. And as in consequence of the breach in the walls the Israelitish army fled and was scattered, so the defenders of Christendom's welfare and peace, the great Powers, fled before Satan's loosened angels, who brought about the decision of the German and Austrian General Staffs (Rev. 7: 1, 2). These defenders were scattered in their councils and efforts; and the leaders of both sides in various ways were captured by Satan even as the Israelitish leaders in the type were taken by Nebuchadnezzar.

The next event that calls for our attention is the return of Nebuzar-adan to Jerusalem on the seventh day of the fifth month of Zedekiah's eleventh year. What were the date and event corresponding to these? The date was from 6 P.M., July 28, to 6 P.M., July 29, 1914; for the moon newed at Jerusalem for the fifth month July 23 at 4:59 A.M. What event occurred in that period? At 8:30 P. M., July 28, 1914, Austria declared war on Serbia. European statesmen scattered, divided in their plans and methods, sought to ward off the war threatened by Austria's ultimatum to Serbia, but failed. The declaration of war that was to be the precursor of the destruction of Christendom, begun by Germany's declaration of war against Russia, came exactly on time to a day, 2520 years after its type occurred. In Austria's course the fallen angels prevailed, coming against Christendom, just as Nebuzar-adan prevailed coming against Jerusalem, exactly 2520 years before.

THE DESTRUCTION OF THE TEMPLE

One of the saddest of all the dates and events of this whole parallel now calls for our attention—that which occurred on the tenth day of the fifth month. In the type the Babylonians began to destroy the city and temple on that date, on which very date in the year 70 A.D. by a peculiar coincidence the Romans also destroyed the temple at Jerusalem. Exactly 2520 years to the day after the Babylonians began to destroy the city and temple was from 6 P.M., July 31, to 6 P.M., Aug. 1, 1914; and on this day the Kaiser, acting under Satanic control, declared war on Russia and thus changed the local war between Austria and Serbia into the World War, which began the destruction of antitypical Jerusalem, Christendom, the beginning of the destruction of the temple corresponding to the beginning of the destruction of the Nominal Church, which, like the civil power, in numbers, prestige and influence was weakened by the World War, a weakening that yet persists.

The next event given in the type (Jer. 52: 15, 26, 27, 30) was the leading away of the captives on the twenty-third day of the fifth month, just two weeks after the burning of the city and temple began. What date corresponds to this? The date exactly 2520 years after this date was from 6 P.M., Aug. 13, to 6 P.M., Aug. 14, 1914. What event occurred on this date corresponding to the leading away of the Israelites into captivity? We answer, the Czar's final decision to reunite the three sundered parts of Poland, and to grant her autonomy was that day reduced to writing and signed, and was the next day solemnly declared to the whole Polish nation. The following considerations will make this clear. Christendom has always preferred autocracy in its empire, and has yielded to democracy and self-determination only under constraint. Russia had the most autocratic government of Christendom, and for her to be compelled by circumstances to grant autonomy to any part of her empire was putting her under great restraint, symbolic captivity. And from that time on both sides were continually offering their subjects more liberty to gain their support; and thus more or less autocratic Christendom was increasingly coming into restraint, symbolic captivity. Let us in this connection remember that all of these events at the parallel times represent the beginnings, not the completions of the antitypes.

The next to the last date for our consideration in this connection is the first day of the seventh month of Zedekiah's eleventh year. The events that occurred on the first day of the seventh month were the arrival of Zedekiah at Riblah and the murder of Gedaliah at Mizpah. What was the date exactly 2520 years later corresponding to the first day of the seventh month? It was from 6 P.M., Sept. 19, to 6 P.M., Sept. 20, 1914; for the moon newed at Jerusalem for the seventh month Sept. 19, at 11:54 P.M. On that date the Battle of Aisne was being fought in its eighth day. During these eight days the Allies on the west front were attacking the fortified Germans with the greatest desperation and with the highest losses. At the end of the eight days' attack they almost despaired of dislodging the Germans, deciding to try it but one day more; and then, if they should fail, to erect trenches against those of the Germans. This decision brought Christendom to the place, antitypical Riblah, where final judgment against its lease of power was to be made; for with that day its lease of power did expire; and incidentally it killed the party (Gedaliah) that stood for a continuance of power through former war measures; for let us remember that it was by trench warfare, definitely decided upon, and entered into the next day, that Christendom, whose lease of power was then ended, received the start of the "eviction process," which will continue forty years.

And now the final date, the second day of the seventh month of Zedekiah's eleventh year. On that day Zedekiah was uncrowned, his sons, nobles and officers were slain before his eyes, and then his eyes were put out; and the Jews who were in Palestine were scattered from their dwellings, an event that was introductory to their flight to Egypt. The day exactly 2520 years later was from 6 P.M., Sept. 20, to 6 P.M., Sept. 21, 1914. On this day, the allied attack in the battle of the Aisne failing, trench warfare conditionally decided upon the day before, was entered into as the only available method to meet the conditions then prevailing. This decision resulted in a course of action that was greatly weakening to Christendom, taking away her right to rule longer under Divine lease, blasting the great reputations of Christendom's most prominent officers, and blinding the civil powers of Christendom to what was going on as incidental to the expiration of its lease of power, the beginning of its eviction. Certainly trench warfare was an eviction proceeding whose ultimate result will be the utter desolation of the social earth, as trench warfare certainly began that desolation; for it was through trench warfare that the nations wore out one another, thus weakening them preparatory for Armageddon, whereby Christendom as now organized will become "desolate without inhabitant." But trench warfare was the beginning, not the completion, of the antitypical desolation.

THE PARALLELS THE LUNAR DATES' KEY

A remark connected somewhat with our subject should here be inserted. THE PRESENT TRUTH stands for the thought that to find the first day of the lunar month we should reckon the month as beginning with the new moon day at Jerusalem, regardless of whether this agrees with the present (more or less incorrect) Jewish calendar or not. In tracing the above parallel dates in 1912 and 1914 we found that none of the dates would come on the corresponding dates given by the Jewish calendar, but that all of them came exactly right by beginning the lunar months involved with the day the moon news at Jerusalem, e.g., according to the Jewish calendar Aug. 1, 1914, was the ninth day of the fifth month. Hence it was one day short of the time required by the parallel (see Jewish Calendar for 100 years). But THE PRESENT TRUTH'S way of reckoning very properly points out Aug. 1, 1914, as the tenth day of the fifth month, The Jewish Calendar was a day ahead for the events of the first and second days of the seventh month in Zedekiah's eleventh year, as it was also wrong on the other involved days. These facts prove that God now, as well as in the Bible, counts the lunar month as beginning with the day of the new moon at Jerusalem, and that the present Jewish Calendar is by God shown to be more or less unreliable.

The parallels that we have given above we have known since Jan., 1915. Little did we at that time think that they would be used to prove to Truth people that Zedekiah's uncrowning began the Times of the Gentiles; for at that time we did not imagine that brethren with all the evidence at hand for that date would doubt such a thought. However, the facts of our days show how easily the unlearned and unstable fall away from Scriptural teachings. Let us, therefore, dear brethren, all the more hold fast the faithful Word, knowing of whom we learned it, i.e., from the Lord through His "faithful and wise Servant."

NOTE IV—FOR PAGE 180

Question: How do we know that the way of reaching the antitypical Jubilee is to square the number of years from the end of one to the end of the next Jubilee?

Answer: The facts of the case prove it; for the rule that the Lord used to work out the Jubilee of weeks and the Jubilee of years is proven by the facts to be this: The square of the lower period in terms of its component units leads up to and introduces the next higher period. Thus the Jubilee of weeks was reached by squaring the component units of a week—7 days are its component units—i.e., 7×7 , which led up to and introduced the Jubilee of days, Pentecost (Lev. 23: 15, 16), the 50th day, which completes the highest period of days—50 days. This must be squared to reach the next higher period, i.e., one of years. The square of these 50 days is 2500 days. This led up to and introduced the next higher period, that of years, by pointing out the first year of the first 7 year cycle. The square of these 7 years must be taken to lead up to and introduce the next higher period, i.e., the first Jubilee of years, the 50th year (Lev. 25: 2-12). But since the Jubilee of years is the highest period of the type, the next higher period must be the antitypical Jubilee, which is reached by squaring the component units of the highest period of the type, the time from the end of one Jubilee to that of the next, 50 years. Accordingly, $50 \times 50 \text{ years} = 2500 \text{ years}$, which led to and introduced the antitypical Jubilee, as we have learned from Vol. II, chapter 6. Accordingly, each one of these 50-year periods is by the facts proven to be the antitype of the 7 days in each of the 7 cycles of days and of the 7 years in each of the 7 cycles of years. In Lev. 25: 9 we are shown that the Jubilee of years began on the Atonement Day, i.e., the tenth day of the seventh month; therefore the first cycle (of seven years) of its 7 cycles began 49 years before, on the tenth day of the seventh month. The spies brought back their report about the first day of the seventh month, 40 days after their being sent out (Num. 13: 20, 25), nearly a year and a half after Israel's leaving Egypt; 38 years following the day after the spies' return (Num. 14: 25) Israel crossed the Zared, which was the southern boundary of Moab (Deut. 2: 14). Prohibited from tarrying in the land of Moab and Ammon, they must have camped only nights while journeying through Moab near its boundary on Ammon, and perhaps crossing it in four or five days (Num. 21: 12, 13) to the Arnon, whence they sent messengers to Sihon, king of the Amorites, asking permission to pass through his land. These messengers were gone perhaps four or five days in their journey to, tarrying at, and return from Heshbon (Deut. 2: 30; Num. 21: 26). Then immediately followed the invasion of the land that became Israel's east of the Jordan and of the northern part of the Dead Sea. Thus the land was invaded about the 11th day of the seventh month. We say the 11th, and not the 10th, because the 10th was the Atonement Day, on which the Jews would not journey. Thus Lev. 25: 9; Num. 21: 12, 13; Deut. 2: 14, 30, prove that the land east of the Jordan and of the northern part of the Dead Sea was invaded about the 11th of the seventh month. Hence the 49th year ended with the 10th of the seventh month, when the Jubilee trumpets were first blown (Lev. 25: 9). The 2500 days leading up to, and pointing out the first year of the first cycle of seven years, which started the tenth day of the seventh month of the year 1576 B.C., began the day after Pentecost about six years and four months before; for the 2500 days from that Pentecost bring us to Nisan 10, 1575 B.C. the date of Israel's crossing Jordan (Josh. 4: 19). Thus dividing the days in a year 365.242 into 2500 days gives us 6.842 years, and .842 of a year is 57.6 days less than a year. 6.842 years are the exact length of time from the day after the day of Pentecost of the seventh year before, i.e., 1582 B.C., until Nisan 10, 1575 B.C. But the question arises, Why did not this time come to the tenth day of the preceding seventh month, that of 1576 B.C., i.e., when the first cycle of 7 year cycles began? We answer: (1) because in the case of the fifty days and the fifty years, their squares reached into the next higher period, i.e., it did this in each case wherein the square of each Jubilee system was involved; (2) because God knew that by starting the seven cycles (of seven years each) on the tenth of the seventh month, the beginning of the typical cycles was from the out-start sufficiently clearly marked by the seven cycles (of seven years each) starting then; and (3) because God desired also to mark clearly the date of the invasion of the land west of the Jordan, in order to fix clearly the first year of the first cycle as beginning sometime before the land west of the Jordan was invaded, and thus show that the counting of the years until the beginning of the first Jubilee was to start with the invasion of the land east of the Jordan and of the northern part of the Dead Sea. Therefore, the answer to our question demonstrates the veracity of the rule, i.e., to square the component units of the lower period in order to reach the next higher one, and also proves the propriety of beginning to count the cycles leading up to the first Jubilee year as starting at the invasion of the land east of the Jordan and of the northern part of the Dead Sea.

BEREAN QUESTIONS IN SCRIPTURE STUDIES

SERIES II

SPECIAL TIMES AND SEASONS DIVINELY APPOINTED

1. What features of the Divine Program are treated in Volume 2 of "Scripture Studies"? P. 13, ¶ 1.
2. What exhortation is now due to the still loyal though drowsy children of the Kingdom? P. 13, ¶ 2.
3. Why is a thorough understanding of the Plan of the Ages a pre-requisite to an appreciation of the Divinely appointed times and seasons? P. 14, ¶ 1.
4. Why should we expect more truth to be revealed in the Harvest of this Age than in times past? P. 14, ¶ 2.
5. What is the proper method of interpreting prophecy? P. 15, ¶ 1.
6. What is the character of the Scriptural testimony respecting the times and seasons, and what impression does this knowledge make upon the studious and reverent inquirer? P. 15, ¶ 2.
7. What do we find respecting the length of the Gospel "harvest," and what are some of the many great and wonderful events that will transpire during this period? P. 15, ¶ 3.
8. What attitude of mind and heart is necessary in order to receive the testimony of the prophecies, as set forth in this volume? And what is evidently the object for which these now unfolding prophecies are designed? P. 16, ¶ 1.
9. Why should those who have been permitted to view God's chart of the ages be especially anxious to learn whatever has been revealed concerning the times and seasons?

P. 17, ¶ 1.

10. Is such interest displeasing to God? If not, why did He not gratify the desires of the Prophets and Apostles along these lines?

P. 17, ¶ 2.

11. Should a desire to understand the prophecies be considered an improper prying into God's secrets? What is the only safe ground to take with respect to interpreting prophecy? What has been God's method of revealing His Plan, both in detail and in general outline? P. 17, ¶ 3.

12. What were our Lord's replies to the disciples who inquired of Him respecting the time for the setting up of the Kingdom? P. 18, ¶ 1.

13. What is the popular but erroneous interpretation of Mark 13: 32, 33, 37? And how should these words be explained? P. 18, ¶ 2.

14. What do these words of the Lord indicate respecting the Father's method of executing His great work? P. 19, ¶ 1.

15. Should we understand from Jesus' replies to His disciples that He rebuked them and forbade all interest in and investigation of these subjects? What was the significance of His exhortation to "take heed" and to "watch"? P. 19, ¶ 2.

16. What was the experience of those who watched all down the age, and what will be the portion of those who will be living in the "due time" and watching? What does neglecting to watch indicate? P. 19, ¶ 3.

17. How does St. Peter call attention to the times and seasons, and to what does he refer in 2 Pet. 1:16? What is his exhortation in 2 Pet. 1: 19? P. 20, ¶ 1.

18. What is the declaration of St. Paul regarding the time and seasons? 1 Thes. 5: 1-4; P. 20, ¶ 2.

19. What advantage with respect to the times and seasons have the Lord's people enjoyed in contrast with the world? Cite Scriptural instances. P. 21, ¶ 1.

20. What assurance is given us in Amos 3: 7? P. 22, ¶ 1.

21. Why does St. Paul so positively declare that "ye brethren" will know of the times and seasons when due? 1 Thes. 5: 5; P. 22, ¶ 2.

22. What is the significance of "ye" and "they," as used by the Apostle in this connection? P. 22, ¶ 3.
23. What does ignorance of the times and seasons indicate? P. 23, ¶ 1.
24. Did the Prophets understand the full import of their prophecies? What is their testimony on this point? P. 23, ¶ 2.
25. How does a Combination Time-Lock aptly illustrate the Divine arrangement of the time-prophecies? And how does the Lord Jesus "open" to us the time features of the Divine Plan? P. 23, ¶ 3; P. 24, ¶ 1.
26. How, does this illustration of the Time-Lock fit the entire Plan of God? P. 24, ¶ 2.
27. How has the Divine wisdom been manifested in keeping hidden in the past the times and seasons, and revealing them in this "time of the end"? P. 25, ¶ 1.
28. What Scriptures indicate that our God is a God of order? P. 25, ¶ 2.
29. Why were time-prophecies given? P. 25, ¶ 3.
30. Is the fact that the majority of Christians are indifferent regarding the study of time-prophecies any reason why those who "love His appearing" should drop into similar lukewarmness? P. 26, ¶ 1.
31. What is the significance of the Prophet Isaiah's declaration respecting "both the houses of Israel"? Isa. 8: 14; P. 26, ¶ 2.
32. What are the chief essentials to the proper understanding of prophecy and the signs of the times? P. 27, ¶ 1.
33. What was the contrast in the attitudes of the "Israelites indeed" and the Pharisees in the "harvest" of the Jewish Age? P. 27, ¶ 2.
34. How do these find their parallels in the end of the Gospel Age? P. 28, ¶ 1.
35. What is the great importance of a knowledge of the times and seasons? P. 28, ¶ 2.
36. Why does a special odium attach to the study of prophetic time? P. 29, ¶ 1.
37. What was the common cause of failure in the case of both the First and Second Adventists? P. 29, ¶ 2; P. 30, ¶ 1.

38. Were time-prophecies designed to alarm or convert the world? If not, what was evidently the Lord's purpose in giving them?

P. 30, ¶ 2; P. 31, ¶ 1.

39. What was the error of the Second Adventists which led to their disappointment? And what was the primary cause of their failure to understand the prophecies? P. 31, ¶ 2.

40. In their attempt to force all prophetic periods to one common day of termination, how did the Adventists handle the time-prophecies? On the contrary, what method is pursued in our present study of the times and seasons? P. 32, ¶ 1.

STUDY II

BIBLE CHRONOLOGY

1. What does the date 1872 A.D mark? And why is a knowledge of chronology the necessary basis for the study of prophetic periods?

P. 33, ¶ 1, 2.

2. How has the length of time since the creation of man been variously estimated? And what has been the method of scientific (?) calculations? P. 33, ¶ 3; P. 34, ¶ 1.

3. Why do such calculations appear very unreliable to an unscientific mind? P. 34, ¶ 2; P. 35, ¶ 1.

4. What information does purely human history afford us on this subject of chronology? And where only can be found any connected and reasonable account of the first three thousand years of man on the earth? P. 35, ¶ 2.

5. Aside from the Bible, what means has the world for tracing its chronology, and what is the earliest recorded date? P. 36, ¶ 1.

6. With the exception of the Hebrews, what is the condition of chronological records among the ancient nations? P. 36, ¶ 2; P. 37, ¶ 1.

7. What remarkable contrast is presented by the history contained in the Hebrew Scriptures? P. 37, ¶ 2.

8. Describe the character of Bible Chronology. Where does it end? What is "the chart of all history"? P. 37, ¶ 3.
9. What, therefore, should we expect of the Bible with respect to chronology? P. 38, ¶ 1.
10. Are God's times and seasons stated in clear and unmistakable language? If not, in what manner are they given, and what class alone can appreciate them? P. 38, ¶ 2.
11. What is the difference between the Septuagint and Hebrew versions of the Old Testament, and why is the Hebrew preferable as an authority? P. 39, ¶ 1.
12. Does the Bible directly state that the seventh thousand years will be the period of Christ's reign on earth? If not, what reasonable and Scriptural grounds are there for such belief? P. 39, ¶ 2.
13. What have we previously learned respecting the term day, and how does this apply to the "Day of the Lord"? P. 40, ¶ 1.
14. What have we learned from Scripture regarding the character of the dawn of the Millennium, or Day of the Lord? P. 40, ¶ 2.
15. What is the general condition of the world, especially since 1873, and how does this state of affairs correspond with the prophecies? P. 41, ¶ 1.
16. Is chronology of value only in pointing out the seventh epoch or Millennium? What is the relation between chronology and prophecy? P. 41, ¶ 2.
17. Why is our study of chronology termed Bible Chronology? And what evidence of Divine oversight is manifested in this Bible Chronology? P. 42, ¶ 1.
18. Give a condensed statement of chronology from the creation of Adam to the year of the world 6000, otherwise A.D 1872. P. 42, ¶ 2.
19. Is the Bible Chronology of the Old Testament without a break? P. 42, ¶ 3.
20. Verify, with Bible in hand, the chronology from the creation of Adam to the day the Noahic flood was dried up, a period of 1656 years. P. 43.
21. Examine and prove the chronology from the flood to the Covenant with Abraham, a period of 427 years. P. 44, ¶ 1.

22. What difficulty is encountered in tracing the chronology from the Covenant with Abraham to the giving of the Law, and how has this chasm been Divinely bridged? P. 44, ¶ 2.

23. How is the date of the Covenant with Abraham established as a starting point for this period? P. 44, ¶ 3.

24. When did the Lord Jehovah propose the Covenant to Abraham, and what was the stipulation demanded before the Covenant could be actually made? What date, therefore, is fixed by Terah's death? What was the first feature of the Mosaic Law; and when was it instituted?

P. 45, ¶ 1.

25. What Scriptures give the date of the Exodus of the Children of Israel from Egypt? P. 46, ¶ 1.

26. Harmonize the apparent contradiction in the statements of Moses and St. Paul regarding the period from the Covenant with Abraham to the Exodus and giving of the Law, as noted in Ex. 12: 40-42 and Gal. 3: 17. P. 46, ¶ 2; P. 47, ¶ 1, 2.

27. How do we find the period from the Exodus to the Division of the Land of Canaan among the tribes of Israel?

P. 47, ¶ 3, and P. 48, footnote.

28. Why is the period of the Judges the most difficult in Bible Chronology, and how has the problem been Divinely solved?

P. 49, ¶ 1 to 3.

29. Trace the period of the Kings, 513 years. P. 50.

30. How long did the Desolation of the Land continue? And where does Bible Chronology cease? P. 51, ¶ 1.

31. What is the length of the period from the Restoration of the Jews to Jerusalem under Cyrus to A.D 1? P. 51 ¶ 2.

32. How many years from the Creation to the beginning of the Christian Era? How many more are necessary to complete 6,000 years, and what year A.D is thus marked? P. 51, ¶ 3.

33. Briefly, how does the foregoing chronology differ from that of Bishop Usher, given in the margin of our Common Version Bibles?

P. 51, ¶ 4.

34. Where does Usher make a mistake of 18 years? P. 52, ¶ 1.
35. How does Usher's difference of 4 years occur? P. 52, ¶ 2.
36. Where is the difference of 2 years found? P. 52, ¶ 3.
37. How can these differences be accounted for? P. 52, ¶ 4.
38. What error in I Kings 6:1 led Usher into a mistake of 100 years? P. 52, ¶ 5.
39. How has the Lord overruled such errors? P. 53, ¶ 1.
40. So then, where Usher gives A.D 1 as the year 4005 from the creation of Adam, what year should it be, according to Bible Chronology? P. 53, ¶ 2.
41. In conclusion, where do we find ourselves on the stream of time? P. 54, ¶ 1.
42. When did the Church begin to reckon time from the birth of Christ? And how would this date, if incorrectly placed, affect our Bible Chronology? Give illustration of this point. P. 54, ¶ 2; P. 55, ¶ 1.
43. What error with respect to our Lord's birth is commonly accepted by scholars? And what say the Scriptures on this point? P. 55, ¶ 2.
44. What reason is given for the claim that our Lord was born four years before the commonly accepted date A.D? P. 55, ¶ 3; P. 56, ¶ 1.
45. Under what conditions only would an eclipse of the moon prove valuable in determining a date? P. 56, ¶ 2.
46. What were the facts in regard to eclipses of the moon in B.C. 4 and B.C. 1, respectively? P. 57, ¶ 1.
47. What is the conflict of opinion among scholars as to the date of Herod's death, and what does this signify? P. 57, ¶ 2, 3.
48. What are the first steps to be taken in seeking the date of our Lord's birth from Scriptural evidences? P. 58, ¶ 1, 2.
49. How much older than Jesus was John the Baptist? And when did John begin his ministry, according to Luke 3: 1? P. 58, ¶ 3.

50. To what straits are those driven who place the date of Jesus' birth at B.C. 4, in their efforts to harmonize it with Luke's statement regarding the fifteenth year of Tiberius Caesar? And what are the historical facts regarding the dates of Tiberius' reign?

P. 58, ¶ 4 to P. 60, ¶ 1.

51. What, therefore, is our conclusion respecting the date of Luke 3: 1, and how does this definitely and unequivocally fix the date of Jesus' birth? P. 60, ¶ 2.

52. What is the evidence that Jesus was crucified on Friday, April 3, A.D. 33? And how do Usher's dates prove that he was forced to admit A.D. 33 as the date of the crucifixion? P. 60, ¶ 3.

53. How is the date of Jesus' birth proven, by the date of His crucifixion and the length of His ministry, to have been about October 1, B.C. 2? P. 61, ¶ 1.

STUDY III

THE FULFILMENT OF TIME-PROPHECY AT THE FIRST ADVENT OF CHRIST.

1. In whose prophecy are the "seventy weeks" mentioned? Read and paraphrase Daniel 9: 23-27. P. 63, ¶ 1, 2.

2. What part of the Jewish Age is specially marked by this prophecy? P. 64, ¶ 1.

3. What is the peculiarity of this prophecy, and why is it essential that we clearly establish its fulfillment? P. 64, ¶ 2.

4. What had been the character of Daniel's previous visions, described in Chapters 2, 4, 7 and 8? And why was he specially solicitous about Israel at the time referred to in Chapter 9? P. 64, ¶ 3.

5. How was the starting point of the "seventy weeks" indicated? And what events were to transpire during this period? P. 65, ¶ 1, 2.

6. What principle of prophetic time was established in the fulfillment of the 70 weeks or 490 days? And of what value is this principle in studying time prophecies? P. 65, ¶ 3.

7. To what event did the 69 symbolic weeks reach? At what date A.D did they end? P. 66, ¶ 1.
8. From what event have most writers on this subject begun to count the 70 weeks? And wherein have they erred? What apparent objection is there to counting this period from the 20th year of Artaxerxes, and how may it be answered? P. 66, ¶ 2.
9. What date is commonly attributed to Nehemiah's commission, and what is the true date? P. 67, ¶ 1.
10. What is the proof that 454 B.C. is the proper date from which to count the 70 weeks? P. 67, ¶ 2.
11. How was the date of Messiah's crucifixion indicated in this prophecy? P. 68, ¶ 1.
12. What is signified by the statement, "He (Messiah) shall cause the sacrifice and oblation to cease"? P. 68, ¶ 2.
13. How did Messiah fulfill the statements of Daniel 9: 24? And did this prophecy indicate how much time would be given to the fulfillment of these things? P. 68, ¶ 3; P. 69, ¶ 1.
14. Did this prophecy show that the mass of the people would be cast off in the midst of the "week"? What one and only feature of the prophecy (Dan. 9: 24) was not fulfilled within the half-week (3½ years) of Jesus' ministry? P. 69, ¶ 2.
15. Did God promise 70 weeks to the nation of Israel and actually give them only 69 weeks, as the foregoing would seem to indicate? How harmonize? P. 70, ¶ 1.
16. What were the characteristic features of the last 3½ years, as regards Israel? P. 70, ¶ 2.
17. In harmony with this, what was Jesus' commission to His disciples with respect to their work during the 3½ years immediately following His death? P. 71, ¶ 1.
18. What was probably the date of Cornelius' conversion, and what fact was appropriately marked by this incident? P. 71, ¶ 2.
19. In what manner were the distress and trouble prophesied in Dan. 9: 26 and 27 fulfilled? P. 71, ¶ 3.
20. Why is a careful re-reading and study of Dan. 9: 23-27 advisable? P. 72.

THE TIMES OF THE GENTILES

1. Where does the expression, "Times of the Gentiles," occur in Scripture, and to what period does it apply? P. 73, ¶ 1 to 3.
2. To whom was the dominion of the earth originally given? How did he exercise this dominion, and to whom was it given subsequent to Adam's disobedience? What declaration of Jehovah's purpose was made to Abraham after the flood? P. 73, ¶ 4.
3. What was the earliest suggestion from God regarding a national universal dominion over the earth? And what did this imply? P. 74, ¶ 1.
4. What was the effect of Israel's hope upon other nations?
P. 74, ¶ 2.
5. When God was about to remove the crown from Israel's last king, what was His determination with respect to Gentile Kingdoms? P. 75, ¶ 1.
6. Since the Kingdom of Israel was in some respects typical of the Kingdom of Christ, what course of action was appropriate on God's part when Israel had proven themselves unfit for universal dominion? P. 75, ¶ 2.
7. How has this overturning of dominion been accomplished? What will be the Fifth Universal Empire of Earth? P. 76, ¶ 1.
8. What date will mark the end of Gentile lease of dominion? If this date can be accurately fixed, what will it prove regarding the Kingdom of God? P. 76, ¶ 2; P. 77, ¶ 1.
9. What will this date prove respecting Earth's new Ruler?
P. 77, ¶ 2.
10. What will this date prove with regard to the last member of the Body of Christ? P. 77, ¶ 3.
11. Fourthly, what will it prove as respects Jerusalem and its relation to the Gentiles? P. 77 ¶ 4.
12. Fifthly, what will it prove respecting Israel's "blindness"?
P. 77, ¶ 5.

13. What will the fixing of this date prove with respect to the great "Time of Trouble"? P. 77, ¶ 6.
14. What will this date prove regarding the relation between God's Kingdom and the "powers that be"? P. 78, ¶ 1.
15. What do our Lord's words, "Until the Times of the Gentiles be fulfilled," imply? P. 78, ¶ 2.
16. Does the Bible locate the beginning of Gentile Times and also furnish the length of this period? In what manner? P. 79, ¶ 1.
17. What is the Scriptural evidence as to length of this period and the date of its beginning? P. 79, ¶ 2.
18. Briefly, what has been the history of the Jewish nation since the crown was taken from Zedekiah? P. 79, ¶ 3.
19. Give in detail the method of arriving at the date for the beginning of Gentile Times. P. 79, ¶ 4.
20. Recognizing God's lease of power to the Gentile Kingdoms, is it reasonable to believe that the Kingdom of God was set up at Pentecost? What is the truth about "Christendom's" claims? P. 80, ¶ 1.
21. What has been the position of the Kingdom of Christ during the Gospel Age, and how long will its humiliation continue? What should be the attitude of the true Church toward "the Kingdoms of this world"? P. 80, ¶ 2.
22. When will fleshly Israel come into their promised inheritance? P. 81, ¶ 1.
23. How did the removal of the crown from Zedekiah affect the promise, "The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, etc."? (Gen. 49: 10). P. 81, ¶ 2.
24. How did Moses seem to fulfill the promise of a great deliverer, and what was his prophetic declaration on this point? To what tribe did the promise finally narrow down? P. 82, ¶ 1.
25. What were Israel's expectations during David's and Solomon's reigns? P. 82, ¶ 2.
26. How were their hopes destroyed? P. 83, ¶ 1.
27. When the crown was removed from the last King of Israel, was the sceptre also taken away? How was this pointed out in the decree against Zedekiah? P. 83, ¶ 2.

28. In what manner did the Law Covenant restrict the Abrahamic Covenant? And how did this lead to the formation of the sect of the Pharisees? P. 83, ¶ 3.

29. What was Jesus' teaching with respect to the ability of any man to keep the perfect Law of God? Did Jesus censure the Pharisees for attempting or failing to keep the Law fully, or for what did He blame them? P. 84, ¶ 1.

30. What did Jesus declare to be the full import of the Law? And how did He illustrate it in His own life? P. 84, ¶ 2.

31. Through His perfect obedience to the Law, what things were accomplished by our Lord Jesus? P. 85, ¶ 1.

32. How was the Law Covenant affected by Jesus' acquisition of the "sceptre"? P. 85, ¶ 2.

33. What did the "Prince of Peace" thus secure for His subjects? And how did He fulfill the prophecy of Gen. 49: 10? P. 85, ¶ 3.

34. Why did those who "waited for the consolation of Israel" return after the seventy years' captivity, gathering about the tribe of Judah, and yet reject the "Lion of the tribe of Judah" when He came? P. 86, ¶ 1.

35. "Shiloh" having received the sceptre and "all power" at His resurrection, what has been His subsequent work during the Gospel Age? When will He, "whose right it is" to rule, receive the crown, or great power, and begin His glorious reign? P. 86, ¶ 2.

36. What do we expect to prove (in this study) regarding the length of the Times of the Gentiles? P. 87, ¶ 1.

37. Shall we find this evidence clearly stated in so many words, or in what manner? P. 87, ¶ 2.

38. What do our Lord's words, "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the Times of the Gentiles be fulfilled," suggest? P. 87, ¶ 3.

39. What suggestions do we receive from Leviticus 26: 17, 18, 24, 28? P. 87, ¶ 4.

40. How often is this threat of "seven times" mentioned? What do the various punishments previously mentioned refer to? These having failed, how was the threat of "seven times" applied? P. 88, ¶ 1.

41. What does the connection indicate regarding the corrective effect of these "seven times" upon the people of Israel? P. 88, ¶ 2.

42. At what time would the lesser captivities be due to give place to the final chastisement of "seven times"? P. 88, ¶ 3.

43. How is the term, "time," Scripturally used? And how is a symbolic "year," as used in prophecy, reckoned? P. 89, ¶ 1.

44. Were the "seven times" of Israel's punishment literal or symbolic? In what manner do we decide this matter? P. 89, ¶ 2.

45. How do we know that Nebuchadnezzar's "seven times" were seven literal years, and that Israel's "seven times" were symbolic years? P. 90, ¶ 1.

46. What other name is Scripturally applied to the "seven times" of Israel's punishment? P. 90, ¶ 2.

47. Show by diagram the length of Israel's "seven times," when they began, and when they will end.
P. 90, ¶ 3.

48. Cite several instances which prove that "a day for a year" is Bible usage in symbolic prophecy. What specially marked fulfillment of prophecy has established the principle upon which the "seven times" of Gentile rule are reckoned? P. 91.

49. Had Israel's "seven times" been fulfilled in seven literal years, what result would have immediately followed? P. 92, ¶ 1.

50. Was the restoration of Israel by Cyrus a release from Gentile rule? If not, when should we expect this release to take place, and are there any significant indications among the Jews at the present time? P. 92, ¶ 2.

51. Where is another view of Gentile Times presented in Scripture? P. 93, ¶ 1, 2.

52. What is the interpretation of Nebuchadnezzar's dream?
P. 94, ¶ 1, 2; P. 95, ¶ 1.

53. How was this dream fulfilled in Nebuchadnezzar's experiences? And what is the evident object in this so carefully narrated and interpreted dream of a heathen king? P. 95, ¶ 2.

54. Why was this dream specially appropriate to Nebuchadnezzar? What language was used by him after he had learned the intended lesson? P. 96, ¶ 1, 2.

55. Of what was Nebuchadnezzar's degradation typical? P. 96, ¶ 3.

56. Why were the Gentile governments portrayed as wild beasts, and how was the Ruler of God's Kingdom represented to Daniel in a vision? P. 97, ¶ 1.

57. What three facts show the fitness of Nebuchadnezzar's seven literal years as an illustration of the seven symbolic years of Gentile Times? P. 97, ¶ 2.

58. Is a knowledge of the exact date of Nebuchadnezzar's degradation essential to the foregoing argument? P. 97, ¶ 3.

59. What is the refreshing prospect brought to view after the close of Gentile Times? P. 98, ¶ 1, 2.

60. Are there any present indications of reason returning to mankind? What final experience will be necessary before they come to a full recognition of Jehovah and His rightful sovereignty over all? P. 98, ¶ 3.

61. What agencies for the undermining of earthly empires have been rapidly developing during the past few years? P. 98, ¶ 4.

62. In view of the Bible evidence concerning the Times of the Gentiles, what may be considered an established truth? P. 99, ¶ 1.

63. At what time was the Kingdom of God set up, as recorded in Nebuchadnezzar's dream? And how does this correspond with the history of the setting up of the beastly governments? P. 99, ¶ 2.

64. What will be the immediate cause of the great time of trouble and the breaking to pieces of present kingdoms? P. 100, ¶ 1.

65. Since we have noted a great difference in character between the Kingdom of God and the Gentile kingdoms, what difference should we expect in their modes of warfare? Should we look for a peaceable transfer of dominion?

P. 100, ¶ 2.

66. Briefly, at what time is the Kingdom of God due to begin the exercise of power? And when will the "battle of the great day of God Almighty" end? P. 101, ¶ 1.

67. What is the character of the events due to take place during the "Day of the Lord"? And what is the "sword that is wounding the heads over many nations"? P. 101, ¶ 2, 3.

68. Why and how will all finally accept the Kingdom of God as the "desire of all nations"? P. 102.

STUDY V

THE MANNER OF OUR LORD'S RETURN AND APPEARING

1. Why is the interest of the Church of Christ centered in the closing years of the Gentile Times? P. 103, ¶ 1.

2. What two features of the Lord's Second Advent must be clearly kept in mind in order to appreciate the prophetic teachings on this subject. And how are these two features related to each other?

P. 103, ¶ 2.

3. How does the work of the Second Advent stand related to that of the First Advent of Christ? P. 104, ¶ 1.

4. What must be the first work of our Lord at His Second Advent? How and when will this be accomplished?

P. 104, ¶ 2.

5. How can we harmonize the apparently conflicting statements of our Lord, "Lo, I am with you always, etc.," and "I will come again" (Matt. 28: 20; John 14: 2, 3)? P. 105, ¶ 1.

6. Since the work of the Second Advent covers a thousand years, should we expect to find more or less space given to it, in prophecy, than to the First Advent? P. 105, ¶ 2; P. 106, ¶ 1.

7. In our study of the Second Advent, should we expect to find all prophecies marking one particular event or moment of the Lord's arrival? Was this the case at the First Advent? What is the most important thought in considering the Second Advent? P. 106, ¶ 2.

8. Why is it essential to keep in mind our Lord's change of nature at His resurrection, when studying the Second Advent? P. 107, ¶ 1, 2.
9. Contrast the conditions of His First and Second Advents. P. 108, ¶ 1, and footnote.
10. What methods characterized the Lord's manifestations of Himself to His disciples after His resurrection, as well as previously? And what may we, therefore, expect at His Second Advent? P. 109, ¶ 1.
11. What two facts were necessary to be clearly demonstrated by our Lord in His manifestations after His resurrection? And what were the peculiarities of these manifestations? P. 109, ¶ 2.
12. What was the method of the Lord's teaching regarding the Kingdom? And why were His disciples unable to arm themselves against the disappointment of their hopes? P. 110, ¶ 1, 2.
13. Realizing His disciples' sorrow and perplexity, what was the Master's chief concern and work after His resurrection? P. 111, ¶ 1.
14. Briefly, in what manner did He break to them the news of His resurrection? To whom was His resurrection first declared? P. 111, ¶ 2.
15. To whom did Jesus first appear, and what was His message to them? P. 112, ¶ 1.
16. What were the experiences of Peter and John, and Mary Magdalene, respectively? P. 112, ¶ 2; P. 113, ¶ 1.
17. In what manner did He next reveal Himself to the two disciples on their way to Emmaus? P. 113, ¶ 2; P. 114, ¶ 1.
18. Why did these disciples not recognize the Lord until He had taken bread and broken it? P. 115, ¶ 1.
19. What did these two disciples do immediately after they realized what had happened? How was this first informal "love feast" on the first day of the week afterwards commemorated? P. 115, ¶ 2.
20. How was the disciples' joy still further increased while they were relating their several experiences in this little meeting? And what were the peculiarities of this manifestation by their risen Lord? P. 115, ¶ 3.

21. What period of time intervened until the next manifestation? And what was Thomas' experience at this time? P. 116, ¶ 1.
22. After this manifestation by their Lord, what were probably the experiences of the disciples for some time, and what were their perplexities? P. 116, ¶ 2; P. 117, ¶ 1.
23. What was doubtless the attitude of their risen Lord during this period? P. 117, ¶ 2.
24. What was Jesus' next manifestation and miracle (Luke 5: 4-11)? P. 118, ¶ 1, 2.
25. What was the Lord's injunction to His disciples at this time? What question did they ask of the Master, and what was His prophetic reply? P. 119, P. 120, top, and footnote.
26. After our Lord's ascension, what deeper insight into the Divine Plan, what clearer understanding of the Kingdom and the King, was given to the disciples? P. 120.
27. What course was next followed by the disciples, according to their Lord's injunction? P. 121, ¶ 1.
28. Will the Lord manifest Himself in exactly the same manner at His Second Advent? P. 121, ¶ 2.
29. Would it be impossible for Christ to appear in human form at His Second Advent? Why would such manifestations be out of harmony with the general tenor of the Divine Plan? P. 122, ¶ 1.
30. Is knowledge obtainable in no other way than by hearing with the natural ear and seeing with the natural eye? P. 122, ¶ 2.
31. What was the necessity for our Lord's appearing as He did to His disciples, and does such necessity now exist? P. 123, ¶ 1.
32. Although Jesus removed the natural obstacles to their faith, by assuming human form, etc., what was His most effectual method of convincing His disciples and making them witnesses of His resurrection? P. 123, ¶ 2.
33. Our Lord might have appeared to His disciples as a flame of fire, but what would such manifestation have accomplished? P. 124, ¶ 1.
34. Had He appeared in the glory of the spirit form, as the Angel did to Daniel, what would have been the result?

P. 124, ¶ 2.

35. During the forty days between His resurrection and ascension, how much of the time was the Lord visibly manifest to His disciples? And what conclusion suggests itself regarding His condition the rest of the time? P. 125, ¶ 1, first ten lines.

36. How many times did Jesus manifest Himself in exactly the same form so familiar to His disciples during the three years of their intimacy with Him? Why was this so, and how did He manifest Himself at other times? P. 125, ¶ 1, eleventh line, to ¶ 3.

37. What facts did Jesus thus prove to His disciples?

P. 126, ¶ 1, and footnote.*

38. What unquestionable proofs were given by the Lord that He was no longer a human being? P. 126, ¶ 2, to P. 127, ¶ 2.

39. Is the foregoing in harmony with the teachings of Spiritism, Swedenborgianism, etc.? If not, what is the difference?

P. 126, footnote.†

40. Have there been other similar manifestations on special occasions for special communications from Jehovah? Cite some instances. P. 127, ¶ 3.

41. What proof is there that the bodies assumed by these spirit beings were not their glorious spirit bodies?

P. 127, ¶ 4.

42. How do we know that the bodies in which our Lord appeared were real, human bodies, and not mere delusions? P. 128, ¶ 1.

43. What absurd deductions have been drawn from our Lord's statement, "A spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see Me have"? P. 128, ¶ 2.

44. To what erroneous conclusions would we be led by the popular idea that our Lord's resurrected body is the same body in which He was crucified? P. 128, ¶ 3.

45. Is it any more reasonable to suppose our Lord's spirit body since His resurrection is human than to suppose that His spirit body previous to His being made flesh was human? P. 129, ¶ 1.

46. What became of our Lord's human body, and why was it thus disposed of? P. 129, ¶ 2.
47. If our Lord's glorious resurrection body was a body of flesh, how can we account for His appearances and disappearances, and the various forms of His manifestations? P. 130, ¶ 1.
48. May we take the position that these were merely miracles? P. 130, ¶ 2.
49. What difference specially characterized our Lord's manner toward His disciples after His resurrection, and why did this seem expedient? P. 131, ¶ 1.
50. What thoughts respecting Jehovah's personality will help us to appreciate our Lord's condition since His resurrection? What say the Scriptures as to man's ability to see God? Do the angels see God? P. 131, ¶ 2.
51. If our Lord Jesus, since His resurrection, is still the man Christ Jesus, how harmonize with the Scriptural declaration of His exaltation? Could Jesus see God, if still a human being? If Jesus took again His human nature at His resurrection, what would be His physical appearance throughout eternity? And, if "we shall be like Him," what appearance would be presented by the martyrs? Why is this view unscriptural, as well as most unreasonable? P. 132, ¶ 1.
52. What experience was necessary for Paul in order to become an Apostle? What was our Lord's object in appearing to Paul in His glorified body, as He is, instead of as He was? How will the Church see Christ? P. 133, ¶ 1.
53. What did Moses typify when he came down from the Mount? And what was the significance of his veil? P. 134, ¶ 1.
54. As we give the manner of our Lord's manifestations after His resurrection more careful study, what are our conclusions? And, recognizing His great exaltation, what should be our expectations regarding His revelation at His second advent? P. 135, ¶ 1.
55. If the Lord were to manifest Himself in glory to the world, what would be the result? What would be the effect, were He to appear as a man? P. 135, ¶ 2.
56. How was "God manifest in the flesh" of Jesus?

How, therefore, should we expect the Christ to be manifest in the flesh? P. 136, ¶ 1.

57. At the very beginning of the Millennium, how will Christ be "manifested in the flesh"? And how may all mankind become images of God and of Christ? P. 136, ¶ 2.

58. What will be the condition of the perfect man, as respects the Holy Spirit and Word of God? What methods of communication and instruction will probably be used between the Spiritual Kingdom and its earthly representatives? P. 136, ¶ 3.

59. Does anything in reason or Scripture demand that Christ shall appear in various bodies of flesh and bones at His second advent? How does Satan's kingdom operate and how is he manifest in the flesh? P. 137, ¶ 1.

60. How will The Christ, "changed," operate in similar manner, but with opposite results? P. 137, ¶ 2.

61. How will the Lord's presence be manifested to the world, and recognized by mankind in general? P. 137, ¶ 3.

62. What has long been the popular idea with respect to the relation between evil doers and distress and trouble? What have been the facts in the past as regards this principle? How will the Day of Wrath change these matters? What Psalms especially depict the operations of the new Government? P. 137, ¶ 4.

63. Will the presence of the new King of earth be suddenly revealed? P. 138, ¶ 1.

64. As the great trouble increases, what efforts will mankind put forth towards protecting themselves? P. 139, ¶ 1, and footnote.

65. What will become of the idolatry of money in that day? Quote the Scriptures on this point. P. 139, ¶ 2.

66. Will the world recognize the cause of the trouble in the beginning of the Day of Wrath? P. 139, ¶ 3.

67. From whom and through whom will the retribution of the Time of Trouble come upon the unrighteous? How might the trouble be greatly lessened? P. 140, ¶ 1.

68. When will the world fully realize the true state of matters and the part they took in the "battle of the great day of God Almighty"? P. 140, ¶ 2.

69. Why will some learn the significance of the trouble more quickly than others? Will the Lord at this time leave Himself without witnesses as to the cause of the trouble? P. 141, ¶ 1.

70. How will the position of the Church differ from that of the world at the Lord's Second Advent, and why? What is the mission of the "feet" or last members of the Church of Christ at this time?

P. 141, ¶ 2.

71. Are there statements of Scripture concerning the Lord's second advent which seemingly conflict? P. 142, ¶ 1.

72. What Scriptures plainly state and clearly illustrate the manner of the Second Advent? P. 142, ¶ 2.

73. What is the correspondence between "the days of Noah" and "the days of the Son of Man"? P. 143, ¶ 1.

74. On the other hand, what Scriptures apparently conflict with the foregoing? P. 143, ¶ 2.

75. As truth-seekers, shall we accept some of these statements and reject others? What principle must always be followed in seeking the truth on these matters?

P. 143, ¶ 3.

76. What two other illustrations are given respecting the manner of the Lord's coming? P. 144, ¶ 1.

77. When endeavoring to interpret these apparently conflicting texts, what principle must be applied in order to harmonize the figurative with the literal statements?

P. 144, ¶ 2.

78. How does the Apostle in 1 Thes. 4: 16 describe the manner of the Second Advent? With what other Scriptures does this description correspond? P. 145, ¶ 1, 2.

79. What is the significance of the expression, "With a shout," and how does this apply to present conditions in the world? P. 146, ¶ 1, 2.

80. Explain the symbol, "The Voice of the Archangel." What other Scriptural expressions apply to this same thought? P. 147, ¶ 1, 2.

81. What does "The Trump of God" signify? Why do we consider this a figurative rather than a literal statement? P. 147, ¶ 3.

82. What is the evidence that we are now living in the days of the "Seventh Trumpet"? P. 148, ¶ 1.
83. What is the particular point to be noticed in the prophecies of Daniel, Paul and John the Revelator, as respects the presence of the Lord? P. 149, ¶ 1.
84. What purpose has been served by "the Shout," "the Voice of the Archangel" and "the Trump of God" in the Harvest of the Gospel Age? P. 149, ¶ 2.
85. What is the first work of the Chief Reaper in the Harvest of the Gospel Age? And what is the length of the Harvest period? P. 150, ¶ 1.
86. What is the meaning of the symbol, "in flaming fire," in connection with the Lord's Second Advent? P. 150, ¶ 2; P. 151, ¶ 1.
87. How is the term, "Mighty Angels," applied? P. 151, ¶ 2.
88. How will the Lord be revealed to the world "in flaming fire"? What will be the contrasting experiences of the wicked and the righteous in the Day of the Lord? P. 151, ¶ 3.
89. Will there be any excuse for ignorance or inability to obey the Truth in that day? P. 152, ¶ 1.
90. What is the significance of the symbolic statement, "in power and great glory"? Why do many recognize the glory and power of earth's great Ruler, yet fail to recognize the King Himself? P. 152, ¶ 2, 3.
91. What is the application of the Scripture, "Behold, He cometh with clouds"? And how does this statement agree with the foregoing symbolic descriptions as to the manner of His coming? P. 153, ¶ 1, 2.
92. Is the expression, "In like manner" (Acts 1:11), out of harmony with the foregoing? What erroneous thought has been read into this text? What was the manner of His going away, and what may we, therefore, expect in the manner of His coming again? P. 153, ¶ 3, 4.
93. Why did the angel lay emphasis upon the expression, "this same Jesus"? What encouragement and inspiration does this thought convey to our minds and hearts? P. 154, ¶ 1.
94. What beautiful illustration of His coming again was given by our Lord Himself in Matt. 24: 27? And what is the proper translation and interpretation of the Greek word "astrape" in this text? P. 155, ¶ 1.

95. What is the significance of the Greek word parousia in this text? What is the marginal reading in the Revised Version? P. 156, ¶ 1.

96. What words of caution were spoken by our Lord to guard against two prominent, erroneous teachings, which would be promulgated about the time of His Second Advent? P. 157, ¶ 1, 2.

97. What peculiarity of the Greek language enhances its value in giving exact expression to truth? For example, how many different Greek words have been rendered "come" in our English translation? P. 158, ¶ 1.

98. How many times does the word Parousia occur in the Greek Testament, and how many times is it correctly translated presence in the English Common Version? P. 159, ¶ 1, and footnote.

99. What is the correct thought in connection with the parousia of our Lord? Does parousia necessarily imply sight? How may this be proven? P. 159, ¶ 2.

100. Why were Jesus' disciples especially anxious to know the signs of the Second Advent? And why did our Lord give them so detailed an account of events intervening between the first and second advents? P. 159, ¶ 3; P. 160, ¶ 1.

101. To what period do Jesus' words in Matt. 24:1 to 14 apply? How are verses 15 and 22 applicable? What warning is contained in verses 23 to 26? How should verse 27 be interpreted? P. 160, ¶ 2.

102. How did Jesus use Noah's experience as a type of His Second Advent? What is the special point of comparison referred to by the Lord? P. 160, ¶ 3; P. 161, ¶ 1.

103. How does St. Luke describe the same conditions? P. 162, ¶ 1.

104. What is the similarity between the flood of Noah's day and the fire of the Day of the Lord? P. 162, ¶ 2.

105. Do the Scriptures indicate any difference between the world and the Church, as regards knowledge of the Second Advent? P. 163, ¶ 1, 2.

106. What special encouragement was given by our Lord in Matt. 24: 45-47? P. 163, ¶ 3.
107. What warning is expressed in Matt. 24: 48-51? P. 163, ¶ 4.
108. What is clearly taught by the foregoing Scriptures with regard to two classes in the end of this age? P. 164, ¶ 1.
109. What is signified by "His goods" in Matt. 24: 47? P. 164, ¶ 2.
110. Why will "the elect" not be disheartened nor deceived by present-day delusions? P. 165, ¶ 1.
111. In view of the foregoing, what is the Lord's glorious message to His Church at this time? P. 166, ¶ 1, 2.
112. What has evidently been the object in this particularity of instruction respecting the manner of the Lord's Second Advent? P. 166, ¶ 3.
113. What prophetic statement is made by St. Peter with respect to "scoffing" in the end of the Gospel Age? Are these scoffers in the world or in the Church? P. 167, ¶ 1, 2.
114. How does St. Peter use Noah's flood as an illustration of the overwhelming flood of trouble in the Day of the Lord? P. 168, ¶ 1.
115. What is St. Peter's exhortation to the saints in this day? 2 Pet. 3:10; P. 168, ¶ 2.
116. What assurance is given by the Apostle Paul that the faithful will not be left in darkness? Why is the symbolic storm of Rev. 7: 1, 2 being held back? P. 168, ¶ 3.
117. What argument can be presented against taking literally St. Peter's and St. John's statements respecting "the heavens being on fire," and "rolled together as a scroll"? P. 169, ¶ 1.
118. Contrast the relative positions of the "little flock" and the world in the "harvest" of the Gospel Age. P. 169, ¶ 2; P. 170, ¶ 1.
119. What is the connection between the closing of Gentile Times and the setting up of Christ's Kingdom? Do we see about us any evidences of preparation for the establishing of the Kingdom? P. 170, ¶ 2.

120. How has the Lord fulfilled His promise to "gird Himself" and to make His faithful, watching servants "sit down to meat"? Luke 12: 37 P. 170, ¶ 3.

121. To what class only has the Lord revealed His purposes? And what should be the real truth-seeker's course with respect to every statement of "present truth"? P. 171, ¶ 1; P. 172.

STUDY VI

EARTH'S GREAT JUBILEE

1. What fact must be recognized in order to properly appreciate the history of the Jews, and why is their history so particularly recorded by the prophets and New Testament writers? P. 173, ¶ 1, 2.

2. What dangerous error is to be avoided in the study of Scriptural types? P. 173, ¶ 3.

3. What did Jesus mean when He said that "not one jot or tittle of the Law should pass away until fulfilled"? How long must the observance of an institutional type be continued? Does keeping a type signify the fulfilling of it? P. 174, ¶ 1.

4. Cite a notable illustration of the fulfilling of a type. Why was the observance of every detail of a type strictly enforced? P. 174, ¶ 2.

5. Of what was the Jubilee a type? What does the manner of its reckoning teach regarding the time for the beginning of the antitype? P. 175, ¶ 1.

6. How do we know that the fulfillment of the Jubilee type is still future? P. 175, ¶ 2.

7. What does the word Sabbath signify? What was the Jubilee Day and how was it computed? P. 175, ¶ 3, and footnote.

8. When did the Sabbath Year occur, and what were its characteristics? How was the Jubilee computed? P. 176, ¶ 1.

9. Give a detailed description of Israel's Jubilee year. P. 176, ¶ 2 to 4.

10. Where is the account of the Jubilee observance recorded?
11. P. 177, ¶ 1.
12. What did the Jubilee year foreshadow? P. 177, ¶ 2.
13. What two classes were represented by the Israelites? Was there any tribe to which the Jubilee did not apply? And what did this signify? P. 177, ¶ 3.
14. How is the Jubilee related to the Times of Restitution?
P. 178, ¶ 1.
15. What portion of the Jubilee Year was probably required to legally and satisfactorily straighten out affairs? And what does this imply with respect to the Millennial Age of Restitution? P. 179, ¶ 1.
16. Is there any evidence that an antitypical Jubilee has yet occurred? What was Jesus' assertion as to the passing away of any part of the Law without fulfillment? Has the type been observed since Israel was carried into captivity in Babylon? How can these apparent contradictions be harmonized? P. 179, ¶ 2.
17. How is the length of the Great Cycle computed? P. 180, ¶ 1.
18. How do we know that a Great Cycle must have begun to count when the type ceased? Does the Great Jubilee of Jubilees begin after this cycle, or when and how? What has been the rule in the fulfillment of, any type in which time was a feature? Cite several instances.
P. 180, ¶ 2.
19. Since the observance of the type could not cease until the Great Cycle began to count, what is the important point to be ascertained in order to locate the beginning of the Times of Restitution? P. 181, ¶ 1.
20. Looking at the type, what should we expect of the opening years of the antitypical Jubilee? Do we see any such indications about us at present? P. 182, ¶ 1.
21. Have we any direct Bible record with respect to Israel's last observance of their typical Jubilee? If not, how shall we proceed, and why? P. 182, ¶ 2; P. 183, ¶ 1.
22. How do we locate the exact date of the last typical Jubilee? When was the first typical Jubilee observed? P. 184, ¶1, 2.
23. How many years elapsed between the entering of Canaan and the seventy years' desolation? P. 185, ¶ 1.

24. How many Jubilees were observed before the captivity? And when was the last Jubilee observed? P. 185, ¶ 2.
25. Where, therefore, did the Great Cycle of 2500 years begin to count? Where will it end? P. 185, ¶ 3, 4.
26. Why was October, A.D 1874—the beginning of the twenty-five hundredth year—the beginning of the Jubilee year? P. 187, ¶ 1.
27. What, therefore, did Israel's Jubilee prefigure? And what does the manner of its reckoning indicate? P. 187, ¶ 2.
28. What evidence is there that when the Times of Restitution are due, the presence of the Great Restorer is also due? P. 187, ¶ 3.
29. If the foregoing deductions are not for our admonition and encouragement, what purpose was served by the typical Jubilee? P. 188, ¶ 1.
30. In order to appreciate the time feature of our Lord's return, what must be remembered respecting the manner of the Second Advent? P. 189, ¶ 1, first half.
31. What argument is there in the fact that the worldly and nominal church Christians do not recognize the presence of the Lord? P. 189, ¶ 1, second half; ¶ 2.
32. If the Times of Restitution began October A.D 1874, what should the watching ones expect to see? What is the "sickle" in this Harvest of the Gospel Age, and who are the "messengers"? P. 190, ¶ 1.
33. In addition to the testimony of the Law, is there any corroborative testimony from the Prophets regarding the antitypical Jubilee? P. 190, ¶ 2; P. 191, ¶ 1.
34. Cite the Scriptures which predict the 70 years' desolation of the land and the reason why it was just 70 years. P. 191, ¶ 2.
35. What was the relation between the "Gentile Times" and the 70 years' desolation of the land? And where is it recorded? P. 192, ¶ 1.
36. What course did God pursue with respect to Israel's observance of their Jubilee years? P. 192, ¶ 2.
37. In proceeding to calculate the antitypical Jubilee from prophecy, what difference is noted in the manner of counting according to the Law and the Prophets, respectively? P. 193, ¶ 1, 2.

38. Give a mathematical demonstration of the Jubilee as viewed prophetically. P. 193, ¶ 3, to P. 195.

39. What is the strongest proof that these corroborative lines of evidence are of Divine origin? P. 194, last ¶, to P. 196, ¶ 1.

40. What is naturally the first work of Restitution? P. 197, ¶ 1.

41. What is the antitypical Trumpet of Jubilee and its import? P. 197, ¶ 2.

42. In what various ways is humanity affected by the sounding of the antitypical Jubilee Trumpet? P. 197, ¶ 3, to P. 199, first half.

43. What is the natural effect of this spirit of "liberty throughout all the land" upon the hot-headed and ignorant masses? And what class alone can fully appreciate the grandeur and scope of the Times of Restitution? P. 199, ¶ 1.

THE PARALLEL DISPENSATIONS

1. What Scriptural authority is there for believing that the Jewish and Christian dispensations are related to each other as type and antitype? P. 201.

2. What is the popular conception with respect to the selection of the Christian Church? And why is this erroneous? Briefly contrast the call and favor of the past, present and future ages. P. 202.

3. How have the footstep followers of Jesus been disciplined, guided and instructed from the beginning of the Gospel Age until the present time? P. 203, ¶ 1.

4. Under Divine direction, in what work was the whole nation of Israel unwittingly engaged during the Jewish Age? P. 203, ¶ 2.

5. Briefly stated, in what respect did the Jewish Church prefigure the Gospel Church? P. 204, ¶ 1.

6. How has St. Paul designated the Jewish and Christian Churches, respectively? Cite Scripture on this point. P. 204, ¶ 2.

7. Of what two classes have both Natural and Spiritual Israel been composed? And at what time only have these classes been clearly manifested? By what are they symbolized in Jewish and Gospel Harvests, respectively? P. 205, ¶ 1.

8. Who was the head of the fleshly "house"? Through whom was it founded, and how designated? Who was the founder of the spiritual "house"? Through whom established, and what name does it bear? How does Luke 13: 30 apply to these two classes? How is the Gospel Church "the seed of Abraham"? P. 205, ¶ 2.

9. What is the popular interpretation of "both the houses of Israel"? And what is the correct application? P. 206, ¶ 1.

10. Give proofs from the New Testament that fleshly Israel was one. P. 206, ¶ 2.

11. Describe the difference between the promises made to fleshly and spiritual Israel, respectively. P. 207, ¶ 1, 2.

12. Briefly contrast the Tabernacle and priesthood of typical and antitypical Israel. P. 208, ¶ 1.

13. Show how "both the houses of Israel" have been carried into captivity to Babylon. P. 208, ¶ 2.

14. What is the most wonderful feature of the parallel dispensations? P. 209, ¶ 1.

15. Briefly stated, how do the Jewish and Gospel Ages exactly correspond? P. 209, ¶ 2.

16. What is the statement of St. Paul with regard to the casting off of fleshly Israel? And what is the distinction between the "Times of the Gentiles" and "the fulness of the Gentiles"? P. 210, ¶ 1, and footnote.

17. What intimation of the length of the Gospel Age is given by St. Paul in Romans XI? How does St. Peter further corroborate St. Paul's prophecy? P. 211, ¶ 1.

18. Since A.D 1874 marks the dawn of the Times of Restitution, what should we expect as one of the first features of restitution work? P. 211, ¶ 2.

19. Briefly, what does the ceasing of the call to become members of the Bride class signify? And what does it not signify? P. 212, ¶ 1; Z. '11, Pp. 181 and 190.

20. What is the relation between the date of the return of favor to Israel and the heavenly call? P. 213, ¶ 1.
21. When did Israel's favor as a nation begin and terminate?
P. 213, ¶ 2, to end of page.
22. Was Divine favor withdrawn from every individual Jew in A.D 33? P. 214, top.
23. What were Israel's experiences during these 1845 years of national favor? P. 214, ¶ 1.
24. At what time and for what reason did Israel's day of greatest favor become the day of their fall from favor? To whom was the great prize subsequently offered? P. 214, ¶ 2.
25. Why did not fleshly Israel obtain the chief favor which they sought? P. 215, ¶ 1.
26. What is the significance of the expression, "blindness in part," as respects natural Israel? P. 216, ¶ 1.
27. Briefly, what has been Israel's experience since their rejection of Messiah? P. 216, ¶ 2, 3.
28. Will Jehovah leave the nation of Israel cast off forever? Quote Scriptures bearing on this point. P. 217, ¶ 1.
29. What is the significance of the word "double" in Jer. 16: 18? P. 217, ¶ 2.
30. How long was the period of Israel's disfavor? Where did their double begin, and where will it end? P. 218, ¶ 1.
31. What notable incident occurred in A.D 1878, which marked God's returning favor to fleshly Israel? P. 218, ¶ 2; P. 221, ¶ 1.
32. How are the dates A.D 1878 and A.D 1914 related to fleshly Israel's return to God's favor? What is the relation between the two periods of Israel's fall and rise to favor? P. 221, ¶ 2.
33. What did the dates A.D 33 and A.D 1878 mark with respect to fleshly Israel? How does the work of the Gospel and Millennial Ages lap over upon the Ages immediately preceding them? P. 222, ¶ 1.
34. What is the double work belonging to each of these lapping periods? Where is this two-fold work of the Gospel Harvest prophetically declared? P. 222, ¶ 2.

35. In what year was the return of favor to Israel in 1878 declared and published by the author of "Studies in the Scriptures"? P. 223, ¶ 1.
36. What are the evidences of awakening interest among the Jews since A.D 1878? P. 223, ¶ 2.
37. Why is 1878 a date of deepest interest to spiritual as well as natural Israel? P. 223, ¶ 3.
38. As none but the Lord Jesus understood the full import of the Harvest of the Law Age, what parallel should we expect in the Harvest of the Gospel Age? P. 224, ¶ 1.
39. While the statement of one reliable Prophet is sufficient ground for faith, how has the Lord, in His loving-kindness, provided more than one testimony regarding Israel's mishneh? P. 224, ¶ 2, to P. 225, ¶ 1.
40. What date is marked by Zechariah's prophecy as to the exact day when the "double" began? P. 225, ¶ 2.
41. What were the circumstances under which the beginning of Israel's mishneh was declared by our Lord Jesus? P. 226, ¶ 1.
42. What other Prophet has spoken concerning the "double"? P. 226, ¶ 2, 3.
43. What peculiarity should be noted in the utterances of the prophets with respect to the assumed standpoint? How is this principle illustrated in the prophecies of Jeremiah, Zechariah and Isaiah, in connection with the "mishneh"? P. 227.
44. What facts give increased force to their prophetic utterances? P. 228, ¶ 1.
45. What reply may be given to those who object that the Berlin Congress and its actions were not sufficiently important marks of God's returning favor to Israel? How was Jesus "set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel" (Luke 2: 34)? P. 228, ¶ 2.
46. What did the casting off and fall of nominal fleshly Israel foreshadow? P. 228, ¶ 3; P. 229, ¶ 1
47. Briefly, what should we expect to be the order of the Gospel Harvest, reasoning from the Jewish Age Harvest? P. 229, ¶ 2.
48. Briefly, how shall we proceed with a mathematical demonstration of the foregoing? P. 230, ¶ 1, 2.

49. What link in the chronology of the first part of Israel's "double" is apparently lacking? And how has it been discovered and supplied?

P. 230, ¶ 3, to P. 232, top.

50. How do we compute the measure of Israel's "double," when favor was due to return to them? P. 232, ¶ 1.

51. What striking parallel between the Jewish and Gospel Ages has just been proven by the foregoing computations? P. 232, ¶ 2.

52. Give a condensed review of the Harvest Parallels of the Jewish and Gospel Ages:

First, As to the reapers. P. 233, ¶ 1.

Second, As to the work and effect of the two Harvests. P. 233, ¶ 2.

Third, The duration of these harvest periods. P. 234, ¶ 1.

Fourth, As to the parallel of God's withdrawal of favor from the nation and from individuals in the Jewish and Gospel Ages. P. 234, ¶ 2; P. 235, ¶ 1: Z. '11-190.

Fifth, With respect to the character of the preaching done, and its effect upon the nominal fleshly and spiritual houses. P. 236, ¶ 1.

Sixth, As respects the messengers chosen of God for the harvest work. P. 237, ¶ 1.

Seventh, Concerning the two doctrines which constitute the main point of testing in both harvests. P. 237, ¶ 2, 3; P. 238, ¶ 1.

Eighth, Respecting the three characters in which Jesus Christ presents Himself to the Jewish and Christian "Houses."
P. 238, ¶ 2, to Page 240, ¶ 1.

Tenth, With respect to the disappointment, slumbering and subsequent awakening on the part of the "watchers."
P. 240, ¶ 3; P. 241, ¶ 2.

53. What is the relation of the Jubilee Cycles and the "Times of the Gentiles" to the parallelism of the Jewish and Christian Ages?

P. 241, ¶ 2.

54. How do the parallel dispensations prove the chronological and prophetic evidences of the Lord's presence and the Harvest, and beginning of Restitution work? P. 242, ¶ 1.

55. Into what error have "Second Adventists" and other prophetic calculators fallen, and why? P. 243, ¶ 1.

56. How do the foregoing interpretations materially differ from these erroneous ones just referred to? P. 244, ¶ 1.

57. What illustration very beautifully applies to the relation between the time-prophecies and the parallels of the Jewish dispensation? P. 244, ¶ 2.

58. What other prophetic testimonies are in accord with these parallels? P. 245, ¶ 1.

59. What event followed the 40 years of Jewish Harvest, and what do we expect immediately after the close of the Gospel Age Harvest in October, 1914? P. 245, ¶ 2.

60. Give from memory a brief resumé of the Parallels of the Jewish and Christian dispensations. Diagram, Pp. 246, 247.

ELIAS SHALL FIRST COME

1. What Scripture teaches the priority of Elijah's coming, in connection with the establishment of the Kingdom of Heaven? P. 249, ¶ 1.

2. Explain Malachi 4: 5, 6. P. 249, ¶ 2.

3. How was Malachi's prophecy (especially the last verses of Chapter 4) regarded by the Israelites? P. 249, ¶ 3.

4. Was this prophecy fulfilled at the first advent? Nevertheless, what purpose was served by Christ's presentation to Fleshly Israel? What is the difference between the position and work of John the Immerser and the real Elijah? P. 250, ¶ 1.

5. What are the evidences that Elijah has come and has failed? P. 250, ¶ 2.

6. By what method of reasoning do we conclude that John the Baptist represented the real Elijah? And who is the real and greater Elijah? P. 251, ¶ 1; P. 252, ¶ 1.

7. Is the view that the real Elijah is the Christian Church in the flesh in contradiction to the teaching that God does not intend to convert the world during the Gospel Age? If not, why not? P. 252, ¶ 2.

8. In what manner is the true Church at the present time doing a work corresponding to that of John the Baptist with respect to the presence of the Lord? P. 253, ¶ 1.

9. To what class did John the Baptist truly do an Elijah work? And for whom does the Church now perform a similar work? What relation did John bear to the Prophet Elijah? P. 253, ¶ 2.

10. Explain the question of Jesus' disciples, "Why then say the scribes that Elijah must first come?" and the significance of our Lord's reply, "Elijah truly shall come and restore all things" (Matt. 17: 11). P. 254, ¶ 1.

11. When is the figure of a woman used to symbolize the Church? And when is the opposite figure of a man used to represent the Church, as for example, Elijah? Name several other instances in which a man represents the Church. P. 255, ¶ 1.

12. In view of the class which Elijah represented, how do we interpret the vision on the Mount of Transfiguration? P. 255, ¶ 2.

13. Cite eight instances in the life of Elijah the Prophet, which find parallels in the history of the true Church. P. 255, ¶ 3, and Diagram on P. 256.

14. What conclusions and consequent inspiration do we draw from the foregoing coincidences? P. 257, ¶ 1, 2.

15. Why is the present little season a most favorable time for Christian work and personal growth? P. 257, ¶ 3; P. 258, ¶ 1.

16. To what class, and at what period of time does the following statement of the Apostle refer: "The time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine" (2 Tim. 4: 3)? P. 258, ¶ 2; P. 259, ¶ 1.

17. While it is even now true that none but the "orthodox" can "buy or sell" in the common marts or synagogues, what have the truly consecrated learned with respect to the necessary surroundings and accompaniments of true worship? And what deeper significance may the future reveal in the statement of Rev. 13: 17? P. 259, ¶ 2.

18. What thoughts respecting the last days of the Church are suggested by the closing scenes in the life of Elijah? P. 260, ¶ 1.

19. What was the special message of John the Baptist? And how does his testimony find a parallel at the present time? P. 260, ¶ 2.

20. How does John's statement regarding the "increase" and "decrease" of the Kingdom of Heaven find its counterpart today? P. 261, ¶ 1.

21. What was the result of John's reproof of the king (Matt. 14: 4), and what is the antitype? P. 261, ¶ 2.

22. What are the parallels with respect to the persecuting power in the cases of the type and antitype? P. 261, ¶ 3.

23. In the coming struggle between the classes and the masses, what will be the probable and natural course of many conservative, religiously inclined persons? P. 262, ¶ 1.

24. Who will probably be the only exceptions to this course? And what will be their experiences in consequence thereof? P. 262, ¶ 2; P. 263, ¶ 1.

25. What argument will probably be used by the "powers that be" to restrict liberty of expression on religious subjects? And how would this give a deeper significance to the words of the Apostles Paul and John (2 Tim. 4: 3; Rev. 13: 17); and also furnish a parallel to the final experiences of Elijah and John? P. 263, ¶ 2.

26. What two lessons may be drawn from the foregoing predictions, whether future developments shall prove the correctness or incorrectness of our interpretation of prophecy? P. 264, ¶ 1, 2.

27. Give a resumé of our findings with respect to the antitypical Elijah class. What is the meaning of the name Elijah? P. 264, ¶ 3.

28. What was the most notable incident in Elijah's career? And why does Elisha seem to represent a certain class of Christians? P. 265, ¶ 1.

29. What is the meaning of the name Elisha? And what does it signify with respect to the antitypical Elisha's work? P. 266, ¶ 1, 2.

THE MAN OF SIN—ANTICHRIST

1. What is the statement of the Apostle Paul with respect to the "Man of Sin"? And what bearing does it have upon our position regarding the Presence of the Lord? P. 267, ¶ 1.

2. What general statements respecting this Man of Sin are made in the Scriptures? And what is the important question in our day? P. 267, ¶ 2.

3. What was St. Paul's anxiety for the Church, and against what errors at the beginning and end of the Gospel Age, respectively, did he wish to guard the Lord's people? P. 268, ¶ 1.

4. Contrast the sentiments of the Church in this end of the Age with the attitude of the early Christians, as respects the Lord's return. P. 268, ¶ 2.

5. Into what error had the Church at Thessalonica fallen? And what was the central thought in St. Paul's second epistle to this Church? P. 269, ¶ 1.

6. How did St. Paul's arguments differ from such as are used today to oppose the claim that the Lord is present? And what does this fact prove? P. 270, ¶ 1.

7. Since St. Paul offered but this one objection to the claim of the Thessalonians, did he not thus endorse their general ideas respecting the Day of the Lord? What were these ideas? If, then, this one and only objection offered by St. Paul can be shown to be no longer in the way, what will be our position? P. 270, ¶ 2.

8. What other names are Scripturally applied to the "Man of Sin"? P. 271, ¶ 1, 2.

9. Briefly describe the general characteristics of the Man of Sin, as indicated by these various appellations? P. 272, ¶ 1.

10. Since the Christ consists of a true Lord and a true Church, what might we expect to find in this great Antichrist? P. 272, ¶ 2.

11. In our examination of the prophetic delineation of the Man of Sin, what points do we expect to prove? P. 272, ¶ 3.

12. What are some of the commonly accepted views regarding the Antichrist? P. 273, ¶ 1, 2.

13. Considering the tendency of our day and generation, what course would be more likely to be pursued by the world than the foregoing? P. 274, ¶ 1.

14. What is the great obstacle to many, in considering this subject? And what should these misguided ones note with respect to the Greek word "theos"? P. 274, ¶ 2.

15. Of what assistance in our search for the Antichrist is a proper understanding of the breadth of the word theos? And what is the New Testament usage in the Greek where the meaning would be ambiguous? P. 274, ¶ 3.

16. Having this stumbling block removed, what are we prepared to look for in the Antichrist? P. 275, ¶ 1.

17. What prominent inconsistency characterizes the adherents of the erroneous but popular view of Antichrist? P. 275, ¶ 2; P. 276, ¶ 1.

18. Are the titles applied to the Man of Sin literal or symbolic? And do they refer to a single individual P. 276, ¶ 2.

19. Should we expect to find the Antichrist among the heathen systems of religion? What was the cause of its rise, and during what period did Antichrist's stealthy beginning take place? P. 276, ¶ 3.

20. Exactly what do we mean when we claim that the Papacy is the only system which fulfils the prophecies concerning the Man of Sin? Under what figure is the apostate Church represented? And when did this Church become the Antichrist? P. 277, ¶ 1.

21. Upon what misapplied truth has this false kingdom been built up? P. 277, ¶ 2.

22. What conditions in the Nominal Church were foreseen by the Lord? And by what methods of false reasoning have all these things been caused to transpire? Pp. 278, 279.

23. At what point did the Great Apostasy become the Man of Sin? Did the fact that the organizers and supporters of Antichrist were conscientious make their action right? Define conscientiousness. P. 280.
24. What is the two-fold significance of the name Antichrist? And how are these meanings respectively applied? How does St. John distinguish between the special Antichrist and the lesser opposers of Christ? P. 281.
25. Briefly, how has the Papacy fulfilled the predictions relating to the "Antichrist" or "Man of Sin"? P. 282, ¶ 1, 2.
26. In noting the circumstances which gave birth to the Man of Sin, does history record any fulfillment of St. Paul's prediction respecting a great falling away from the simplicity and purity of doctrines and life of the early Church? P. 282, ¶ 3, to P. 283, ¶ 5.
27. From Lord's "Old Roman World," give brief outline of conditions in the Christian Church during the First Century. P. 284, ¶ 1, 2.
28. What names were prominent in the Church? And what were the conditions during the Second Century? P. 284, ¶ 3; P. 285, ¶ 1.
29. During the Third Century, what conditions obtained? P. 285, ¶ 2.
30. What conditions prevailed during the Fourth Century under which men of rank and fashion entered the Church? P. 286, ¶ 1, to P. 287, ¶ 1.
31. Is this description of the great falling away corroborated by other historians? What was the professed motive behind every step toward temporal power taken by the clergy? P. 287, ¶ 2.
32. What statement is made by St. Paul regarding some opposing thing, which would hinder, for a time, the rapid development of Antichrist? And what was this hindrance? P. 288, ¶ 1.
33. Contrast the powers and methods of Pagan and Papal Rome. P. 288, ¶ 2; P. 289, ¶ 1.
34. In view of the fact that the coveted seat of power was occupied, what tactics were pursued by ambitious leaders in the Church? P. 289, ¶ 2.

35. What service was rendered the apostate Church by the Emperor Constantine? And under what conditions?

P. 289, ¶ 3, to P. 290, ¶ 3.

36. What was the controversy between Arius and Athanasius, which was settled at the Council of Nice, when Constantine decided in favor of Athanasius?

37. What is the common but erroneous thought respecting the spiritual condition of the Church at the time she was suddenly lifted into power by Constantine? P. 291, ¶ 1.

38. What statements are made by historians regarding conditions in the Church during the reign of Diocletian, Constantine's predecessor? P. 291, ¶ 2, to P. 293, ¶ 1.

39. What were some of the circumstances which favored the rapid development of Antichrist during the reign of Constantine?

P. 293, ¶ 2, 3.

40. After the death of Constantine, what was the attitude of the Roman Emperors toward the apostate Church? And what title was used by them? P. 294, ¶ 1.
